

Last
Edition 2c.

VOL. XXXIII, NO. 34.

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 3, 1895.

WHOLE NO. 12366

BIRTHS, MARRIAGES AND DEATHS

DUCKER—In this city, on Dec. 3, 1895, John Ducker, in his 70th year.
Funeral on Wednesday, at 3 o'clock. Services at 223rd from the residence of his sister, Mrs. Ann W. Ducker, 154 Kent street, to Mount Pleasant. Friends will please accept this intimation.

Amusements and Lectures

Advertisements under this heading two cents per word each insertion. No advertisement less than ten words.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE—TWO NIGHTS and mainline, commencing Friday, Dec. 5. The eminent young Canadian tragedian, Mr. John Griffith, the greatest living tragedian, in Sir Henry Irving's spectacular dramatic version of Goethe's "Faust" Saturday matinee, "The Fool's Revenge." Night prices, 25c, 50c and 75c. Matinee prices, 25c, 50c and 75c. Children to all parts of the house, 25c.

YOUNG LIBERAL CONCERT—WEDNESDAY, Dec. 5.—Grand Opera House. Splendid talent. Full band. Male chorus. Fred L. Evans, musical director. 7114

XMAS EXCURSIONS TO THE OLD COUNTRY—All the latest rates and sailing lists at Clarke's, Richmond street, next door to "Advertiser." Reduced rates via G. T. R. and C. P. R. in connection with ocean passages. ywt

HAZEN—CELEBRATED SLATE-WRITING, engraving, and bookbinding. My mediumship is of practical value to all who are perplexed in business, law, love, luck, lost articles, marriage or family troubles. I never ask a solitary question. Nothing paid in advance or unless you are perfectly satisfied. Hours 9 to 3. 307 Dundas street.

PALACE DANCING ACADEMY—ADVANCED class for ladies and gentlemen commences Wednesday evening, Dec. 4th. All the latest dances taught in this class. DAYTON & MCCORMICK.

PRIVATE LESSONS IN DANCING by Mr. H. E. Millard, at his residence, 345 Princess avenue. A thorough system of teaching the modern glide waltz and all fashionable dances guaranteed. Lessons given any hour.

Meetings.

First insertion 1c per word. One-half cent each subsequent insertion. No advertisement less than ten words.

THE REGULAR MONTHLY MEETING of the Women's Christian Association will be held at the "Y" Rooms on Thursday, 5th inst., at 3 p.m.

ACCABRES—LONDON TENT IT WILL meet at 8 o'clock, Wednesday night, at Edge Block, Richmond street.

THE WESTERN ONTARIO COMMERCE—A general meeting will be held on Saturday, Dec. 7, at 8 p.m. Nomination of officers for ensuing year, general business. All members are requested to attend. M. DILLON, President; ALF. ROBINSON, Sec'y. 641 Lytton

Domestics Wanted.

First insertion 1c per word. One-half cent each subsequent insertion. No advertisement less than ten words.

GOOD GENERAL SERVANT WANTED in small family. 332 Wellington street. 64c

WANTED AT ONCE—GOOD DINING ROOM girls and chamber maids to go out of city, also general housework. Armstrong's Intelligence office, 55 Dundas street. Phone 286.

WANTED—FIRST CLASS GIRL TO DO general housework; would prefer that she sleep at her own home. Apply at 157 Wortley road. 60c

COME TO DWYER'S INTELLIGENCE office. This is not paper talk. Ten first-class general servants wanted, with references. Immediately; housemaids and dining room girls on hand. 681 Richmond street, phone 4131.

Male Help Wanted.

First insertion 1c per word. One-half cent each subsequent insertion. No advertisement less than ten words.

WANTED—WANTED—FIRST CONGRESSIONAL AGENTS—W. H. DAVIS, Sec'y. 205 73 King street. 60c

WANTED—ERRAND BOY—S. COOTS 73 King street. 60c

MEN WANTED TO BUY OUR MADE—FOODER pants for $2.50 and $3.00. Open evenings, 221 Wellington street, R. H. SEMPER, Merchant Tailor.

