Newcastle's Board of Trade Active

(Continued from page 1.) On their lots. The Pulp Co. had paid $15,000 for lands that no lumberer would want and had every interest in keeping their pulp lands continually productive. Penalizing stumps would destroy the Pulp business.

Monday's Meeting

The Board of Trade had the pleasure of the attendance of Hon. Geo. J. Clark, Premier and Minister of Lands and Mines, Hon. J. A. Murray, Minister of Agriculture, and Hon. John Morrison, Minister of Public Works, at their meeting Monday afternoon. Hon. D. Morrison was chairman. A large number of members were present.

The Secretary, Mr. E. A. McCurdy, spoke of the Agricultural College wanted by the North Shore. The lumber industry could not be depended on to always last. We must look to the farming interests and give our boys a chance to get an agricultural education.

Hon. J. D. Creighton and Ald. H. H. Stuart spoke on the same subject. Hon. D. Morrison spoke about the great difficulty in getting land under the Labor Act. Some had been three or five years getting it. The government seemed to be under the impression that this country was good only for lumber. But we had good farm lands also. And our young men were forced to leave the country. The policy of the government was to let settlers on the land.

Hon. J. A. Murray said that an acted Minister of Lands and Mines for nine months. The difficulty he had found was that applicant would go on land before it was examined, and then find some objection. The examination proved unfavorable and the application was refused. When application is approved, the land is taken from the Dominion fund. The day after that no lumberman had the right to go on the land.

The man could do so for four or five months a year. If the Rogersville man had not exceeded his limit and had complied with all the conditions he could have held his land. Lumbermen have the right to cut all logs of the grant down to a log 16 ft. long and 9 inches at top end.

The Premier said that if a body of men could be got who could prevent every violation of law made them the government at once. His experience was that it was impossible to follow every violator. If the government were given evidence that amounted to proof, the lumber cut, the one who cut it would have to pay double stumpage and other costs. In so far as it is possible for the department to prevent this, it will be prevented. If attention is called to it, and any penalty provided by the law will be imposed.

The Premier said that a bona fide farmer without any wood on his own land might get a wood lot from the government if there were no lumber on the lot. It was not the government's policy to sell any lumber lands to anybody. Isolated crown lands might be sold. Men often came to Crown Land office to be settled on their merits. It was the government's policy that the North Shore should have a College as soon as possible. It afforded him much pleasure to meet so many business men from the county. The Labor Act provided for locating settlers on land. Crown Whenever any applicant and contained certain conditions by which land is acquired. The Premier stated to what in case of the lumberman cutting trees smaller than those set by the government. He cited the case of past had been that man had set down on your land. The man had cut, had left the country. True, the soil was examined when grants were asked. The aim was to set off localities for settlement and to determine what was good for farming.

Hon. Mr. Morrison said that when one was in the way of getting a grant, along came someone and stripped his land of everything down to five inches. The applicant had the right to cut the ten acres he clears, and no one else had the right to cut on the rest of the land, down to five inches. Hon. Mr. Morrison brought up the case was that just before the issuing of the grant, the lumberman cut down everything to four or five inches. The applicant should have a most rigorous regulation of the lumber. He knew of two or three Rogersville people who lost their lands by not living all the time on them. The object was to get settlers, and here the object had miscarried.

Hon. J. A. Murray said that an acted Minister of Lands and Mines for nine months. The difficulty he had found was that applicant would go on land before it was examined, and then find some objection. The examination proved unfavorable and the application was refused. When application is approved, the land is taken from the Dominion fund. The day after that no lumberman had the right to go on the land. Hon. Mr. Morrison—Then he is a trespasser. Hon. Mr. Morrison—This applicant, not having a grant, has no remedy at law. Hon. Mr. Murray said that it was difficult to keep trespassers off land, but there was a continuous effort to preserve the land for the settlers. Every complaint would be looked into and adjusted. The Premier said that evidently there was lots of misinformation abroad in reference to the administration of the Labor Act. The latter part of the year was necessary provided that when it was necessary to leave the land to earn a living place than ever before, and very soon N. B. would be recognized as one of the best farming countries in the world. Any suggestion from the Board of Trade would always be welcomed. The North Shore would not be neglected. The chairman expressed himself as well pleased with the interview. He was sure that the Ministers had the best interests of the people at heart. He asked any member of the Board that might have any comments to lay it before the government.
