General Debility, and for Purifying the Blood.

This Sarsaparifla is a combination of vegetable alteratives—Stillingia, Mandrake, Yellow Dock—with the Iodides of Potassium and Iron, and is the most efficacious medicine yet known for the diseases it is intended to cure.

Its ingredients are so skilfully combined, that the full alterative effect of each is assured, and while it is so mild as to be harmless even to children, it is still so effectual as to purge out from the system those impurities and corruptions which develop into loathsome disease.

The reputation it enjoys is derived from its cures, and the confidence which prominent physicians all over the country repose in it, prove their experience of its usefulness.

Certificates attesting its virtues have accumulated, and are constantly being received, and as many of these cases are publicly known, they furnish convincing sydence of the superiority of this Sarsaparilla over-every other alterative medicine. So generally is its superibrity to any other medicine known, that we need do no more than to assure the public that the best qualities it has ever possessed are strictly maintained.

This eloquent divine combines in his mental organization two essential faculties that tend to give the one who possesses them power over an audience—the ability to round his periods and fluency in expressing the same. Every sentence falls finished from his lips as from a mould. He rivets the eyes and chains the ears of his auditors, and even the reporter's pen is arrested by the power of his eloquence. The colors of the spectrum exhibit a sequence analogous to the sequence of pitch in the musical gamut. According to Newton's be lief there might be a correspondence between the length of the spectrum colors and the vibrations of musical sound, but the true relationship is between the vibrating pitch of color and the vibrating pitch of color and the vibrating pitch of sound. An octave in music is embraced in the extreme limits of the spectrum. The following will show the striking analogy between music and color: Calling red 100, the proportionate vibration of orange is 89; that of yellow, 81; of green, 75; of blue, 69; of indigo, 64; of violet, 60; of ultra-violet, 53; and an extreme violet, 50. PARIS, Feb. 24, 1877.
The lady in charge of the fashions department insists on occupying the cable this week. Everything, says Her Ladyship, yields importance to the spring fashions; therefore, place aux dames.

Yellow in all sorts of shades is now the fashion. It runs through a series of gorgeous tints, including orange and a brimstone hue called "Lucifer." I am sorry to say that the ladies prefer the latter.

MANTLES.

From the Burlington Hawkeye.

About 2 weeks ago a young lady broke through the ice of a deep pond near Toronto, and a young man got her out at the risk of his own life. As the half-drowned girl was recovering consciousness her agonized father arrived on the spot. Taking one of her cold, white hands in one of his own, he reached out the other for the hand of her rescuer, but the young man, realizing his danger, with one frightened glance, broke for the woods, and was soon lost to view. He has not been heard of since, and it is sopposed that he is travelling in Fleeing From Bliss.

For carliest spring costumes the new trimming is cloth and braid with floss silk. Another novel trimming is parallel rows of silk tape in different shades. In other fashionable fringes seed feedles are used freely-with imitation feathers in sunbeam shades.

A Toprist, who thought he must conform to the fashionable mania of paying a visit to the Falls of Niagara, arrived at the Falls, and on taking a look at the surrounding wonders addressed himself to a gentleman with —"And is this Niagara Falls?"
—"Yes," was the reply.—"And what is there to make such a bother about?"
—"Why," said the gentleman, "do you not see that mighty river, the deep abyss, the great sheet of water pouring down?"—"The tourist looked at the water, and replied, hesitatingly, "An' what's to hinder it?"