AGENTS WANTED—$20 PER WEEK—Apply to GEO. MARSHALL & Co., tea and porters, 238 Dundas street.

Wanted.

First insertion 1c per word. One-half cent each subsequent insertion. No advertisement less than ten words.

WANTED—FOR CASH—BRICK DWELLING; no less than four bedrooms; convenient to High School; also corner lot on Wolfe street for sale. Address H. J. Wolfe, 66.

WANTED—PAIR OF BOB SLEIGHS suitable for delivery rig. GEO. BAYLEY'S paper box factory, 80 Dundas street. 60c

Board and Lodging.

First insertion 1c per word. One-half cent each subsequent insertion. No advertisement less than ten words.

TWO COMFORTABLE ROOMS with board can be obtained at 80 Carling street. 60c

Business Chances.

First insertion 1c per word. One-half cent each subsequent insertion. No advertisement less than ten words.

PARTNER WANTED IN ESTABLISHED business, lady or gentleman with $500 to take netting pattern's interest; good salary to right person, and profits divided equally. This is a snap and should be investigated at once. Address "Liberal," "Advertiser" office. 68g

WANTED—FARMERS' SONS—Other industrious persons of fair education to whom $75 a month would be an incentive. Write me with references. Could also engage a few ladies at their own homes. T. H. LINCOLN, 155 Bay street, Toronto. 64c and 631

Real Estate For Sale.

First insertion 1c per word. One-half cent each subsequent insertion. No advertisement less than ten words.

H. M. DOUGLAS, REAL ESTATE broker, 110 Dundas street—Dwelling houses in city prices ranging from $1,000 to $5,000; vacant lots in best localities, cheap and on easy terms. 31

FREE FARE TO CALIFORNIA—To the actual settlers who will join a select colony of Christian people to locate on fruit farms in Monterey county, California. Applicant crop of $300. Grand excursion leaves Chicago Jan. 2, 1896, and monthly thereafter. For particulars apply to JOHN PAUL, passenger agent Michigan Central Railway, London, Ont., or S. STREET, president Guaranty Colony Company, Palmer House, Chicago, Ill. 621

FOR SALE—12 ACRES—WITH GOOD buildings, near city; must be sold. 30 acres good land, close to city limits, at a bargain. J. F. SANSNER, over J. P. R. tickets office. 621

FOR SALE—HOUSE AND LOT—630 YORK street. Apply 634 York street. 231

Houses, Etc., To Let.

First insertion 1c per word. One-half cent each subsequent insertion. No advertisement less than ten words.

THREE ROOMS TO LET—APPLY 151 Simcoe street.

TO RENT—SIX ROOMS, FIRST FLOOR over 243 Dundas street. Apply at 243 Dundas street.

OFFICE TO LET—DOUBLE ROOM WITH bath, first floor Albion Building; also front room on first floor immediate possession. Apply T. H. CARLING, at the brewery. 381

TO LET—COTTAGE, CORNER RIDOUT and Craig street. South alone rent $18. Apply GEORGE C. GUNN, barrister. 421

TO LET—RESIDENCE, 484 COLBOURNE street, corner Dufferin avenue, 10 rooms, modern conveniences. Apply FRASER & FRASER. 421

TWO LARGE WELL FURNISHED rooms to let 121 Ridout street. 361

Lost and Found.

First insertion 1c per word. One-half cent each subsequent insertion. No advertisement less than ten words.

LOST—SMALL BLACK COCKER SPANIEL dog pup, answers to name "Tip-Top." Reward $10. Returned to owner, Mr. BARRON, 631 Talbot street.

LOST—DARK SPECTACLES—FINE GOLD chain attached. Leave at this office. 601

LOST—ON DUNDAS STREET—BETWEEN Malind and William, purse containing sum of money. Finder will be rewarded by returning to 165 Dundas street. b

LOST—ON SUNDAY—SMALL BROOCH with white stone in center. Reward by returning to this office. b

A BLACK WHITE AND TAN TERRIER dog answers to the name of "Foxy." Reward if returned to Grand Trunk dining-room.

