

he may be called upon to take; that his work, however obscure it may seem to himself or others, is, nevertheless, an essential part of the whole, and that perfection in completion of a great edifice, such as this, will be found only in the sense of duty and skill revealed in the <sup>direction</sup> ~~erection~~ and <sup>execution</sup> ~~performance~~ of its minutest details. # I cannot better express to all concerned, what I know all present will wish me to say, that we trust this building may be worthy of the all-important part which the Bank of Canada may be expected, through the years, to play in relation to the financial, industrial, and social needs of the Dominion, and <sup>the place</sup> which the building itself will have in the permanent adornment of the Nation's Capital.