OUR INDIANS.

Major Winter Tells of the Surrender of Poundmaker.

Writing about "The Surrender of Poundmaker," Major C. F. Winter, in The Canadian Magazine for March says:

But though they made a brave show in coming in, they were much disconcerted at the reception accorded them, for General Middleton at once demanded their rifles, in proof of submission and surrender, before he would accord them a hearing. In a few curt words the General told them he demanded unconditional surrender. He had defeated Riel and taken him prisoner, and he had men and guns enough to crush both "Poundmaker" and "Big Bear," with all their people, if they still wanted fight. If they surrendered he could promise them nothing, but would represent their condition and views to the Government. He was a soldier sent there to put down the rebellion and he was going to do it, whether they surrendered or not, and if it took all summer. The men who murdered the Government Indian Agents and Farm Instructors at the beginning of the outbreak must be given up at once, before any safe conduct would be ensured the remainder. There was a little hesitation among the younger braves for a few moments. Sharp glances were directed right and left, and wistful ones cast backward to the slopes on the opposite side of the Battle River, as though mentally gauging the ability to get way in the event of a run for it. The comparative large number of volunteers, however, must have quickly shown what small prospect there was for successful opposition, and reluctantly (now reluctantly may be estimated from the fact that some were seen to kiss their rifles as they gave them up, a remarkable show of feeling for an Indian of the Plains), they handed over their arms to the detail ordered to secure them. Mostly all of thes rifles were 'Winchesters' of recent model, handier and much superior for the kind of fighting the Crees expected then the single-loading Snider-Enfield with which our Canadian troops were armed. Nearly all were decorated with notches, or brass-headed tacks upon stock and butt, indicative of some coup or lucky shot by which the owner believed he had placed an enemy hors de combat. Others indicated large game that had fallen to the aim of the owner.

BETTER THAN SPANKING

Spanking does not cure children of bed-wetting. There is a constitutional cause for this trouble. Mrs. M. Summers, Box W., 8, Windsor, Ont., will send free to any mother her successful home treatment, with full instructions. Send no money, but write her to-day if your children trouble you in this way. Don't blame the child; the chances are it can't help it. This treatment also cures adults and aged people troubled with like difficulties by day or night.

LIGHTS SEEN 33 MILES AWAY.

Unusual visibility of lights has been reported to the Hydrographic office by Capt. Thomas E. Clinch, of the Heald Bank lightship, Gulf of Mexico. He states that on the night of January 16 the fog cleared after being almost continuous for a week. At 8 a.m. on January 17 an object was sighted, which appeared to be a channel buoy or small boat. He lowered the motor boat and proceeded toward it.

After going in its direction for ten miles he made it out to be a schooner, hull down, probably six miles further away. At 7 p.m. the lights of the City of Galveston were plainly visible. Between 7 and 9 p.m. Bolivar light, thirty-three miles distant, was easily seen regularly flashing every ten seconds. The observations were taken from a height above sea level of ten feet.—Baltimore American.

MODERN.

(Puck.)

The Prodigal Son had returned disconsolate to the family fireside.

"But where is the fatted calf?" he complained querulously.

The Old Man was equal to the occasion. "In the front row of the chorus," he chuckled, waving a couple of seats for a burlesque show before the eyes of the Frodical Son. And together they made a night of it.

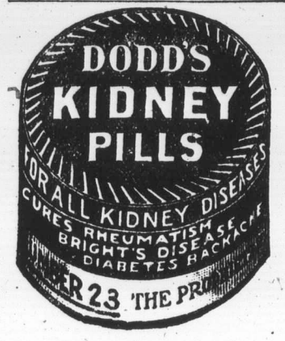
HOYLE.

The deacon's wife wanted to jot down the text, and leaning toward her scapegrace nephew, she whispered: "Have you a card about you?"

"You can't play in church," was the solemn answer. And the good woman was so flustered she forgot all about the text.

AN ASTRONOMICAL THEORY.

