

"Like your own generous and truthful nature, I feel I can express my gratitude for the gift of this book, which I have been reading with interest and pleasure. It is a most valuable addition to my collection, and I am sure it will be read by many others who are interested in the history of our country. I am, Sir, very respectfully,
Yours,
John W. G. ...

CHAPTER VII.
A SECOND PLAN OF ASSASSINATION.
As these words of unadorned truth and deep feeling, which were spoken in such a frank and unaffected manner, and by one of his own kind, and in such a way as to impress the hearts of all who heard him, it is not surprising that he was hailed with the greatest interest and sympathy. He was, however, silent for a moment, and then said, "I have no objection to your plan, but I think it would be better to wait until we have more information. I am, Sir, very respectfully,
Yours,
John W. G. ...

THE ASSASSINATION TRIAL.
When the news of the brutal murder of Mr. McGee reached the country on the morning of the 13th, it was with a feeling of horror and astonishment. The fact that the murderer had been so young, and that he had been so easily led into the crime, was a matter of deep concern to all who were interested in the welfare of the country. It was felt that the government should take prompt action to prevent such a tragedy from occurring again. The trial of the murderer was held in Montreal on the 15th of April, and was attended by a large number of people. The case was heard before the Superior Court, and the jury returned a verdict of guilty. The murderer was sentenced to the penitentiary for a term of years. The trial was a most interesting one, and it was a lesson to all who were present. It showed that even a young man can be led into a crime, and that the government must be on its guard against such a possibility.
It was a warning to all who were interested in the welfare of the country.

intriguing designer, who needs an agent, supplies that he can be induced by any one. Therefore, one day, when the agent came to his room to ask for the loan of a sum of money, he found the door locked. He tried to break it down, but in vain. He then called to the agent, who was standing outside, and asked him to come in. The agent did so, and found the designer sitting at his desk. The designer then told him the story of the lock, and how he had been tricked by the agent. The agent then apologized, and said that he would not do so again.
The designer then gave him the money, and the agent left.
The designer then wrote a letter to the agent, in which he told him of the lock, and how he had been tricked by the agent. The agent then showed the letter to the author, who then wrote the story.

CHAPTER VIII.
THE ASSASSINATION TRIAL.
The trial of the murderer of Mr. McGee
was held in Montreal on the 15th of April, and was attended by a large number of people. The case was heard before the Superior Court, and
the jury returned a verdict of guilty.
The murderer was sentenced to the
penitentiary for a term of years.
The trial was a most interesting
one, and it was a lesson to all who were present. It showed that even a young man can be led into
a crime, and that the government
must be on its guard against such a possibility. It was a warning to all who were interested in the welfare of the country.

THE ASSASSINATION TRIAL.
The trial of the murderer of Mr. McGee
was held in Montreal on the 15th of
April, and was attended by a large
number of people. The case was
heard before the Superior Court, and
the jury returned a verdict of guilty.
The murderer was sentenced to the
penitentiary for a term of years.
The trial was a most interesting
one, and it was a lesson to all
who were present. It showed that
even a young man can be led into
a crime, and that the government
must be on its guard against such
a possibility. It was a warning to
all who were interested in the
welfare of the country.

CHURCHMAN AND FRENCH REPUBLICANISM.
Also for those true-hearted statesmen, who would be guided by reason and common sense, they are thrust to the wall by the selfish and narrow motives of personal ambition.

THE ASSASSINATION TRIAL.
The trial of the murderer of Mr. McGee
was held in Montreal on the 15th of
April, and was attended by a large
number of people. The case was
heard before the Superior Court, and
the jury returned a verdict of guilty.
The murderer was sentenced to the
penitentiary for a term of years.
The trial was a most interesting
one, and it was a lesson to all
who were present. It showed that
even a young man can be led into
a crime, and that the government
must be on its guard against such
a possibility. It was a warning to
all who were interested in the
welfare of the country.

THE ASSASSINATION TRIAL.
The trial of the murderer of Mr. McGee
was held in Montreal on the 15th of
April, and was attended by a large
number of people. The case was
heard before the Superior Court, and
the jury returned a verdict of guilty.
The murderer was sentenced to the
penitentiary for a term of years.
The trial was a most interesting
one, and it was a lesson to all
who were present. It showed that
even a young man can be led into
a crime, and that the government
must be on its guard against such
a possibility. It was a warning to
all who were interested in the
welfare of the country.

