

Testament to a most searching examination, giving the writer's reasons for holding that many of these have not made good their claim to acceptance. Recognizing that higher criticism is a perfectly legitimate science, and that its exponents have rendered invaluable service in the cause of Biblical research, Dr. Orr attacks their positions with arguments which must be reckoned with in future discussions.

Robertson Nicoll is at once a mystic and a keen-eyed man of the world. The British Weekly (and it is only bare fact to say that he is the British Weekly) exhibits the mystic, in its "leader" on the first page, and gives the most of an inner page to the shrewd, kindly, often quizzical discussions of men and things, by "Claudius Clear", which is but one of this versatile writer's several pen names. The Garden of Nuts (232 pages, $1.25) and The Day Book of Claudius Clear (351 pages, $1.25)—both volumes from Hodder & Stoughton, London; U. C. Tract Society, Toronto, gather up in a convenient form a choice collection respectively of these two sorts of so different dissertations. The readers of the British Weekly will be glad to see them in this permanent form, and for many others the books will open new and delightful fields.

What Rev. Professor Gregg's History of the Presbyterian Church in Canada does for our church, Rev. Dr. Alexander Sutherland's lately issued volume, The Methodist Church and Missions in Canada and Newfoundland (Text Book No. 4, The Young People's Forward Movement for Missions, F. C. Stephenson, Toronto, 316 pages, freely illustrated, paper 35c., cloth 50c.) does for our Methodist neighbors. Dr. Sutherland knows his subject, and has thrown his heart into the story. Young Methodists will do well to master this history of what their church has done and is doing; and it will stir up young Presbyterians to a wholesome emulation.

Twelve volumes in all have already been printed in Morang's Literature Series (Morang & Co., Toronto, 15c. each). Each one has been compiled by an expert. Two of special interest to patriotic Canadians are Selections from Canadian Poets, by E. A. Hardy, B.A., and Poems of the Love of Country, by J. E. Weitherrall, B.A. The latter includes not only Canadian patriotic verse, but many stirring British poems, and the national songs of other lands. Some others of this year's publication in the series are Selections from Longfellow, Hawthorne's Wonder Book, with notes, Narrative Poems, all three edited by John C. Saul, M.A., and, High School Prose Book, in two parts, by O. J. Stevenson, M.A., D.Pæd. While intended primarily for use in supplementary English, in schools, the notes and the careful editing make the series of interest and value for general use.

Among the recent publications of Cliphant, Anderson and Ferrier, Edinburgh, is, Spiritually Fit: Straight Talks to Young Men, in the Language of To-day, by Albert J. MacKinnon, M.A., United Free Church, Lochmaben. Mr. MacKinnon is a brother of Rev. Clarence MacKinnon, B.D., of Winnipeg, and visited this country in 1903 as a deputy of the United Free Church of Scotland to the General Assembly of our church at Vancouver. A further notice of this timely book will be given.
