LEGISLATURE MATTERS.

The St. John Water Extension Bill-The Osteopathy Bill.

FREDERICTON, March 7.-The municipalities committee met this morning to consider the St. John water extension bill, which provides for an increasing main from Spruce lake to twenty inches and supplying Lancaster with water. E. L. Jewett appeared by counsel to urge that he has inalienable rights to the surplus water in Spruce lake, and if the main is increased to twenty inches his right will be materially affected. C. Skinner appeared on behalf of St. John. After a lengthy conference a compromise was agred upon. The bill as amended will provide that Mr. Jewett and others may claim damages. The cost of the proposed extension has not yet been ascertained, and it is not decided to go on with the work, but the bill will provide that within sixty days of the passing of the act the city must publish a notice of its intention to go on with the proposed extension or otherwise. Within thirty days after the above notice by the city all claimants for damages must file their claims. The commo council will then have six months to decide whether to undertake the work, and a negative vote of the council will nullify the act. The committee will report the bill as amended. The law committee had a hot fight over the osteopathy bill, with the result that the committee divided, four to three against it. The bill, however, will go to the house coupled with the report that the committee divided as stated against its passage. Premier Emmerson, Attorney General White and Hon. Mr. Richard voted in

OTTAWA LETTER.

OTTAWA, March 2-While the ques ticn before the house is the Yukon contract, the question before the members is "Will Hardy be able to hold on?" There are at the time of writing some incomplete returns, and no doubt there will be recounts, but at the very best it appears that the Ontario government has a majority of not more than five or six in a house of 94 members, and it is more than likely to have no majority at all. One constituency is vacant, and two more must be before the shattered government can be made whole again. The accidents of the next two months will probably produce a few other byelections, and if the tide keeps on runring against the party as it seems to be doing now, Mr. Hardy must go under. A few weeks ago he had more than two-thirds majority in the legislature. He was supported by whole combination of patrons and independents, except two members, and seemed to be more secure in power than any other provincial government in Canada. Today his case is perilous. and the chances are decidedly against his being able to retain power any great length of time. Even while the ministry does last, its life will be burden to the leader. He is at the mercy of every kicker or patronage seeker in his camp. The most insignificant supporter of the government is in a position to hold a revolver at the premier's head and make him stand and deliver.

This change has been effected in spite of many advantages on the side of the government. The opposition fought the battle against tremendous odds. They had against them the power and patronage of two governments, one able, and both unscrupulous. For there is no denying that the Hardy government is an able combination. The ministers are nearly all men of ability and great shrewdness. Several of them are fine speakers, and taken together, there is no device or expedient, worthy or unworthy, known to politicians which they were unable to adopt to keep themselves in power. They held almost the solid vote of the liquor sellers throughout the province by an ingenious process of intimidation. No license could be obtained except through commissioners appointed by the government, and usually selected from among the most efficient campaign operators in their district. The system of colonization roads is an elaborate piece of political mechanism. The lumbermen are almost all to some extent in the power of the minister of crown lands.

In addition to the advantage local patronage, the government had the full value of federal patronage. In a previous letter it was shown how letters from Mr. Blair were used in Hastings and Northumberland and elsewhere on the line of the Trent Valley canal. The city of Kingston seems to have been carried for a ministe ly the patronage of the dominic railway department. Along the line ctmost, and a prominent railway man who has something to hope for from the Tarte combination, operated effectively in several counties through which his railway runs.

In the face of all these influences, and in spite of the fact that the opposition led by Mr. Whitney is provided with many leading members of provincial reputation, the conservatives have made enormous gains all over the province in a straight party fight. It would appear that they have received a substantial majority of the total vote. Had Mr. Whitney gather ed about him a few men well known for their ability as speakers and their capacity to rule, there would been no doubt of his success, It is said that he has behind him a number of capable men, and some young members of exceptional force and capacity. But they have yet to acquire their reputation, and could not expected to command the personal in fluence outside of their constituencies that is enjoyed by the leaders of the party now in power. It should have been mentioned above that among the influences in favor of Mr. Hardy was the large contributions of foreign lumbermen operating in Ontario, and the equally large receipts from contractors and others personally interested in the success of the ministry. The vote obtained by Mr. Whitney and his supporters is the result of a spontaneous popular movement which was larger than even the party leaders expected, and was manifested without the use of an elaborte organization, and notwithstanding the absence of campaign funds sufficient to carry on properly the machinery of the campaign. The most significant feature of the change is the return to the conservative party of the revolters who during the past few years left the ranks without going into the other camp. In the last house there were seventeen ratrons and independents. In this house there will be only three. Of these, one was elected by conservative votes in the absence of the straight party candidate. Another, whose majority is a thousand, has during the last term voted invariably with the conservative opposition. It is even stated that the third independent will practically be a member of the Whitney party. The leader of the patrons, Mr. Haycock, has gone down in the struggle and his seat is now held by a conservative. The same fate has happened the three most conspicuous of his supporters. The four patron members of the dominion parliament from Ontario have the satisfaction of seeing their constituencies captured by conservative members of the house of assembly. Simcoe and Grey, two counties in western Ontario, which return six members, elected a single conservative in the last arsembly. The independent movement, largely through the influence of Dalton McCarthy, had taken them either into the liberal or patron camp. In the new house five of the six members will be conservatives, and Dalton Mc-Carthy's own constituency will be represented by one of them.