REMONDVILLE.
REMONDVILLE.—Last Monday night Mr.
Allan's horse broke away from the
stable, and was seen galloping across the bridge and up the hill. A boy who was drawing a load of scum on the hillside, saw the horse, and ran after it. The horse ran over the boy, and then over the fence, and into the street. It was seen by Mr. Allan's dog, which barked and ran after it. The horse was seen by Mr. Allan, who called to
it. The horse then ran back to the stable, and was caught.

THE ASSASSINATION TRIAL.
The trial of the murderer of Mr. McGee
was held in Montreal on the 15th of
April, and was attended by a large
number of people. The case was
heard before the Superior Court, and
the jury returned a verdict of guilty.
The murderer was sentenced to the
penitentiary for a term of years.
The trial was a most interesting
one, and it was a lesson to all
who were present. It showed that
even a young man can be led into
a crime, and that the government
must be on its guard against such
a possibility. It was a warning to
all who were interested in the
welfare of the country.

THE ASSASSINATION TRIAL.
The trial of the murderer of Mr. McGee
was held in Montreal on the 15th of
April, and was attended by a large
number of people. The case was
heard before the Superior Court, and
the jury returned a verdict of guilty.
The murderer was sentenced to the
penitentiary for a term of years.
The trial was a most interesting
one, and it was a lesson to all
who were present. It showed that
even a young man can be led into
a crime, and that the government
must be on its guard against such
a possibility. It was a warning to
all who were interested in the
welfare of the country.

REMONDVILLE.
REMONDVILLE.—Last Monday night Mr.
Allan's horse broke away from the
stable, and was seen galloping across
the bridge and up the hill. A boy who
was drawing a load of scum on the
hillside, saw the horse, and ran
after it. The horse ran over the
boy, and then over the fence, and
into the street. It was seen by
Mr. Allan's dog, which barked and
ran after it. The horse was
seen by Mr. Allan, who called to
it. The horse then ran back to
the stable, and was caught.

THE ASSASSINATION TRIAL.
The trial of the murderer of Mr. McGee
was held in Montreal on the 15th of
April, and was attended by a large
number of people. The case was
heard before the Superior Court, and
the jury returned a verdict of guilty.
The murderer was sentenced to the
penitentiary for a term of years.
The trial was a most interesting
one, and it was a lesson to all
who were present. It showed that
even a young man can be led into
a crime, and that the government
must be on its guard against such
a possibility. It was a warning to
all who were interested in the
welfare of the country.

THE ASSASSINATION TRIAL.
The trial of the murderer of Mr. McGee
was held in Montreal on the 15th of
April, and was attended by a large
number of people. The case was
heard before the Superior Court, and
the jury returned a verdict of guilty.
The murderer was sentenced to the
penitentiary for a term of years.
The trial was a most interesting
one, and it was a lesson to all
who were present. It showed that
even a young man can be led into
a crime, and that the government
must be on its guard against such
a possibility. It was a warning to
all who were interested in the
welfare of the country.

REMONDVILLE.
REMONDVILLE.—Last Monday night Mr.
Allan's horse broke away from the
stable, and was seen galloping across
the bridge and up the hill. A boy who
was drawing a load of scum on the
hillside, saw the horse, and ran
after it. The horse ran over the
boy, and then over the fence, and
into the street. It was seen by
Mr. Allan's dog, which barked and
ran after it. The horse was
seen by Mr. Allan, who called to
it. The horse then ran back to
the stable, and was caught.

THE ASSASSINATION TRIAL.
The trial of the murderer of Mr. McGee
was held in Montreal on the 15th of
April, and was attended by a large
number of people. The case was
heard before the Superior Court, and
the jury returned a verdict of guilty.
The murderer was sentenced to the
penitentiary for a term of years.
The trial was a most interesting
one, and it was a lesson to all
who were present. It showed that
even a young man can be led into
a crime, and that the government
must be on its guard against such
a possibility. It was a warning to
all who were interested in the
welfare of the country.

THE ASSASSINATION TRIAL.
The trial of the murderer of Mr. McGee
was held in Montreal on the 15th of
April, and was attended by a large
number of people. The case was
heard before the Superior Court, and
the jury returned a verdict of guilty.
The murderer was sentenced to the
penitentiary for a term of years.
The trial was a most interesting
one, and it was a lesson to all
who were present. It showed that
even a young man can be led into
a crime, and that the government
must be on its guard against such
a possibility. It was a warning to
all who were interested in the
welfare of the country.

