The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

It was just the question the witty lady wanted asked.

"My dears, did you ever hear her voice?" she launched forth.

"Well, that was why," went on the witty lady, while we all prepared to laugh at one of her sallies. "I simply couldn't stand it. It is a cross between the high C of the soprano in a country church and a siren whistle. It isn't so bad when you are just casually talking to her, because then you can retire carefully to the farthest end of the room. But when you come to have your gown tried on, and she talks right into your ear, positively, it's unendurable.

"Why, I actually twisted my head so badly at the first fitting, trying to get out of the way, that I almost had a stiff neck that night.

"Someone suggested that I try putting cotton batting in my ears, and I did; and what do you think, she asked me if I were subject to earache.

"I was surprised I wasn't stone deaf by the time she had that gown fitted."

Of course, we laughed. Who wouldn't, when it was told with all the eclat and exaggeration and mimicry of which the witty lady is past mistress?

And yet if only some one could be found who wouldn't laugh, what a very splendid thing it would be for the witty lady.

Do you know, I think there is no more dangerous gift than the gift of wit.

It is so terribly easy to use it unkindly.

It is so fatally easy, if you have any facility that way, to drift into the habit of turning everyone's peculiarities into grist for your mill.

Some one is always ready to listen and laugh and approve, and before you know it, drunk with the wine of laughter and applause, you are betraying your friends and your convictions for the sake of winning a laugh or two more.

A woman whom I admire above all the men and women I know, in most things, is marred by this gift. She is of a rarely sweet and loving nature, but it is so fatally easy for her to make people appear ridiculous by a single clever phrase or a single illuminating characterization that sometimes she is betrayed by her cleverness into a cruelty that seems utterly foreign to her nature.

I believe that the gift of wit, like the gift of beauty, makes it harder to be good.

But when one does win out thus handicapped, I think he has exceptionally much to be proud of.

To have great beauty is nothing to anyone's credit.

But to have great beauty and not to be at all spoiled by it, not to neglect the cultivation of other charms and graces on account of it, is something decidedly to one's credit.

To have a keen natural wit is nothing particularly to one's credit.

But to have a keen natural wit and also to have the strength of character never to use it unkindly certainly is something that one has a right to very proud of.

Nerves at High Tension

Slight extra strain means collapse—Restoration obtained by using DR. A.W. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD

The successful men and women are often of the high-strung nervous type—keen and active—but with too little reserve force.

A little extra worry and anxiety and snap goes the nervous system. Weeks and months are often required before energy and vigor are regained.

Rest helps, so does fresh air and exercise, but the blood must also be made rich and red by use of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Food.

Mr. Wm. Branton, Victoria St., Stratford, Ont., writes:—My nervous system seemed all unstrung. I could not sleep, had no appetite, my digestion was poor and I had jerking of the limbs. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food helped me and I continued until I had taken twenty-four boxes. This treatment has made a radical change in my condition, building up my system and strengthening the nerves. Monday session, June 27th, 2:30 p.m.—Conference reassembled and routine work was gone through in connection with the Supernumerary Fund, and the case of Grand Falls and Bishop's Falls was discussed and disposed of.

The Ordination Service was held at 8 p.m., when Rev. Isaac French was set apart for the work of the ministry. His testimony was clear and touching and impressed all who heard it. The singing was inspiring and the whole service was most uplifting.

Rev. Dr. Carman delivered the charge, and a more direct and powerful utterance it has never been our privilege to hear. He reminded the young preacher that he was about to cite him three documents—two divinely authoritative and one humanly so, viz.:

- (1) The call of our Lord addressed to his twelve disciples;
- (2) The charge of Paul to Timothy;
- (3) The discipline of the Methodist Church.

The second document was gone into minutely, and the preacher called attention to many directions suitable for young preachers in our day. The charge was well received and will long be remembered. Immediately after the service a special session of Conference was held, many committees reported. The S. S. work was earnestly discussed and the Conference adjourned at 12 a.m.

Tuesday, 9:30 a.m.—Conference reassembled and received reports from class leaders, local preachers, etc., committee and from the General Conference Committee; then the Conference listened to the parting words of Rev. A. Carman, D.D., General Superintendent. He expressed his great pleasure in being able once more to greet the men who represent the extreme eastern work of the church, and in saying good-bye he expressed the hope that the Divine presence might be with the Conference.

Rev. W. T. D. Dunn then moved a resolution which was carried by a standing vote, expressing the gratitude of the Conference for the spared life and presence of the General Superintendent and expressing the fervent hope that many long years might yet be his.

The Lord's Day Alliance, through Rev. James Bell, Mr. Phisnet and G. W. Gushue, presented its claims to the Conference. The delegation all gave interesting addresses, which were well received, and the Conference pledged itself to the great movement toward a more perfect day of rest in this country.

Rev. J. W. Aitken, Associate Secretary of Temperance, then addressed the Conference on the work of the department, and his address was an inspiring and illuminating presentation. "Defeat," said the speaker, in reference to the late local option campaign in St. John's, "defeat is not outward but inward. The men who were defeated were not the local option men, but those who voted to keep the drink." He proved conclusively by facts and figures that the places in Canada that had the least crime were the local option places. His address was splendidly received. Conference adjourned at 12:30.

ST. JOSEPH'S MEETING.—A meeting of St. Joseph's Institute will take place this evening to make final preparations for the annual picnic at Llewellyn Grounds.

A Pleasing Event.

The students at Bishop Feild College were given their vacation to-day. A very pleasing ceremony occurred at the College when after Head Master R. R. Wood and his assistants and pupils had assembled in the main room, Mr. Bert Tait was summoned and presented with a handsome dressing case, a gift from the masters and his fellow-students. Mr. Tait is the winner of the Rhodes Scholarship, and the action of the donors came to him as a pleasant surprise. He leaves here in September for England. In making the presentation Mr. Wood and the others made very eloquent congratulatory speeches, to which Mr. Tait thoughtfully replied. He was greeted with repeated outbursts of applause by his fellow-students.
