A GOOD FATR.

Last year the directors of the West Kent Fair promised us a good ex-hibition and we got it. They had a good attendance, and by careful man-argement were able to meet all the obligations of the year, and in addi-tion were able to reduce the society's tion were able to reduce the society's libbility about eight hundred dollars. This was so very encouraging that they determined to make the Fair this year much better than ever and merit a large attendance. Two or three more years like the last would place the society on an independent basis and make their financial position very support of the property of the society of the societ basis and make their financial position very much stronger.

This is the only County Fair we have, and the directors naturally look to every resident of the County and city to do everything possible to help it along. Take pride in it, Mr.
Reader, and make it a success. The directors devote very considerable and valuable time to the promotion of our annual exhibition; they do it only from good will for the welfare of the city and county; they are not paid in any manner whatever, and it is only right that they should receive every possible assistance and encouragement.
