FAVORITE RING BOUTS OF THE PAST

New York.—With difference in weight of about 20 pounds when they meet in the ring three weeks hence Dempsey and Carpentier will otherwise appear almost equal in build and stature. If both were to mix it among a few collegiate athletes, football players and oarsmen, probably neither would be picked out as being unusually big or formidable in general make up. Dempsey stands 6 feet 1 1/2 inches in height, just two inches taller than the French champion and while Carpentier will weigh about 170 pounds in fighting condition, Dempsey expects to enter the ring slightly under 180 pounds.

The champion's shoulders are broad, while Carpentier's are sloping in shape, but otherwise the bodily measurements of the pair do not differ to any marked extent.

Experts who have seen both men are satisfied that they will be well matched in speed and cleverness, but the majority believe that Dempsey will carry by far the heavier weight in his blows. Dexterity and suppleness are claimed as advantages for the Frenchman, by his followers, but just how hard a punch he can deliver is still a problem.

Dempsey showed in his bout with Willard at Toledo that his blows possess enormous pushing power, but his more recent encounters with Bill Brennan at Madison Square Garden did not demonstrate that he still retains the forceful punch necessary to successfully stand off a man of Carpentier's undoubted ability and cleverness.

Just how good the challenger is or how hard a blow he can land is problematical to the majority of American stilt patrons, who have seen him in action. His only bout here, that with Levinsky in Jersey City last year, did not afford much of a line on Carpentier's prowess. Levinsky, always a clever boxer, made practically no serious effort to defend himself on that occasion and went down and out and was an easy victim for the Frenchman in the fourth round.

Nearly 20 years have elapsed since Queensbury rules and glove contests were substituted for the London prize ring code governing pugilistic contests for championship titles. In most of the bouts fought for the heavy-weight championship since the change took place, there was a decided advantage in stature between the principals, but this did not always carry victory with it.

Beginning with the Corbett-Sullivan battle at New Orleans in 1892, the big Boston man was massive in proportion to the lites, supple and extremely clever Californian, but the smaller man bore the big champion down and annexed the title in the 21st round.

Corbett was one and one-half inches taller, but 15 pounds lighter than Sullivan, who stood 5 feet 10 1/2 inches and weighed about 200 lbs.

Some Famous Bout.

Corbett and Bob Fitzsimmons were more evenly matched in height and age. Corbett was half an inch taller and four years younger than the Californian, but he was nearly 20 pounds heavier than Fitz when the latter knocked him out and won the title at Carson City, March 17, 1897.

Two years later James J. Jeffries, of huge build and outweighing Fitzsimmons by fully 50 pounds, won the title in 11 rounds from Bob at Coney Island and five months later, November, 1899, Jeffries got a referee's decision over Tom Sharkey in a 35 round bout in the same arena. Sharkey was several inches shorter and about 20 pounds lighter than the then champion.

Corbett challenged Jeffries twice for the title, but was knocked out by the bigger man each time, once in 23 rounds and the next time in 10 rounds.

Jack Johnson, the negro, who defeated Jeffries at Reno, Nev., in 1910, was nearer to the big man's size than any of the other heavyweights who had met him for the title in the previous ten years. Johnson was three years younger, one inch shorter and only ten pounds lighter than the Ohioan. Johnson scored a knockout in 15 rounds.

Your old methods of teeth cleaning

See what this new way does. Watch your teeth whiten—note how clean they feel. Millions have learned in this way how much film removal means. It is something that you should know.

You must fight film

Your teeth are coated with a viscous film. It clings to the teeth unless you combat it, gets between the teeth and stays.

It forms a dingy coat which dims the luster of the teeth. It is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Thus most tooth troubles are now traced to film. And, despite the daily brushing, very few escape them. The old brushing methods do not effectively fight film.

New ways to combat it

Dental science has now found ways to combat film. The methods are embodied in a dentifrice called Pepsodent. It has proved so effective that leading dentists everywhere are now advising it. And millions of people have already adopted it.

Pepsodent, with every use, brings the discolored, stained, yellow teeth highly polished. It stimulates the healthy flow—Nature's great tooth-protecting agent.

It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva. That to digest the starch deposits which cling to teeth and often form acid. It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That to neutralize the acids which cause tooth decay.

Modern authorities regard these effects as essential aids to Nature, in view of the average diet. To bring these effects twice daily means such protection as you have not known before.

See and feel them

The results can be seen and felt. They are delightful, and this 10-day test will bring them 20 times.

Send the coupon for it. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear. Watch the other good effects, and this booklet we send you will tell you what they mean.

Do this now in justice to yourself. Learn how much this new-day method means to you and yours.

A scientific film combant, combined with two other modern requisites. Now advised for daily use by leading dentists everywhere. Supplied by druggists in large tubes.

Many Fake Yarns About Big Fight.

New York.—"Any fast man with a good left will beat Jack Dempsey." So says Bill Brennan, who has fought the world's champion twice and stayed with him longer than any other boxer.

Georges Carpentier, the French challenger, who hopes to win the title from Dempsey in Jersey City on July 2, has the speed all right, and he's trying now to get the good left, according to "secrets" drifting from the Massachusetts camp.

In his public bouts for the newspapermen, the Frenchman has been specializing on rights, but in his private sessions he is doing the work all from the other side.

Willie Lewis, the veteran middleweight, who once fought the Frenchman and later acted as a trainer for him, whispered several things in Carpentier's ear about that left.

The usual training camp rumors are starting to be passed around now. The secrecy of the Carpentier camp makes it an ideal source for wild stories.

A few days ago it was whispered around that Journe landed one on the Frenchman's jaw and knocked him out. Then it was said that Italian Joe Gans found the Frenchman's stomach too inviting; that he became "unclubby" in his sparring bout and was reprimanded by Manager Desamps.

Both of the yarns probably caused some amusement in the Carpentier camp, if they were not started there with intent.

The usual rumors of "fixed fight" are also being passed around. The "take a flop" for a "cool million" dollars.

The tale Dempsey can lose the fight and still be American champion. If Dempsey loses the motion pictures will be worth five to ten million dollars in Europe, where the continentals would pay anything to see their hero do it on the screen. If Dempsey wins the pictures will be worth nothing. So the champion will turn up his toes and get a million outside of his cut at the gate.

Other rumor-spreaders have it that Carpentier has told his friends not to bet on him, that he couldn't win, and that he was just going to take one of the champion's swings for $200,000. Rumors and rumors. They are just as necessary for the fight as the four posts and the ring ropes.

Wedding Bells.

LOVEYS-BENSON.
