

K

- Kamtschatka described, 37. Conquered by the Cossacks, 128. Its position on the Pacific ascertained, 129.
- Kendrick, John, commands the first trading expedition from the United States to the North Pacific, 179. Arrives at Nootka, 181. Sails in the sloop Washington through the Strait of Fuca, 200, 217. The first who engaged in the transportation of sandalwood from the Sandwich Islands to Canton, 228. His purchases of lands from the Indians at Nootka; accidentally killed, 229.
- Kodiak Island, 35. Settlement on it by the Russians, 161.
- Krenitzin and Levaschef, voyage of, 137.
- Krusenstern, A. J. von, commands a Russian exploring expedition to the Pacific, 172. His great merit as a navigator; his journal of the expedition; efficient in the reform of abuses in Russian America, 274.

L

- Ladrillero, Juan, an old Spanish pilot, who pretended to have made a northern voyage from the Atlantic to the Pacific, 78.
- Ledyard, John, corporal of marines in Cook's expedition, 149. Escapes from a British ship, off the coast of Connecticut, 162. Endeavors to obtain means to engage in the fur trade; attempts to go by land from Paris to Kamtschatka; arrested at Irkutsk, and forced to return; attempts to discover the source of the Nile, and dies at Cairo, 163.
- Lewis, Meriwether, and John Clarke, commissioned by President Jefferson to explore Missouri and Columbia countries, 284. Voyage up the Missouri to its sources; passage through the Rocky Mountains, 285. Descend the Columbia to the Pacific; winter at the mouth of the Columbia, 286. Return to the United States, 287. General results of their expedition; their Journal written by Lewis; melancholy death of Lewis, 288.
- Lewis, or Snake, or Sahaptin River, principal southern branch of the Columbia, discovered by Lewis and Clarke, 287. Described, 24.
- Linn, Lewis F., his bill and speeches in the Senate of the United States on the occupation of Oregon, 379, 382.
- Louisiana, settled by the French; granted by Louis XIV. to Crozat, 100; and afterwards to Law, 102. Ceded by France to Spain, 102. Retroceded by Spain to France, and sold by France to the United States, 278. Its extent at different times, 107, 277, 282. Comprehended no territory west of the Rocky Mountains, 282. Northern boundary not determined by commissaries agreeably to the treaty of Utrecht, as generally supposed, 281, 436.

M

- MacDougal, Duncan, partner in the Pacific Company, 294. Sells the establishments to the North-West Company, 303. See Astoria.
- MacKenzie, Alexander, explores the north-western parts of America; reaches the Arctic Sea, 263. Reaches the Pacific, 264. MacKenzie River discovered by MacKenzie, 263.
- Magellan, Fernando, sails from the Atlantic through Magellan's Strait into the Pacific, and across the latter ocean to India, 46.
- Malaspina, Alessandro, explores the coasts near Mount St. Elias, in search of a passage supposed to communicate with the Atlantic; arrested and imprisoned on his return to Spain; his name not mentioned in the account of his voyage officially published at Madrid, 222.
- Maldonado, Lorenzo Ferrer de, account of his pretended voyage from the Atlantic to the Pacific, 78.
- Maldonado, Pedro Nuñez de, makes the first voyage along the west coast of Mexico, by order of Cortes, 49.
- Maquinna, chief of Nootka, 167. Grants land to Meares for his temporary use, 174. Denies that the British had bought lands or erected buildings at Nootka, 242. Takes the ship Boston, of Boston, and murders nearly all her crew, 268.
- Marchand, Etienne, commands the ship Solide, from Marseilles, in her voyage around the world, 223. Sees the islands which had been previously discovered by Ingraham, of which he sent an account to France, claiming the discovery. Ingraham's claim admitted by Fleury, the editor of Marchand's Journal; Journal of Marchand's voyage, edited by Fleury; general character of the work, 223. See Fleury.
- Marcos de Niza, a Franciscan friar, pretends to have discovered a rich and populous country, called Cibola, north-west of Mexico, 59.
- Martinez, Estevan, pilot to Perez, in the Santiago; pretends to have rediscovered the Strait of Fuca, 116. Commands in a voyage of observation to the coasts occupied by the Russians, 185. Ordered by the viceroy of Mexico to occupy Nootka Sound, 187. Arrives at Nootka, 191. Seizes the Iphigenia, but afterwards releases her, 152. Seizes the North-West America, 194. Seizes the Argonaut, and imprisons her captain, 195. Seizes the Princess Royal, 198. Reflections on these acts, 197. Returns to Mexico, 198.
- Maurelle, Antonio, pilot, under Bodega, in his voyages along the north-west coasts, 117 — 125. His Journal of the first of these voyages, translated and printed at London, 117. Importance of this work, 123. His Journal of the other voyage, 125.
- Meares, John, his first voyage to the north-west coast, 166. His second voyage, under the Portuguese flag, with the Felice and Iphigenia, 172. Instructed to take any