CANNED CORN.

Canned vegetables soon lose their appeal if served too often "au naturel."
There are many made vegetable dishes that are delicious and nourishing for cvold weather.

In serving a made dish keep in mind that the "makings" increase the food value but decrease the digestibility. The combination of ingredients is more slowly digested than the same ingredients served simply. For instance, soft boiled eggs are more quickly and easily digested than a souffle. So a "made" dish of vegetables should be served as the main lunchean dinner.

Canned corn lends itself to appetizing dishes. Corn fritters, corn croquettes, corn souffie, corn soup and corn puddinfi are almost as good made with canned corn as with fresh.

Any canned veretable is improved Any canned vegetable is improved if a little sugar is added with the salt when seasoning to serve. Much of the natural sweetness of the vegetable is lost and the sugar is needed to bring out the flavor. From one-half to one teaspoon of sugar for a pint of vegetables is a good rule.

Eight thin slices bacon, 1 pint can of corn, 4 tablespoons milk, 1-4 teaspoon pepper, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 4 eggs, Cut each slice of bacon into four or six pieces and fry until slightly brown and crisp. Add corn, salt and pepper and milk if the corn was solid in the can. When very hot add the eggs and stir rapidly with a fork. When the eggs are "set" pour over hot buttered toast and serve immediately.

This makes a good Eunday night supper dish. Serve with brown bread and butter, pickles, radishes or olives.

Corn Croquettes.

One pint can of corn, 2 tablespoons butted, 4 tablespoons cream, ½ cup the G. W. V. A. met yesterday afternoon in the association rooms to select
