ing the firman investing the Khedive is definitely fixed for Thursday. For the past week the position had harassed and perplexed the Foreign Office in London more than even the Bering Sea question ever did. The Sultan stole a march upon English diplomacy by sending a firman so phrased as to excludge from the Egyptian frontier the whole Sinai Peninsula and part of the Red Sea littoral, which were ceded to Ismail Pasha and have been held by Egypt for half a century. Before the firman was drafted the English Ambassador at Constantinople, alive to the possibility of some action of this sort, demanded that the document should not introduce any of some action of this sort, demanded that the document should not introduce any question concerning the frontier, and received assurance that the firman would not touch the Khedive's rights. When the Sultan's envoy, Eyoub Pasha, arrived at Cairo, the British Minister, Sir Evelyn Baring, suspecting some duplicity, asked for a copy of the documents, and when Eyoub Pasha reiused to communicate the contents of the firman till after the investiture, Minister Baring advised the Khedive not to proceed with the ceremony. Eyoub Pasha then disclosed the substance of the firman, the nature of which had been known to and approved by France and Russia before the missive left Constantinople. The Consults-General at Cairo at once ranged themselves on two sides, the Italian and Austrian representatives meeting at the English Embassy and the French and Russian diplomats at the residence of the Turkish pleinteductive.