LOST LAST THURSDAY—A BULL PUP, white and black, answers to name "Jerry." Reward on leaving at Huron Hotel, Richmond street. 650

Articles For Sale.

First insertion 1c per word. One-half cent each subsequent insertion. No advertisement less than ten words.

SMALL SLOW COMBUSTION "TOR-TOISE" stove; just imported; good heater; $38. "Economical," "Advertiser." 650

LUMBER—WHOLESALE ONLY—CAROLINA red cedar shingles; pine and Ontario cedar shingles; pine, hemlock, hardwood, cedar, lumber, posts, piles, etc. D. FRERSON, Man. Agt. London, Ont. 109

A NEW DOUBLE MICROSCOPE—HARDLY used, only 30 power, and having two lenses; bought for $15 and sold for $12. Apply 288 Dufferin Avenue. 621

CHEAP—A BLOOD COLT—SOUND and quiet; good traveler; coming 4 years old. Call at 238 Eglar street. 251

POXY FOR SALE—QUIET AND SOUND—Will be sold cheap. Apply 637 Eglar street. 251

Agents Wanted.

First insertion 1c per word. One-half cent each subsequent insertion. No advertisement less than ten words.

WANTED—GENTLEMEN OF GOOD address to place building and loan money. Experienced preferred. Salary and commission. Address "Birkbeck," 109 Dundas street, London, Ont. 191

WANTED—AGENTS TO SOLICIT BUSINESS for the Home Life Association of Canada, assessment plan. Good salary and commission. Apply L. W. BURKE, Superintendent, No. 5 Masonic Temple. 21

Money to Loan.

MONEY—CERTAIN SUMS OF $200, $500, $1,000 and $1,500 are in hand for investment on first-class mortgages. Also various other sums. WICKES & SCANDRETT, Solicitors, Dundas street, London, Ont. 191

MONEY TO LOAN ON FIRST and second mortgages at low rates. Notes cashed at G. W. FRANCIS loan office, 754 Dundas street. 191

Brokers.

JOHN WRIGHT—STOCK BROKER, ywt Richmond street, London.

ODOROMA removes discoloration from the teeth.

IN THE SURREGATE COURT OF THE County of Middlesex—in the matter of the guardianship of James Henry Webb, Florence Anna Webb, George Leveley Webb, Mary Ann Webb, their parents, the stock of L. East Web, of the City of London, in the County of Middlesex, infants under the age of 21 years: Notice is hereby given that at the expiration of twenty days after the first publication of this notice, application will be made to the Judge of the Surrogate Court of the County of Middlesex, for an order appointing William Charles Fitzgerald, of the City of London, in the County of Middlesex, Esq., guardian of the said named infants. FITZGERALD & FITZGERALD, Solicitors for Applicant. London, Nov. 22, 1895. 581b

WILL BE SOLD BY PUBLIC AUCTION, by Mr. J. W. Jones, at his rooms, Dundas street, London, on Thursday, the 12th day of December, 1895, the stock of L. Miller, general merchant, Emsdale, as follows:

Drygoods	$1,252.94
Velvets, Silks and Dress Goods	2,671.18
Table Drygoods	2,885.69
Gents' Furnishings	68.74
Hats, Caps and Fur	43.15
Boots and shoes	621.50
Crockery and patent medicines	652.19
Clothing, stoves, etc.	513.81
Crockery and glassware	124.81
Furniture and wall paper	149.50
Shop furniture	203.33
Total	$3,333.38

Terms—One quarter down; balance in 2, 4 and 6 months, with interest at 7 per cent, approved endorsed paper. Stock list with Messrs. GIBBONS, McNAB & MULKERN, London, Ont. C. B. ARMSTRONG, Trustee. 681 xtywt

WILL BE SOLD BY PUBLIC AUCTION, by Mr. J. W. Jones, at his rooms, Dundas street, London, on Monday, the 9th day of December, 1895, at the hour of 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon, the stock in trade of W. J. Gillies, of St. Marys, amounting to $10,777.36, as follows:

