CHARLIE DEVLIN CARRIES NICOLET

Defeats Ball, Conservative, by Over 400 Majority, After Spirited and Strident Contest.

HEGANCOUR Que., Dec. 30.—Charles Devlin, Liberal and former member of the British House of Commons, was elected for Nicolet Saturday by over four hundred majority. The defeated candidate was George Ball, who held the seat in the Conservative interests previous to the last general election, when he was defeated by the Hon. Mr. Lemieux, who was also elected for Gaspé. The constituency is largely French and as Devlin was an outsider and an Irishman, the Conservatives made big efforts to defeat him. St. Bridget, the only part of the county that is English, gave a majority for the Conservative candidate.

Elsewhere Mr. White received, with absolute friendliness.

The Tongsa Penlop himself undertook a difficult and dangerous journey of over ten days from his residence at Biaga to meet Mr. White at Lhakhang. At Lhakhang Monastery, one of the most noted and ancient of the incarnate lamas, the nephew of the Tongsa Penlop. Here a great reception was organized in honor of the British political agent.

SASKATCHEWAN WHEAT SHIPPED VIA PACIFIC

Grain Commission Has Been Investigating Western Outlets for Alberta and Western Saskatchewan Wheat—Secretary Boyle Thinks Pacific Ports Are the Natural Outlet—Commission to Sit in Regina

EDMONTON, Dec. 30.—J. R. Boyle, M.P.P., who recently visited Victoria and Vancouver on Grain Commission business, has returned to the city.

The visit of the commission to the coast cities was undertaken with a view to finding out the facilities for shipping Alberta wheat through a western outlet. During the sessions of the commission at six different points in Alberta a desire was expressed on the part of both farmers and dealers that an investigation be made into the possibility of opening up an export business through the Pacific ports, and the visit to Vancouver and Victoria was therefore at once arranged.

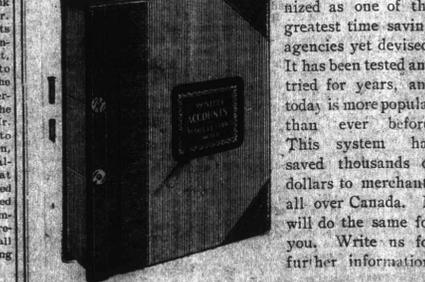

The commission found that not only are there many inquiries from the Orient, but a beginning in the wheat and flour trade across the Pacific has already been made. China and Japan are evidently planning to go into the milling business.

"As far as that market is concerned," says Mr. Boyle, "it appears to be chiefly a question of reasonable freight rates from Alberta points to the Pacific, and a terminal elevator on the coast to handle the product. If a freight rate can be secured that will put Alberta grain on the Old Country or Oriental markets so that Alberta farmers will be even a cent a bushel ahead, I am satisfied that the crop will all come this way and probably a great deal of Western Saskatchewan."

HOT WAVE AT POLE RESENTED BY PEARY

Explorer Complains Bitterly of Below-Zero Temperature Melting Away His Plans.

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—Robert E. Peary complained in an address at Mendelssohn Hall before the American Geographical Society about the hot weather in the Polar regions. He said that if it hadn't been for the hot wave up there last season his expedition would almost certainly have reached the pole.

All the members of the Peary expedition are strictly persons, so it may be said, of them suffered sunstroke, but the agility with which the fluid climbed the tubes in Mr. Peary's thermometers annoyed them a good deal. If it weren't for supplementary figures which in justice to the explorer it is needless to give at this point, the reader would be justified in thinking that the pole hunters had made up their minds to take their Panama hats and duck trousers with them the next time they go north. But it wasn't quite as hot as that.

"The winter of 1905-6, which the Roosevelt spent at Cape Sheridan," complained Mr. Peary, "was comparatively warm, the thermometer having an average reading of only 54 degrees below zero. This was the antithesis of the winter the Alert spent not far from the same place 30 years before, when the average was 72 degrees below zero."

But of course it got even warmer than 54 degrees below zero after the sun rose early this year, and the Peary party set out from their winter haven in four detachments, with dogs and sledges, with their faces turned to the north.

When the heat got in its deadly work was in producing a great stretch of open water about 100 miles of the northern coast of Grant Land, which seriously delayed the advance northward. When this open stretch was closed with a thin coating of new ice, and the intrepid explorers had crossed it by a process analogous to what the boys call running "tiddle-de-bend-ers," small open stretches were encountered all of which delayed the party still further.

All these delays so consumed the time and provisions that when Peary had got to 87 degrees 6 minutes he felt that he had pushed his men to the last possible point consistent with a proper regard for their very natural desire to return alive. When the stereopticon man had flashed up on the screen a photograph showing the American flag straightened out before a westerly gale of "fartest north" point, while huddled before it were the seven shapeless furled creatures who had planted it there, Commander Peary said:

Bitterly Disappointed.
"As I saw the flag flying there I felt no sensation of elation. I was supremely tired and bitterly disappointed. It was something to beat the record, of course, but in comparison with that splendid jewel—the supreme accomplishment of my efforts and all the years I had spent in those efforts—I lost all feeling of triumph, especially when I looked at the drawn faces of my companions, at the emaciated dogs and the almost empty sledges. But I felt that I had cut the margin of safety as small as I dared."

Then Commander Peary told of the breathless rush backward, the race with the blizzard, when nona but Esquimaux could have led the party to victory, the heart-breaking second encounter with that open stretch of water, which the explorer likened to the River Styx, with all of life and love and hope lying upon its further side, and lastly, the head-on collision across it on snowshoes.

"Most of us were busy with our thoughts," he said, "and personally I don't care for another experience of that sort."

CHAMBERLAIN IS GOOD AS BURIED

Writer Says That So Far as Political Work is Concerned He is Dead.

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—Sir Charles Russell, writing to the Liverpool Daily Post, on the condition of Joseph Chamberlain, says: "It is admitted that the rabbi sent out about his convalescence was ignored. It is supplied by the chief votaries of tariff reform, and is simply so much dust thrown in the eyes of that large section of the public who do not know Mr. Chamberlain, may live twenty years. All hope he will, but as far as any political work is concerned, he is already as dead as though he were buried. Whether tariff reform can survive him is doubtful."

MONKEYS A FAD.

Washington Society Girls Have Discarded Bears for Monkeys.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., December 28.—The fad of carrying "Teddy bears," which started here and spread to all parts of the country, is certain to lose its fascination for the young women in the fashionable sets in the various cities of the country for the "Carnio monkey," which had been brought into great prominence through the quick wit of a local dealer and the trial of the famous grand opera tenor which recently occurred in New York. The fact that aruco became involved in his trouble in front of the monkey-bugs, gave the local dealer an idea. He took down his stock of bears which had lined the front of his window, and placed in their place all the monkeys he had in stock. He labelled them "Carnio monkeys."

A pretty young woman from Washington who is spending a part of the winter here was rather struck with the novelty of "the thing" and she bought one and went out on the Broadway with it in her arms, sign and all. Some of the fair promenaders became curious and wanted to know where she had purchased it. In a few days nearly all the women were carrying them and now some cannot go into a cafe that you will not see the women in nine parties out of ten carrying the "monkeys."

"Carnio has my sincere thanks for getting into the scrape," remarked the dealer. "For if he hadn't I'd had those monkeys on my hands yet."
