PEACE AND SELF INTEREST.

(Detroit Free Press.)

A great defect in all these schemes of peace promoters and disarmament enthusiasts is that they hope to create an artificial condition of placidity without natural incentive, and fail to take into account the element of self-interest which alone can make a peace pact of practical value. Alliances, ententes and treaties among nations having common interests among nations having common interests among have played large parts in the history of the world and have led to prolonged periods of peace as well as to bloody wars, but they generally have been enduring and valuable in close proportion to the strength of their appeal to self-interest among parties concerned. The Greatest Invention of the Age and Highly Endorsed by Press and Public.

THIS DEVICE has been thoroughly tested in Winnipeg over the roughest roads, and on a street strewn with all kinds of obstacles. The test which was a very severe one was fully successful as the following will show:

pog "Free Press" April 17th, says: "The McCracken Steering Device received a severe test Thursday afternoon and to the delight of hundreds of weary armed Ford owners the performance was convincing in the extreme."

pog "Tologram" April 17th, says: "The cruical test was over the worst and roughest roads that could be found; bridges and our tracks—the latter at a very acute angle. The car ran true and tracked perfectly. The test proved a great success."

alpeg "Tribuno" April 17th, says: "Fogd Carn fitted with the McCracken Steer-ing Device were driven over timbers, tracks and obstructions of a nature that would put a non-equipped car in the dick. CAMPHOR'S TRAIL OF BLOOD.

The Cost in Human Lives for Gathering the Pungent Drug.

Every drop of campnor you use is estimated to have cost at least its weight in human blood. There are few things which demand a heavier toll of lives than this pungent drug. which is so widely used for keeping moths out of our clothes and for making liniments and other remedies.

The reason for this is that mountainous parts of the island of Formosa, from which the world gets most of its camphor, are inhabited by head hunting savages, whom the suc-cessive invaders of the island have been unable to subdue. These savages are quite alive to the value of the camphor trees and fiercely oppose all attempts to get possession of the forests. Their hostility makes the gathering of camphor a most hazardous occupation and one in which a loaded rifle is the most indispensable tool. Since the Japanese took the island after their successful campaign against China in the nineties they have been carrying on a carefully conceived plan of gradual penetration of the valuable camphor regions. They make paths six feet in width through the virgin forests. At intervals of every 120 yards stands a guardhouse, and every fourth or fifth guardhouse, is a small fort, entrenched and defended by barbed wire entanglements, such as are being used on the battle grounds of Europe. Telephonic intercommunication, machine guns and all the resources of western military science are employed, and the line are pushed gradually forward. In spite of these elaborate precautions, the loss among the camphor gatherers amounts to hundreds of deaths annually. It is calculated that Formosa contains about a million camphor trees, some 10,000 of which are cut down every year. At this rate the supply will be exhausted in a hundred years, but when the country is thoroughly pacified there is no doubt that the Japanese will see that restorestation is properly undertaken and an inexhaust-ible supply insured. The savages who are making so much trouble are estimated to number about 120,000, and a further twelve years will, it is thought, be required to subdue them.-New York American.

Boys as They Eat. Jerome K. Jerome in one of his unconsciously sentimental but consciously clever essays remarks.

It is amusing to see boy eat, when you have not got to pay for it. Their idea of a square meal is a pound and a half of roast beef with five or six good sized potatoes (soapy ones pre-ferred, as being more substantial), plenty of greens, and four thick slices of Yorkshire pudding, followed by a couple of currant d'mplings, a few green apples, a pen'orth of nuts, half a dozen jumbles and a bottle of ginger beer. After that they play at horses. How they must despise us men, who require to sit quiet for a couple of heurs after dining off a spoonful of clear soup and the wing of a chicken.

A ROBIN IN THE RAIN O robin in the evening rain. Singing thus your heart away In such merry, mirthful strain, Know you not 'tis close of day.

Know you not the shadows creep Softly, oh, so softly near, That the garden sinks to sleep

'Neath the rain mist's cover drear! Hearing you, I think you are Some shy shadow, given song, Sending mystic music far The twilight's dusty aisles along.

Why such bubbling blithesome giee? Are you singing in your dreams? Golden visions do you see Of meadows bright and woodland streams?

Tell me the secret—how you sing
When eve is gray on hill and glen,
So shall I learn how I may bring Sweet comfort to my fellow men. Oh, Robin in the evening rain, Perhaps the secret I have guessed; You're singing o'er this glad refrain To some one in a sheltered nest.

You think not of the shadowed sky,
Of sound where wind wraiths creep and stir;
Love watches in that nest close by
And you are singing just for her!

Cavalry Mounts Revel in the Dash and Fury of the Charge.

It will probably surprise you, said a retired colonel of hussars, to learn that a cavalry horse usually enjoys a battle at least as much as his rider and displays as much courage in it. He will chafe and stamp with impatience while waiting for the order to charge, and at the signal will dash forward like a greyhound released from the leash, full of fire and fury and often neighing wildly. At the moment of contact with the enemy he will rear, striking and biting savagely at the opposing horses and trampling down the infantry. When his rider falls he will dash along with his fellows and crash as gallantly into the foe. In the famous charge of the Light Brigade scores of rid riess horses swept down the ley of death," thundering through the smeke on to the Russian guns, and galloped back in safety with the shat-tered retnant of the brigade.
