The New Land District

The new land district, which will be known as the Peace River district, will include, roughly speaking, the square of Alberta north and west of Athabasca Landing. The exact southern boundary is the 69th township which is three townships north of the Landing. The district extends to the east as far as range 4, west of the 4th and at the 85th township, the east boundary extends to the 5th meridian itself. The district also takes in the 3,500,000 acres in British Columbia, the centre of which is Fort St. John. This section is included as it is most easily reached through Alberta.

A distinctive feature in connection with the colonization of the Last Northwest will be the opening up on May 24th, for filing claims, of the Peace River Landing and Spirit River settlements. The settlements have recently been surveyed into river lots of all sizes and shapes.

The Peace River settlement is about two miles long by half a mile wide, and the Spirit River settlement is about double the size. Each has between one and two hundred squatters, mostly halfbreeds.

After the opening for filing of these settlements, all the present holders are notified by the Dominion lands office and they are given six months to file before any outside person has an opportunity to make an entry.

Alberta's Prosperity

Although the wheat crop of Alberta is commonly regarded as the mainstay of the province and the chief source of the wealth of the people, there are other items of productive agriculture that are far from being unimportant in the provincial balance sheet. A reference to the agricultural statistics of Alberta for 1908 makes this very plain. During that year there were shipped 11,416 horses, valued at $1,255,760; 53,420 cattle, 35,389 butchers' cattle, and 5,570 feed cattle, valued altogether at $4,220,000. It is stated that there are now in the province 175,000 range horses, 750,000 cattle, 145,000 sheep, and 25,000 cattle are now being fed while waiting for shipment. During last year there were also exported 25,802 sheep, valued at $129,000, and 49,163 hogs valued at $433,467.

These form a basis for Alberta's prosperity irrespective of the wheat crop, although with an average yield of 30 bushels to the acre the proceeds of the grain yield a large sum to a comparatively small population. With increased settlement, mixed husbandry will become more largely followed and the sales of stock and dairy products will become proportionately larger as compared with the sums realized from grain. No province has better prospects than Alberta, and her prosperity will be of no little benefit to British Columbia.—Vancouver News Advertiser.