Because there is more light in the sky on a clear, moonless night than can be attributed to the stars, a German scientist has evolved a theory that the earth is surrounded by a luminous coma resembling that of comets.



LAWS FOR BELGIAN PAINTERS.

Restrictions Regarding Intoxicants—Employer's Responsibilities.

Belgium has just drawn up a special code of laws governing painters and the exercise of their craft which are singularly strict and exhaustive.

From the fashion in which the new laws hedge them in with enforced precautions one would think painting the most dangerous trade in the whole catalogue. In the first place no employer of painters may employ a man who drinks alcoholic beverages to the temporary extinction of his logical power, and no intoxicating liquors are to be brought into the vicinity of the workers. Employers are responsible for the care which their men take of their persons.

They must see that every painter washes his hands before eating, suspend the men whose health is not satisfactory, and discharge any one suffering from lead poisoning. A painter may not wear the same clothes on the street or in his home which he uses in his trade. He is imperatively required to arm himself with a special suit of clothes and a screened hat.

Contractors and master painters are restricted in the use of white lead to the ground lead mixed with oil, and it is stipulated that this mixture must be so handled that it does not splash or come in contact with the painter's hands.

The law strictly forbids scraping of dry painted surfaces in which white lead has been used. This will doubtless prevent much carelessness and protect the careless painter from his own indiscretion, but it is terribly restrictive and smacks of over-legislation.—From the Chicago Tribune.

THE FLORIDA SEMINOLES.

(Southern Workman.)

The Seminole Indians of Florida sit, eat and sleep on platforms raised about three feet from the ground under the roofs of their houses. In each village the houses are so arranged as to leave an open space in the middle of the camp and in the centre of this is the cooking-house. Here food is constantly kept on the fire, for there are no hard and fast meal hours.

They go about dressed in native costume. The men wear, on ordinary occasions, merely a shirt of gayly colored calico. To this they add, whenever they can obtain one, a derby hat and a few bandanna handkerchiefs around the neck. This is their ordinary dress.

On gala occasions they wear a turban, made of a shawl held together by a band of hammered silver, and sport an egret or an ostrich feather, beautiful woven belts with symbolic designs; leggings and moccasins of buckskin, and a gorgeous calico coat. The use of buckskin upper garments has long since been discontinued on account of the heat; the leggings and moccasins have survived, but are no longer worn about the camps, as they would soon become wet and useless.

The women are more fully clad than the men. Their costume consists of a skirt and a sleeved cap of calico. About their necks they wear enormous masses of beads, from the strings of which they often hang silver coins. Many of the women wear brooches or bangles beaten from silver coins by the native smiths. Like most Indians, the Seminoles do not care for gold in any form.

KISSING ON THE LIPS.

Every once in so often we read in the news of a handful of women getting up some kind of health organization, "to encourage good health and lessen the spread of consumption by discouraging the custon of kissing on the lips." Somehow, most of the members are in looks and age just of the type that are usually sought by the handsome young men who throw themselves at the feet of the beautiful and young and beg for kisses, though occasionally some young beauty does some active work in the ranks for a bluff.

NO ME BESE.

Hush-a-bye, hush-a-bye!
There no darling, don't you cry,
Lay your fuzzy head low on mammy's arm.
Rosebud lips must never pout,
Kissing habit's going out,
Mamma dear must shield her baby from the microbe's harm.

Shakey hands, shakey hands;
There now, baby understands,
Hold your daddy's finger tight in your little fist.
No, no, baby must not sip
Dread disease from daddy's lip,
Doctor man says baby's mouth never should be kissed.

"No me Bese: Kiss me not,
I'm a helpless little tot"—
See the lovely tag that's pinned there upon your dress.
Close those little sleepy eyes,
Still those fretful little cries,
Let that little head against Mamma's bosom press.

Still you kick and squirm, and fret:
What's the matter with you pet?
Will you stop if Mamma gives Baby dear a biscuit?
No, you rub your eyes and yell,
For your good-night kiss. Well, well,
Mamma's lips are aching, too, she'll kiss you dear, and risk it.