WITTER TO SOME

It will not be pleasant for Mr. Mc-Carthy to read in London the returns from the West Riding of Simcoe. Great publicity has been given to a letter written by him to Mr. Currie, the patron candidate in his own constituency, in which the patron was en-Gorsed against the conservative. has been said by some that this letter marks the final severance of Mr. Mc-Carthy from the conservatives. But the letter itself shows that it does not indicate any remarkable change in Mr. McCarthy's mind in the last two years. The following sentence contains the gist of the whole matter: "A year ago I promised that in return for your assistance in my contest on independent lines against the members of both political parties I would do what I could for you should you offer for re-election." Mr. McCarthy goes on to give other reasons for supporting Mr. Currie, but in view of the above explanation they would seem to be superfluous.

In this contest Mr. Currie was running against a conservative and no liberal was put in the field, but the patron candidate has been defeated by 300 majority. This looks ominous for Mr. McCarthy himself, when his time comes. It is possible, however, that Mr. Carthy will not desire to continue a political leader much longer. He has not been in the house more than four or five days this session, and is now off to England on law business. Last year, notwithstanding the important business that was before parliament, the time he spent in the house was certainly not equal to six full days, and most of this time was odds and ends of periods when he was attending the supreme court. It was during the session of court that he was here this year also. It seems hardly possible that a man whose attendance on parliament is merely incidental to his law business can continue in a position of political prominence. Even his constituents may conclude that they ought to be represented by a member who will represent them in parliament.

It is not astonishing that the patrons should have disappeared from the legislature. No doubt the farmers' movement was a sincere and earnest attempt on the part of the farmers themselves to secure their rights and interests, but the politicians who obtained their election through this movement have done very little to justify their appearance in public life. Those who went to Toronto seemed to have fallen into line behind the Mowat and Hardy ministry with proper docility. Those who came to Ottawa have never, so far as I can remember, given a single vote against the Laurier Tarte government. They stumped the country and appealed to the farmers against the high duties on farm ma-chinery and other articles of common use among their class. Yet they have voted steadily with the government which has retained these duties, and even increased some of them, and which is in closer alliance with the protected manufacturers of mowing machines and other machinery than of the canal, the same influence was used. In the city of Ottawa, government batronage was employed to the caught once with specious promises, they know enough not to be caught again, and the first vengeance they take is against their own betrayers. The election of yesterday is a sign of what the farmers will say when they get a chance to show the Ontario ministers and their followers what they think of them.

It is interesting to note that the people of Hastings west did not vote for Bleecker and the Trent Valley canal. Mr. Blair's letter seems to have been seed cast on stony ground. Possibly the canvass may have reduced Mr. Morrison's majority, but It has not prevented the capture of the seat from the government candidate. Among the happy men in room No. 6 is Col. McLennan of Glengarry, who comes back from his district, comprising the extreme east, with the scalp of two grits and one patron in his belt. In his own county of Glengarry Mr. McPherson, "the cheese king," gone down in the smash. Col. Hughes came in last night in a fervor of excitement with a couple of victories and Ontarios to his record. Dr. Sproule, who went west to attend to the Greys, and Mr. Bennett, who was among the Simcoes, are each able to report a solid conservative contingent from the three ridings of their county. It is a great day for room No. 6. From all parts of the province except Mackenzie's home in Victoria, the word comes in that the Yukon deal was one of the chief features of the contest. Mr. Hardy may not have had much to do with this bargain, but he has got the benefit of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's support and bears the penalty of the federal government's misdeeds. From the rural districts, from the greater cities and the towns there is a universal protest against this astonishing Yukon bargain, and there is also no doubt that the liberal party in Ontario are finding that some of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's colleagues, for instance Mr. Sifton, Mr. Tarte and Mr. Blair are a hard load to carry. A year ago when the returns for the election in Nova Scotia came in, Mr. Fielding had some fun with his opponents from that province. It is not likely that Sir Richard Cartwright will be anxious to discuss the Ontario campaign as incidental to the debate before the house.

Yesterday's discussion of the Yukon bill was rather interesting. Mr. Bostock, who opened the debate, is a wealthy young Englishman, a Cambridge University graduate, who is said to be "blowing in" $40,000 a year in British Columbia. He is a singularly poor speaker for an educated man, but is credited with ability and earnestness. His argument was mainly a repetition of that of the minister of the interior.