General Drygoods	$1,202.49
Velvets, Silks and Dress Goods	2,671.18
Table Drygoods	2,885.69
Gents' Furnishings	68.74
Hats, Caps and Fur	43.15
Boots and shoes	621.50
Crockery and patent medicines	652.19
Clothing, stoves, etc.	513.81
Crockery and glassware	124.81
Furniture and wall paper	149.50
Shop furniture	203.33
Total	$10,777.36

Terms—One quarter cash; balance in 2, 4 and 6 months, approved endorsed paper, with interest at 7 per cent. Stock list on the premises and with GIBBONS, McNAB & MULKERN, London, Ont. C. B. ARMSTRONG, Trustee. 61n xtywt

AUCTION SALE

Household Furniture, on Wednesday, Dec. 4 at 117 Clarence Street.

MR. NEIL COOPER will sell contents of cottage comprising, table, sideboard, carpets, oilcloth, extension table, crockery, lot of preserves, basket with oven, bedroom stores, springs, mattresses, bed, a cook stove, kitchen utensils, bath, wringer, coal and wood, chickens, besides sundry other articles. Sale at 10:30.

NEIL COOPER, Auctioneer. 84 y

Cleveland's Message.

The U. S. President's Annual Deliverance to Congress.

Interesting References to Canadian and British Interests.

A New Bering Sea Treaty Recommended.

Boundary Line of the Great Lakes Should Be Determined.

Mr. Cleveland's Opposition to Protection Undiminished.

The Monroe Doctrine—Britain Urged to Arbitrate the Venezuelan Dispute—The Alaskan Boundary Survey—Sympathy for Cuba—Britain Accused of Neglecting the Seal Preservation—Free Coinage Condemned.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 3.—Upon the reassembling of Congress today, the President's annual message, which was awaited with the keenest interest, was presented and read.

The President opened by references to the country's foreign relations. He mentioned the fact that the Argentine Republic had reduced duties on certain American products, in view of the free entry of wool into the United States. A full explanation of the treatment of John L. Waller by the French authorities still remained to be given.