REMONDVILLE.
REMONDVILLE.—Last Monday night Mr.
Allan's horse broke away from the
stable, and was seen galloping across
the bridge and up the hill. A boy who
was drawing a load of scum on the
hillside, saw the horse, and ran
after it. The horse ran over the
boy, and then over the fence, and
into the street. It was seen by
Mr. Allan's dog, which barked and
ran after it. The horse was
seen by Mr. Allan, who called to
it. The horse then ran back to
the stable, and was caught.

THE ASSASSINATION TRIAL.
The trial of the murderer of Mr. McGee
was held in Montreal on the 15th of
April, and was attended by a large
number of people. The case was
heard before the Superior Court, and
the jury returned a verdict of guilty.
The murderer was sentenced to the
penitentiary for a term of years.
The trial was a most interesting
one, and it was a lesson to all
who were present. It showed that
even a young man can be led into
a crime, and that the government
must be on its guard against such
a possibility. It was a warning to
all who were interested in the
welfare of the country.

THE ASSASSINATION TRIAL.
The trial of the murderer of Mr. McGee
was held in Montreal on the 15th of
April, and was attended by a large
number of people. The case was
heard before the Superior Court, and
the jury returned a verdict of guilty.
The murderer was sentenced to the
penitentiary for a term of years.
The trial was a most interesting
one, and it was a lesson to all
who were present. It showed that
even a young man can be led into
a crime, and that the government
must be on its guard against such
a possibility. It was a warning to
all who were interested in the
welfare of the country.

REMONDVILLE.
REMONDVILLE.—Last Monday night Mr.
Allan's horse broke away from the
stable, and was seen galloping across
the bridge and up the hill. A boy who
was drawing a load of scum on the
hillside, saw the horse, and ran
after it. The horse ran over the
boy, and then over the fence, and
into the street. It was seen by
Mr. Allan's dog, which barked and
ran after it. The horse was
seen by Mr. Allan, who called to
it. The horse then ran back to
the stable, and was caught.

THE ASSASSINATION TRIAL.
The trial of the murderer of Mr. McGee
was held in Montreal on the 15th of
April, and was attended by a large
number of people. The case was
heard before the Superior Court, and
the jury returned a verdict of guilty.
The murderer was sentenced to the
penitentiary for a term of years.
The trial was a most interesting
one, and it was a lesson to all
who were present. It showed that
even a young man can be led into
a crime, and that the government
must be on its guard against such
a possibility. It was a warning to
all who were interested in the
welfare of the country.

THE ASSASSINATION TRIAL.
The trial of the murderer of Mr. McGee
was held in Montreal on the 15th of
April, and was attended by a large
number of people. The case was
heard before the Superior Court, and
the jury returned a verdict of guilty.
The murderer was sentenced to the
penitentiary for a term of years.
The trial was a most interesting
one, and it was a lesson to all
who were present. It showed that
even a young man can be led into
a crime, and that the government
must be on its guard against such
a possibility. It was a warning to
all who were interested in the
welfare of the country.

REMONDVILLE.
REMONDVILLE.—Last Monday night Mr.
Allan's horse broke away from the
stable, and was seen galloping across
the bridge and up the hill. A boy who
was drawing a load of scum on the
hillside, saw the horse, and ran
after it. The horse ran over the
boy, and then over the fence, and
into the street. It was seen by
Mr. Allan's dog, which barked and
ran after it. The horse was
seen by Mr. Allan, who called to
it. The horse then ran back to
the stable, and was caught.

THE ASSASSINATION TRIAL.
The trial of the murderer of Mr. McGee
was held in Montreal on the 15th of
April, and was attended by a large
number of people. The case was
heard before the Superior Court, and
the jury returned a verdict of guilty.
The murderer was sentenced to the
penitentiary for a term of years.
The trial was a most interesting
one, and it was a lesson to all
who were present. It showed that
even a young man can be led into
a crime, and that the government
must be on its guard against such
a possibility. It was a warning to
all who were interested in the
welfare of the country.

THE ASSASSINATION TRIAL.
The trial of the murderer of Mr. McGee
was held in Montreal on the 15th of
April, and was attended by a large
number of people. The case was
heard before the Superior Court, and
the jury returned a verdict of guilty.
The murderer was sentenced to the
penitentiary for a term of years.
The trial was a most interesting
one, and it was a lesson to all
who were present. It showed that
even a young man can be led into
a crime, and that the government
must be on its guard against such
a possibility. It was a warning to
all who were interested in the
welfare of the country.