Mr. Dobell, one of the business men of this business men's government, is a sort of mystery. He is no doubt a clever business man, who has built up a large trade in Quebec city and made himself rich by his own ability. He has made himself richer by marrying a daughter of the late Sir David Mc-Pherson, and when the day after the election he left the conservative camp to take a place in the cabinet, he eemed to be an important accession. But for some reason not very clear, the house on both sides has entered into a conspiracy not to take him seriously. When he jokes, the members decline to laugh; but they make up for it by laughing when he says solemn things. There was nothing particularly humorous in his expostulations against the course of the opposition in attributing wrong motives to the government. It was not intrinsically funny for him to say that the ministers were determined to do right and dared not do wrong. Yet the house persisted in being amused. When Mr. Dobell contended that the contract with Mackenzie and Mann could not be broken and that it was useless to talk of another tender, Mr. Maclean inquired what a "provisional contract" was and what was the use of referring the matter to parliament at all. Mr. Dobell evaded this issue by reproaching Sir Charles Tupper for his reflections upon Sir Wilfrid Laurier. It seems that Sir Charles once intimated that Sir Wilfrid talked too much and "wore his heart on his sleeve." Mr. Dobell contended that this was a compliment and proceeded to read from an unvolved in the words quoted. He got on very well until he reached the word "guileless," "simple minded," when the reading was drowned in a burst of opposition laughter, in which the ministers themselves joined in a constrained sort of way. Mr. Dobell did not get his definition completed and made an embarrassed and sudden ending of his discourse. The two opposition speeches were made by Mr. Ives and Mr. McDougall of Cape Breton. Mr. Ives devoted his time to a discussion of the probable effect of the transaction on the mining community. He pointed out that while the free miners were making their living out there, and were obliged to pay ten per cent. royalty, this concern was only required to pay one per cent. While the miners paid an annual license fee, the contractors were subject to no charges. The miners were obliged to pay for certificates before they were allowed to hire out as working men, while the contractors could turn in all kinds of employes on their grounds, Chinese, Indians and cheap labor of any kind, and none of them would be obliged to have free miners' certificates. The free miner is obliged to operate his claim incessantly. If he stops work seventy-two hours his lease may be forfeited. THE MARKET FOR OATS.

(Montreal Trade Bulletin.

There has been a decided change in the market for oats during the past two weeks, prices having declined within that period fully 2c. to 3c. per bushel, with large quantities yet to be marketed both in Ontario and this province. We have been shown letters from the country during the past few days, stating that in sections where a short time since oats were selling at 31½c., they can now be bought at 28c. f. o. b., showing a clear drop of 3½c. per bushel. A lot of 15,000 bushels was offered to an exporter here on Monday last by a country dealer at 32½c. for export, but they were refused, 22½c. being the lest bid. Several of our country subscribers who have called upon us this week from points in Quebec and Untario, say there are plenty of eats in farmers' hands. During the past season commercing in May last, about 7,000,000 bushels of Canadian oats have been shipped from Montreal, St. John and Portland, against about 4,000,000 bushels for the corresponding period last season, showing an nicrease of about 3,000,000 bushels for the previous season, as they are shown to be about 11c. to 12c. above that of a year ago. (Montreal Trade Bulletin

There has been an advance in creamery butter in Montreal lately, owing to large export demand. But the price is still only 18 to 20e.

(From the Youth's Con

(From the Youth's Companion.)

When it is considered that the body is made up very largely of water it can readily be understood how important to health is a constant supply of this fluid. Many people have a notion that the drinking of water in any amount beyond that actually necessary to quench thirst is injurious, and, acting on this belief, they endeavor to drink as little as possible. The notion, however, is wide of the truth. Drinking freely of pure water is a most efficacious means not as little as possible. The notion, however, is wide of the truth. Drinking freely of pure water is a most efficacious means not only of preserving health, but often of restoring it when failing. All the tissues of the body need water, and water in abundance of every vital function. Cleapliness of the tissues within the body is as necessary to the alth and comfort as cleanliness of the skin, and water tends to insure the one as truly as it does the other. It dissolves the waste material, which would otherwise collect in the body, and removes it in the various secretions. These waste materials are often actual poisons, and many a headache, many rheumatic pains and aches, many sleepless nights and listless days, and miny attacks of the "blues" are due solely to the circulation in the blood or deposit in the tissues of these waste matters, which cannot be got rid of because of an insufficient supply of water. Water is accused of making fat, and people with a tendency to corpulence avoid it for that reason. But this is not strictly true. It does undoubtedly often irrease the weight, but it does so because it improved the digestion and therefore more of the food caten is utilized and turned into fatally digestion and assimilation, and systematic water drinking is often employed as a means of reducing the superfluous fat—which it sometimes does with astonishing rapidity.