Man as Quadruped.

A prominent German biologist maintains that man made a serious mistake when in his development he made a biped of himself. He contends that the backbone structure of man was designed for a horizontal position, and that many of the ills which he is subject to are due to this departure.

AN ANCIENT STANDARD.

The grain, as a unit of measurement, was introduced by Henry III., who ordered a grain of wheat gathered from the middle of the ear to be the standard of weight.

"Of course, it was merely a lovers' quarrel. "I wish I could recall the past," she exclaimed. "I'd be satisfied to get my presents back," he retorted.

DO YOU SUSPECT YOUR KIDNEYS?

If You Have a Bad Back, Suffer From Dragging Weariness—It's Your Kidneys!

Proof of kidney sickness can always be found in the urine, which is full of sediment and is attended by a burning or scalding sensation. It hurts to stoop, to bend over, you have dizzy spells, stabbing pains run through the small of the back, downright weariness oppresses both body and mind.

What causes kidney trouble? What brings it on—even a strain will precipitate an attack, but better news is how to cure it. No remedy is so sure as Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut, which stop kidney trouble at its beginning. Dr. Hamilton's Pills put new life into sick kidneys—give them strength and vitality, tone them up so they can filter out the poisons, and instead of these stagnant wastes clogging up the blood and kidney cells, Dr. Hamilton's Pills cause them to be carried off through the urine and bowels, thereby preventing gout, rheumatism, gravel and Bright's Disease.

You'll quickly find health, comfort, strength, good blood, clear complexion and freedom from back-strain and weariness by the frequent use of Dr. Hamilton's Pills—they are mild and guaranteed to cure permanently. 25c per box, all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

DISPOSSESSED.

Women seated along the side of a surface car. In one place, between two women, a space of maybe six inches. Enter another woman, a big woman, who sees this narrow vacant space, and says to the women on either side of it:

"Will you move up a little?"

This they do, though they can't move much, a matter of an inch or two on either side, making that space perhaps eight or ten inches wide, still not big enough for anybody. But the big woman essays to sit in it, and once seated she crowds her way back into it, crowds and crowds until she has nearly flattened the two women beside her.

One of these two women rises finally and says to the big woman in a low tone, quietly and coolly:

"You would be more comfortable if you had the whole seat." And then the woman thus dispossessed stands up in front of the big woman and holds on by a strap.

THE GRAVE OF CARE.

We buried Care in an open grave,
And high as we tramped the sods,
The laugh and the song and the cheer we gave
Rang out to the Hill of Gods.
We buried Care with a right good will
And never a sigh gave we.
And over the mound we danced our fill
And planted the seeds of glee.
It's many a day since the seeds were sown
In a single mournful hour,
And up from the mound they all have grown
With many a charming flower.
There are Blossoms of Cheerfulness,
Buds of Mirth,
Sprigs of the Merry Heart;
There are perfumed flow'rs of the Joy of Earth
And Blossoms of the Better Part.
We water them as they grow and grow
With the tears of our revelry,
And hour by hour they nod and blow
To the beautiful sunlit sea.
So sing, oh, sing me a care-free song
And take me—I wot not where,
So the sun be warm and the day be long,
And the flow'rs on the grave of Care
—C. L. Armstrong, in Smart Set.

CONDITIONS IN CHINA.

They Make for Advancement of Religious and Educational Standards.

Few of those in the field look for an early conversion of the Chinese. Those who have learned how tough and massive is the race mind expect that centuries will elapse before the yellow race will be as permeated by Christianity as the white race already is. They remember that "it took Buddhims three hundred years before it obtained official recognition, and many centuries more before the mass of the people were influenced by it."

