U. S. WOMAN
HELD IN MOSCOW
AS SPY IS FREE

Mrs. Margaret Harrison Released from "Red" Prison After Many Adventures.

KRASSIN SENDS WORD TO LORD BEAVERBROOK

First Arrest Was on Charge of Attempting to Bribe to Get Out of Russia.

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 21.—Mrs. Margaret Harrison, of Baltimore, newspaper correspondent imprisoned by the Bolsheviks at Moscow, had been released, according to a letter received yesterday by Dr. Hugh H. Young, from the secretary of Lord Beaverbrook, owner of the Daily Express of London.

Her release from prison does not mean necessarily that she may immediately leave Russia, though this is the hope of her friends.

Assurances that Mrs. Harrison had been released were sent to Lord Beaverbrook by M. Krassin, Bolshevik minister of trade, who has returned to Russia.

Imprisoned by Reds

Mrs. Harrison entered Russia about 12 months ago. Soon after reaching Moscow she was imprisoned for a while, but was released and for a time was reported as being in high favor with the Bolsheviks. Her efforts to leave the country, however, were frustrated and she was again arrested on October 24, and imprisoned on a charge of having tried to bribe her way out of Russia. Later an official declaration charged her with being a spy for the United States State Department and although this was flatly denied by Washington, all efforts to obtain her release had been unsuccessful.

Mrs. Harrison is a daughter of the late Bernard N. Baker, who was a leading figure in United States steamship circles for many years.

Hundreds of Girls
Enjoyed Programme

Groups of C. I. G. T. Were Guests of Ladies' Co-operative Committee.

Over three hundred girls, comprising the total membership of the C. I. G. T. groups in the city, gathered at the Y. W. C. A. Recreation Centre, King street east, last evening as the guests of the Ladies' Co-operative Committee and the Girls' Cabinet. A varied and interesting programme was carried out, and it was a bunch of merry girls that dispersed after the serving of refreshments at the end of the evening.

The Programme

The opening number of the programme comprised a number of games which served to intermingle the different groups and establish acquaintance with all.

The Girls' Cabinet sang a song of welcome, which was followed by a play staged by the Main street Baptist group, and entitled "The Bird's Christmas Carol." Miss Helen Palmer, of German street Baptist, sang a solo and Miss Allison, of the Maritime Girls' Work Society, taught the girls a new song.

Cup for Competition

A silver cup was exhibited by the chairman, Mrs. Hunter, who explained that it would be put up for competition amongst all the groups and would go to the one which most successfully complied with the conditions which had been drawn up.

These were: For the best original song setting forth the fourfold aims of the C. I. G. T. programme; the most original C. I. G. T. banner or pennant designed in the club's colors of blue and white; the best four months' record in the observance of the C. I. G. T. code governing health, mental, religious and social habits.

The Arrangements

Mrs. Hunter stated that two of the events will be completed in at the next rally, and the cup will become the temporary possession of the most successful group. The cup to pass out of their hands at the next rally if defeated by another group. The competition will last for two years and then the cup will become the permanent possession of the group scoring the most points during the entire period.

The names of the donors who succeeded in attaining to possession for it at any time, and the names of the donors will be engraved on the cup.

Miss Allison told a story to the girls in an entertaining manner and the East St. John group staged a scene from the book "Little Women," demonstrating considerable talent in their presentation.

Refreshments were served by the cabinet, and the evening brought to a close shortly after 10 o'clock with the singing of the National Anthem. Before disbanding, the girls extended a hearty vote of thanks to their hosts.

MRS. SOLOMON SAYS:

By HELEN ROWLAND

(Copyright, 1920, by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.)

Being the Copyings of the Seventh-Hundredth Wife.

My daughter, be not deceived by false signs. For, lo, many wonders mayest thou accomplish, and many feats mayest thou perform; but thou canst not fulfill the complacency of a BLONDE.

Neither canst thou DISCOMFIT her.

Nay, though thou callest her a thousand names, so long as thou admittest that she is a "blonde," she remaineth unperturbed.

Go to! Both the Wag pronounce her "light-headed!" she smileth cheerfully, and patteeth her curls.

For she deemeth this perfringe, the subtlest form of flattery.

Doth the Highbrow declare her "fast-witted," "rattle-brained," and "shadow-eyed?" She laugheth with delight.

For, she knoweth, that under a mass of yellow hair, no man careth whether there existeth a brain or a vacuum.

Doth the Philosopher find her "trivolum?" She greeteth his accusation with mirth and with baby-talk and pretty babblings, seeking to appear MORE frivolous.

For, in her heart, she knoweth that golden locks accord not with a Serious Soul, but with Coquettish Columbine; and every man yearneth for a pink-and-yellow Doll.

But to be called a "Baby-Vamp," delighteth her vanity, beyond all things!

Behold, a Triton-haired damsel must possess chic and wit, if she would reign in the hearts of men.

And a brown-haired must have sweetness and charm, if she would find favor in their eyes.

And a black-haired woman must have fire, and grace, and temperament.

But a yellow-haired woman need have only—YELLOW HAIR!

And, if unto these, she addeth a dimple and kittenish ways, she is profiting!

Go to, my daughter! If a Widow casteth eyes upon thy Beloved, then mayest prepare thy weapons for a good fight.

Verily, verily, until her locks turn dark at the roots, nothing can rattle a Blonde's serenity, nor disturb her peace of mind.

For, she knoweth in her heart, that she is the Gift of Heaven, and the Darling of the gods!

And she feareth nothing in all the world, save ANOTHER Blonde!

Woman Choked By Negro In Her Room

Boy Chased by Colored Pair for Hours Until Rescued by a Policeman.

Montreal, Jan. 21.—Mrs. Philomene Glendonning, of 1223 St. James street, was taken to the Western Hospital this morning, suffering from a severe shock to her nervous system, which she received last night when she awoke to find a tall negro leaning over her bed. She screamed for help, but instead of frightening the man, it evidently caused him anger, for he seized her by the throat and began to shake her. In a few minutes, however, he released her and escaped.

Chased a Youth

Henri Tremblay, a young boy, who lives on Orleans Avenue, Maisonneuve, was brought into a police station this morning by a kindly constable who had discovered him in the early hours in a great state of terror. According to the lad's story, he had spent most of the night in trying to escape two negroes, who had chased him steadily since the previous evening, not giving up their efforts to capture him until long past midnight, when he finally eluded his pursuers by hiding in a barn.
