Against Slavery.

THE LETTER OF THE POPE, "IN FLUENTIA," TO THE BISHOP OF BRAZIL.

VENERABLE BROTHERS, HEATH AND THE APOSTOLIC BLESSING.

Amid the many and great demonstrations of affection which from almost all the people of the earth have come to us, and are still coming to us, in congratulation upon the happy attainment of the fiftieth anniversary of our priesthood, there is one which moves us in a quite special way. We mean one which comes from Brazil, where, upon the occasion of this happy event, large numbers of those who in that vast empire groan beneath the yoke of slavery, have been loyally set free. And this work, so full of the spirit of Christian mercy, has been offered up in co-operation with the clergy, by charitable members of the laity of both sexes to God, the Author and giver of all good things, in testimony of the gratitude for the favor of the health and the years which have been granted to us. But this was specially acceptable and sweet to us because it lent confirmation to the belief, which is so well come to us, that the great majority of the people of Brazil desire to see the cruelty of slavery ended, and rooted out from the land. This popular feeling has been strongly seconded by the Emperor and his august daughter, and by the Ministers, by means of various laws which, with this end in view, have been introduced and sanctioned. We told the Brazilian Ambassador last January what a consolation these things were to us, and we also assured him that we would address letters to the Bishops of Brazil in behalf of these unhappy slaves.

We, indeed, to all men are the Vicar of Christ, the Son of God, who so loved the human race, that not only did he not refuse to take on nature to Himself, to live among men, but delighted in the name of the Son of Man; openly proclaiming that he had come upon earth to preach the Gospel to all creatures. In order that, rescuing mankind from the worst slavery, he might establish all things that are in heaven and on earth, He might bring back all the children of Adam from the depths of the ruin of the common fall to their original dignity. The words of St. Gregory the Great are very applicable here: "Sicut our Redeemer, the Author of our life, deigned to take human flesh, that by the power of His Godhead the chains by which we were held in bondage being broken, He might restore to us our first state of liberty, it is most fitting that men by the concession of manumission should restore to the freedom in which they were born by nature. For if we sent free into the world, but instead of being condemned to the yoke of slavery by the laws of nations." It is right, therefore, and obviously in keeping with Our apostolic Office, that we should favor and advance by every means in Our power whatever helps to secure for men, whether as individuals or as communities, safeguards against the many miseries, which, if they were not an evil tree, have sprung from the sin of our first parent, and such safeguards of whatever kind they may be, help not only to promote civilization and the amenities of life, but also to the universal restitution of all things which our Redeemer Jesus Christ contemplated and desired. In the presence of so much suffering, the condition of life in that land on that universal restitution of all things which our Redeemer Jesus Christ contemplated and desired. In the presence of so much suffering, the condition of life in that land on that universal restitution of all things which our Redeemer Jesus Christ contemplated and desired.