Nevertheless, none despond at the outlook, for they perceive that the aggressive rivalry of Christianity, coupled with the coming diffusion of education among the masses, is bound to raise continually the religious plane of the Chinese by forcing the native faiths to assume higher and higher forms in order to survive. A silent, secret permeation of the religions of the far east by the ideals and standards of Christianity is inevitable; and if eventually they prove capable of making a stand against the invader, it will be owing to their heavy borrowings from it.—From Prof. Edward Alsworth Ross' "Christianity in China" in the March Century.

MISSED IT.

(Metropolitan Magazine.)

A small boy from town was spending a few days in the country. One morning he heard the grown folks complaining of having been kept awake the night before by a skunk.

While burst into tears. "Why, Willie, what's the matter?" the fond mother inquired.

"Why didn't some one waks me up?" he blubbered. "I never smelled a skunk in all my life."

WHAT IS ELECTRICITY?

Many persons, young and old, often wonder how the modern electric cars, trains and locomotives are operated, and what electricity is. No one knows what electricity is. We know some of the things that it will do; we have, to a certain extent, learned how to control it, and, for want of a better name, we call it a fluid. We have discovered, too, that it is one of the most important forces, if not the most important force, of which we have any knowledge. We are almost as ignorant of many other great forces of nature, as, for example, the attraction of gravitation. For the present we must be content to observe such forces in action, and to devise the best methods to control them. In this knowledge mankind has progressed wonderfully within a few years.—From "Famous Pictures" in April St. Nicholas.

Poisoned by Catarrh

Catarrh is the most common source of self poisoning. Hour by hour, inflamed surfaces are pouring into the blood, many vicious substances that spread disease to every part of the body, and destroy vitality. Catarrhozone contains aromatic vegetable healing oils and balsams that effectively destroy catarrh germs; it heals congested surfaces, and prevents the formation of catarrhal poisons. Catarrhozone is extremely pleasant; it is not a drug cure, but exerts a constitutional, purifying effect. Catarrhozone reaches the intricate passage ways through which air enters the lungs and carries healing with it. It is the scientific remedy—is rational, and experience in tens of thousands of cases has proved Catarrhozone to be the only effective remedy for Catarrh, Bronchitis, Coughs, Colds and Irritable Throat. DIDN'T BELIEVE IN FLASHINESS.

The will of John W. Wallace, of Brooklyn, who died a few months ago, contained the following novel provisions, which, it is reported, were literally carried out:

"That my body shall be placed in a pine box not to cost more than $5, placed in an express wagon, and taken to a crematory, and that after cremation the ashes shall be scattered in a field; the entire cost of the disposal of the body not to exceed $50.

"My reason is that I believe that a man gets out of life all that he is entitled to, according to the amount of brain and energy he puts in, and when he dies he should not occupy ground that may be needed for highways or for planting corn or for any other purpose that further generations may have for it. I believe that when I die, my money, if I have any, should go to those dependent upon me, and not into expensive coffins and flowers."—Case and Comment.

DO MEN PROPOSE?

John Barrymore Thinks Engagements Come Unexpectedly.

"Did you ever stop to think about courtship and marriage and whether the man or the girl does the courting?" asks John Barrymore, star of "The Fortune Hunter." "Somewhere in one of his plays, George M. Cohan placed a line that runs: 'No man marries a woman; he is married by her.' That's pretty true when you come to reason it out. Not that the man is unwilling, but in normal cases you will find that the man proposes marriage only when the girl has made up her mind fully that he is the only man she wants. Then, intuitively, I reckon, she adroitly leads along to the declaration. Perhaps it's right, too, for the average woman has the hardest part of the average married life.

"This must have been in Winchell Smith's mind when he wrote 'The Fortune Hunter,' for he shows two sides to this question in his comedy—one is which Nat Duncan is coached to take advantage of that theory by so behaving, dressing and acting that he will attract the heiress until she shall have come to the point of believing Nat is the man she wants and she determines to get him. The other side is the sweet, pure girl love of Betty, the poor druggist's daughter. But Nat never would have realized that his feeling for Betty was love if she had not awakened the realization of it when she returned from school and unconsciously led him to a knowledge of her feelings for him that made him tell her he had just become engaged to Josie, the village heiress. That the play ends happily is a matter of stagecraft, but in real life Nat probably would have married Josie.