A DRIVE AT PROTECTION. He continued: "Our relations with Germany are typical of a condition of things elsewhere found in countries whose productions and trade are similar to our own. The close rivalries of competing industries; the influence of the delusive doctrine that the internal development of a nation is promoted and its wealth increased by a policy which in undertaking to reserve its home markets for the exclusive use of its own producers necessarily obstructs their sales in foreign markets and prevents free access to the products of the world; the desire to retain trade in time-worn ruts, regardless of the inexorable laws of new needs and changed conditions of demand and supply; and our own hankering to protect our own markets by tariff walls, all these are typical of a condition of things elsewhere found in countries whose productions and trade are similar to our own. The close rivalries of competing industries; the influence of the delusive doctrine that the internal development of a nation is promoted and its wealth increased by a policy which in undertaking to reserve its home markets for the exclusive use of its own producers necessarily obstructs their sales in foreign markets and prevents free access to the products of the world; the desire to retain trade in time-worn ruts, regardless of the inexorable laws of new needs and changed conditions of demand and supply; and our own hankering to protect our own markets by tariff walls, all these are typical of a condition of things elsewhere found in countries whose productions and trade are similar to our own. The close rivalries of competing industries; the influence of the delusive doctrine that the internal development of a nation is promoted and its wealth increased by a policy which in undertaking to reserve its home markets for the exclusive use of its own producers necessarily obstructs their sales in foreign markets and prevents free access to the products of the world; the desire to retain trade in time-worn ruts, regardless of the inexorable laws of new needs and changed conditions of demand and supply; and our own hankering to protect our own markets by tariff walls, all these are typical of a condition of things elsewhere found in countries whose productions and trade are similar to our own. The close rivalries of competing industries; the influence of the delusive doctrine that the internal development of a nation is promoted and its wealth increased by a policy which in undertaking to reserve its home markets for the exclusive use of its own producers necessarily obstructs their sales in foreign markets and prevents free access to the products of the world; the desire to retain trade in time-worn ruts, regardless of the inexorable laws of new needs and changed conditions of demand and supply; and our own hankering to protect our own markets by tariff walls, all these are typical of a condition of things elsewhere found in countries whose productions and trade are similar to our own. The close rivalries of competing industries; the influence of the delusive doctrine that the internal development of a nation is promoted and its wealth increased by a policy which in undertaking to reserve its home markets for the exclusive use of its own producers necessarily obstructs their sales in foreign markets and prevents free access to the products of the world; the desire to retain trade in time-worn ruts, regardless of the inexorable laws of new needs and changed conditions of demand and supply; and our own hankering to protect our own markets by tariff walls, all these are typical of a condition of things elsewhere found in countries whose productions and trade are similar to our own. The close rivalries of competing industries; the influence of the delusive doctrine that the internal development of a nation is promoted and its wealth increased by a policy which in undertaking to reserve its home markets for the exclusive use of its own producers necessarily obstructs their sales in foreign markets and prevents free access to the products of the world; the desire to retain trade in time-worn ruts, regardless of the inexorable laws of new needs and changed conditions of demand and supply; and our own hankering to protect our own markets by tariff walls, all these are typical of a condition of things elsewhere found in countries whose productions and trade are similar to our own. The close rivalries of competing industries; the influence of the delusive doctrine that the internal development of a nation is promoted and its wealth increased by a policy which in undertaking to reserve its home markets for the exclusive use of its own producers necessarily obstructs their sales in foreign markets and prevents free access to the products of the world; the desire to retain trade in time-worn ruts, regardless of the inexorable laws of new needs and changed conditions of demand and supply; and our own hankering to protect our own markets by tariff walls, all these are typical of a condition of things elsewhere found in countries whose productions and trade are similar to our own. The close rivalries of competing industries; the influence of the delusive doctrine that the internal development of a nation is promoted and its wealth increased by a policy which in undertaking to reserve its home markets for the exclusive use of its own producers necessarily obstructs their sales in foreign markets and prevents free access to the products of the world; the desire to retain trade in time-worn ruts, regardless of the inexorable laws of new needs and changed conditions of demand and supply; and our own hankering to protect our own markets by tariff walls, all these are typical of a condition of things elsewhere found in countries whose productions and trade are similar to our own. The close rivalries of competing industries; the influence of the delusive doctrine that the internal development of a nation is promoted and its wealth increased by a policy which in undertaking to reserve its home markets for the exclusive use of its own producers necessarily obstructs their sales in foreign markets and prevents free access to the products of the world; the desire to retain trade in time-worn ruts, regardless of the inexorable laws of new needs and changed conditions of demand and supply; and our own hankering to protect our own markets by tariff walls, all these are typical of a condition of things elsewhere found in countries whose productions