(Special to The Telegraph.) Ottawa, May 29.—Postmaster General Pelletier asked to be excused from continuing to conduct his departmental estimates at 10:20 tonight, because he was not feeling well.

The postal estimates were taken up when the house resumed at 8 o'clock, and from then till 10:20 grievance after grievance concerning the wholesale dismissal of postmasters for "partisan" reasons were ventilated and pleas for increases in salaries for rural postmasters and letter carriers were advanced by members of the opposition.

Dr. Neely, of Humbolt, was just beginning to relate some distressing incidents in his constituency following numerous complaints by Messrs. Levi Thompson and Hon. Charles Macleod when the postmaster general begged that further consideration of his estimates be deferred, as he was not feeling well.

Mr. Carrol, of Cape Breton, cited the fact that the federation of letter carriers had petitioned for an eight hour day pay while of duty through illness, the weekly half-holiday in summer, increased salary and lighter mail consignment carry. Sometimes he said, they were required to carry 90 to 120 pounds.

24 Majority for the Amendment

Opinion Divided at Ottawa Whether Premier Borden Will Carry Out His Promise and Go to the Country—Yesterday's Debate Was Full of Fire.

(Special to The Telegraph.) Ottawa, May 30.—At 1 o'clock this morning the senate voted on the amendment to the second reading of the naval bill offered by the Liberal leader, Sir George Ross, which would refer the proposal to the people. The vote stood: For the amendment, 51. Against, 27.

Opposition majority, 24, by a Liberal government, voted against the amendment.

A further reading of the naval bill with amendments attached will likely be moved by Sir George Ross.

On both imperial and national grounds the senate has asked the government to trust the people to rightly decide the naval issue.

Shortly after midnight the majority of the upper house approved the amendment submitted by Sir George Ross and Hon. Mr. Borden, on Tuesday last. That amendment voted the principle for which Premier Borden and the other Liberal Conservative party stood when the latter participated in the 1910 election. It called for the submission to the people of the naval contribution bill passed through the commons under closure without mandate from the country and unjustified either by the constitution or by any sound reason of national or imperial policy.

The vote came at the end of four days of vigorous and high-level debate, listened to throughout by crowded galleries and by a large attendance of members of the lower chamber.

The result indicated that the principles of Liberalism are the same in both houses of parliament. The naval contribution bill is killed.

The government has now two courses open to it. If there is a real belief in an emergency a supplementary estimate can be brought down tomorrow in the commons under the Laurier naval service act to vote the $85,000,000 for warships to immediately strengthen effective naval forces of the empire. Liberalism will offer an objection to that.

The other alternative is for Premier Borden to show the courage of conviction to carry out the pledge he made publicly in Montreal on his return from England and appeal forthwith to the Canadian people. That course will not be adopted. The government is afraid to trust the people.

Moreover it does not yet want to declare its permanent policy. This permanent policy is one of perpetual contribution and no Canadian navy was made plain by the tenor of the majority in the speeches from the Conservative members of the senate.

No Mandate for Bill. Senator Legris resumed the debate on the naval bill. He challenged the statement of the government leader that the government had a mandate for this measure.

"In no shape or form was this case," said he. "It was carefully hidden from the electors and no mention of it was made by the leader of the government or the leader of opposition in their manifestos. It is true that Bourassa, Pelletier, Blondin, Coderre, Sevigny and their friends talked navy in the province of Quebec, but the verdict of that province was against it."

Senator Cloran declared that if the interests which were seeking to force the bill on the country had only kept in touch with public sentiment they would realize that the measure was an object of decision in Canada, an object of contempt in England, and a laughing stock of the world. It was the result of the Conservative alliance with allies like the senator from Nipissing, the member for Algoma, the Nantis, the Pelletiers, and the Blondins.

"We have popes, moderators, clergymen, ministers, priests and bishops praying for the success of Senator Cloran, and politicians urging us to prepare for war. For whom are the interests who would exploit the empire and the lives of its citizens for their own monetary advantage. Canada has no more need of a navy than the sun has need of a star to give it light."