"I truly believe that any average woman can marry any average man she wants under normal circumstances. The man's courtship begins when he discovers that he has found favor in the eyes of a girl who, perhaps, has only faintly attracted him. Soon he begins to take notice and assumes a self-satisfied air—somewhat of proprietorship—and she is letting the courting go only as she desires it to go. She does the things he likes, give him food that pleases him, shows herself at her best and develops in his mind the idea that she would make a pretty fine wife.

"As a matter of fact," says Barrymore, "novels to the contrary nowithstanding, there are mighty few out-and-out proposals. The youth and maid drift along, guided by the unseen rudder, however, until a time comes when the matter of their marriage is recognized as being only a question of arrangement. They talk over the date, she sets it and a formal engagement is announced. She has done it all, but you couldn't get one man in a hundred to admit it."

Chinese Rice Paper.

Chinese rice-paper has no rice in its composition. The curiously brittle, pure white material used for the marvelous drawings of Chinese artists is manufactured from the pith of a tree peculiar to Formosa. The first paper was not made of raw cotton, nor by the Chinese. Rag paper was made in Arabia more then ten centuries ago, and the Crusaders brought the industry to Europe, where the first paper manufactory was established in the last part of the thirteenth century.

HIS $105 WAS SAFE.

(New York Sun.)

"There was $105 in the left trousers' pocket," panted a white-faced man, as he all but fell into the little tailor's pressing and cleaning shop.

The tailor glanced at the excited citizen and went on pushing the goose.

After a minute the new arrival got his breath, but lost his temper. "I say, there was $105 in the left trousers' pocket," he repeated, shaking his fist.

"Vell, did I sedt dere vasn't?" the little tailor asked. "Dere iss de pants. Mebby he iss dere yedt," pointing to a pair of trousers on a nail.

The left pocket gave up a roll of bills and a cigaret case the right pocket a bunch of keys, a penknife, and a pound of other junk; the right back pocket a magazine pistol and a handkerchief, the left back pocket a big memorandum book and the fob pocket a watch with fob and charm attached, and some bills tightly folded.

After the absent-minded one had given the tailor $5 for his "honesty" the knight of the goose soliloquized: "Some day dot feller forgit his head."

A PRACTICAL SERMON.

Sympathy and encouragement was the keynote of an impressive address in Erskine church yesterday morning by Rev. S. Burnside Russell. The kindly look, the sympathetic word, the noble act toward those one daily comes in contact with, in the home, the workshop, place of business—no matter where—will do much to encourage, and some merchants would do well oftimes to have a kindly word of praise to the deserving ones in their employ, instead of carping criticism. To give them a kindly look, a sympathetic word, or a few days' holidaying would be helpful.

A NEW ALLOY.

H. B. Weeks, the chief chemist of Messrs. Vickers Sons and Maxim's Works, Barrow, states that they have found an alloy which they believe to be superior to anything of its kind hitherto manufactured, and that the company has decided to manufacture it on a large scale at Birmingham. While being slightly heavier than pure aluminum, it is as strong as steel, and it can be rolled, drawn, stamped, extended or forged at suitable temperatures. It is less corrodible than other high aluminum alloys under all the usual corrosive tests. It is only one third the weight of brass.

Big Paint Value--Ramsay's Paints

Established seventy years ago, the leading brand in Canada to-day for good paint value is Ramsay's Paint.

The name is a household word throughout Canada from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and to those who know are looked upon as the standard in paints.

They are of such durability, beauty, and tone that they are unequalled in giving entire satisfaction to all who use them. While these paints are thoroughly tested and the product of years' experience, they are positively pure, wear fullest paint life, and at the same time they are Canadian made. Ramsay's Paints are certainly giving great pleasure and satisfaction to thousands of homes throughout the country.