and trade are similar to our own. The close rivalries of competing industries; the influence of the delusive doctrine that the internal development of a nation is promoted and its wealth increased by a policy which in undertaking to reserve its home markets for the exclusive use of its own producers necessarily obstructs their sales in foreign markets and prevents free access to the products of the world; the desire to retain trade in time-worn ruts, regardless of the inexorable laws of new needs and changed conditions of demand and supply; and our own hankering to protect our own markets by tariff walls, all these are typical of a condition of things elsewhere found in countries whose productions and trade are similar to our own. The close rivalries of competing industries; the influence of the delusive doctrine that the internal development of a nation is promoted and its wealth increased by a policy which in undertaking to reserve its home markets for the exclusive use of its own producers necessarily obstructs their sales in foreign markets and prevents free access to the products of the world; the desire to retain trade in time-worn ruts, regardless of the inexorable laws of new needs and changed conditions of demand and supply; and our own hankering to protect our own markets by tariff walls, all these are typical of a condition of things elsewhere found in countries whose productions and trade are similar to our own. The close rivalries of competing industries; the influence of the delusive doctrine that the internal development of a nation is promoted and its wealth increased by a policy which in undertaking to reserve its home markets for the exclusive use of its own producers necessarily obstructs their sales in foreign markets and prevents free access to the products of the world; the desire to retain trade in time-worn ruts, regardless of the inexorable laws of new needs and changed conditions of demand and supply; and our own hankering to protect our own markets by tariff walls, all these are typical of a condition of things elsewhere found in countries whose productions and trade are similar to our own. The close rivalries of competing industries; the influence of the delusive doctrine that the internal development of a nation is promoted and its wealth increased by a policy which in undertaking to reserve its home markets for the exclusive use of its own producers necessarily obstructs their sales in foreign markets and prevents free access to the products of the world; the desire to retain trade in time-worn ruts, regardless of the inexorable laws of new needs and changed conditions of demand and supply; and our own hankering to protect our own markets by tariff walls, all these are typical of a condition of things elsewhere found in countries whose productions and trade are similar to our own. The close rivalries of competing industries; the influence of the delusive doctrine that the internal development of a nation is promoted and its wealth increased by a policy which in undertaking to reserve its home markets for the exclusive use of its own producers necessarily obstructs their sales in foreign markets and prevents free access to the products of the world; the desire to retain trade in time-worn ruts, regardless of the inexorable laws of new needs and changed conditions of demand and supply; and our own hankering to protect our own markets by tariff walls, all these are typical of a condition of things elsewhere found in countries whose productions and trade are similar to our own. The close rivalries of competing industries; the influence of the delusive doctrine that the internal development of a nation is promoted and its wealth increased by a policy which in undertaking to reserve its home markets for the exclusive use of its own producers necessarily obstructs their sales in foreign markets and prevents free access to the products of the world; the desire to retain trade in time-worn ruts, regardless of the inexorable laws of new needs and changed conditions of demand and supply; and our own hankering to protect our own markets by tariff walls, all these are typical of a condition of things elsewhere found in countries whose productions and trade are similar to our own. The close rivalries of competing industries; the influence of the delusive doctrine that the internal development of a nation is promoted and its wealth increased by a policy which in undertaking to reserve its home markets for the exclusive use of its own producers necessarily obstructs their sales in foreign markets and prevents free access to the products of the world; the desire to retain trade in time-worn ruts, regardless of the inexorable laws of new needs and changed conditions of demand and supply; and our own hankering to protect our own markets by tariff walls, all these are typical of a condition of things elsewhere found in countries whose productions and trade are similar to our own. The close rivalries of competing industries; the influence of the delusive doctrine that the internal development of a nation is promoted and its wealth increased by a policy which in undertaking to reserve its home markets for the exclusive use of its own producers necessarily obstructs their sales in foreign markets and prevents free access to the products of the world; the desire to retain trade in time-worn ruts, regardless of the inexorable laws of new needs and changed conditions of demand and supply; and our own hankering to protect our own markets by tariff walls, all these are typical of a condition of things elsewhere found in countries whose productions and trade are similar to our own. The close rivalries of competing industries; the influence of the delusive doctrine that the internal development of a nation is promoted and its wealth increased by a policy which in undertaking to reserve its home markets for the exclusive use of its own producers necessarily obstructs their sales in foreign markets and prevents free access to the products of the world; the desire to retain trade in time-worn ruts, regardless of the inexorable laws of new needs and changed conditions of demand and supply; and our own hankering to protect our own markets by tariff walls, all these are typical of a condition of things elsewhere found in countries whose productions and trade are similar to our own. The close rivalries of competing industries; the influence of the delusive doctrine that the internal development of a nation is promoted and its wealth increased by a policy which in undertaking to reserve its home markets for the exclusive use of its own producers necessarily obstructs their sales in foreign markets and prevents free access to the products of the world; the desire to retain trade in time-worn ruts, regardless of the inexorable laws of new needs and changed conditions of demand and supply; and our own hankering to protect our own markets by tariff walls, all these are typical of a condition of things elsewhere found in countries whose productions and trade are similar to our own. The close rivalries of competing industries; the influence of the delusive doctrine that the internal development of a nation is promoted and its wealth increased by a policy which in undertaking to reserve its home markets for the exclusive use of its own producers necessarily obstructs their sales in foreign markets and prevents free access to the products of the world; the desire to retain trade in time-worn ruts, regardless of the inexorable laws of new needs and changed conditions of demand and supply; and our own hankering to protect our own markets by tariff walls, all these are typical of a condition of things elsewhere found in countries whose productions and trade are similar to our own. The close rivalries of competing industries; the influence of the delusive doctrine that the internal development of a nation is promoted and its wealth increased by a policy which in undertaking to reserve its home markets for the exclusive use of its own producers necessarily obstructs their sales in foreign markets and prevents free access to the products of the world; the desire to retain trade in time-worn ruts, regardless of the inexorable laws of new needs and changed conditions of demand and supply; and our own hankering to protect our own markets by tariff walls, all these are typical of a condition of things elsewhere found in countries whose productions and trade are similar to our own. The close rivalries of competing industries; the influence of the delusive doctrine that the internal development of a nation is promoted and its wealth increased by a policy which in undertaking to reserve its home markets for the exclusive use of its own producers necessarily obstructs their sales in foreign markets and prevents free access to the products of the world; the desire to retain trade in time-worn ruts, regardless of the inexorable laws of new needs and changed conditions of demand and supply; and our own hankering to protect our own markets by tariff walls, all these are typical of a condition of things elsewhere found in countries whose productions and trade are similar to our own. The close rivalries of competing industries; the influence of the delusive doctrine that the internal development of a nation is promoted and its wealth increased by a policy which in undertaking to reserve its home markets for the exclusive use of its own producers necessarily obstructs their sales in foreign markets and prevents free access to the products of the world; the desire to retain trade in time-worn ruts, regardless of the inexorable laws of new needs and changed conditions of demand and supply; and our own hankering to protect our own markets by tariff walls, all these are typical of a condition of things elsewhere found in countries whose productions and trade are similar to our own. The close rivalries of competing industries; the influence of the delusive doctrine that the internal development of a nation is promoted and its wealth increased by a policy which in undertaking to reserve its home markets for the exclusive use of its own producers necessarily obstructs their sales in foreign markets and prevents free access to the products of the world; the desire to retain trade in time-worn ruts, regardless of the inexorable laws of new needs and changed conditions of demand and supply; and our own hankering to protect our own markets by tariff walls, all these are typical of a condition of things elsewhere found in countries whose productions and trade are similar to our own. The close rivalries of competing industries; the influence of the delusive doctrine that the internal development of a nation is promoted and its wealth increased by a policy which in undertaking to reserve its home markets for the exclusive use of its own producers necessarily obstructs their sales in foreign markets and prevents free access to the products of the world; the desire to retain trade in time-worn ruts, regardless of the inexorable laws of new needs and changed conditions of demand and supply; and our own hankering to protect our own markets by tariff walls, all these are typical of a condition of things elsewhere found in countries whose productions and trade are similar to our own. The close rivalries of competing industries; the influence of the delusive doctrine that the internal development of a nation is promoted and its wealth increased by a policy which in undertaking to reserve its home markets for the exclusive use of its own producers necessarily obstructs their sales in foreign markets and prevents free access to the products of the world; the desire to retain trade in time-worn ruts, regardless of the inexorable laws of new needs and changed conditions of demand and supply; and our own hankering to protect our own markets by tariff walls, all these are typical of a condition of things elsewhere found in countries whose productions and trade are similar to our own. The close rivalries of competing industries; the influence of the delusive doctrine that the internal development of a nation is promoted and its wealth increased by a policy which in undertaking to reserve its home markets for the exclusive use of its own producers necessarily obstructs their sales in foreign markets and prevents free access to the products of the world; the desire to retain trade in time-worn ruts, regardless of the inexorable laws of new needs and changed conditions of demand and supply; and our own hankering to protect our own markets by tariff walls, all these are typical of a condition of things elsewhere found in countries whose productions and trade are similar to our own. The close rivalries of competing industries; the influence of the delusive doctrine that the internal development of a nation is promoted and its wealth increased by a policy which in undertaking to reserve its home markets for the exclusive use of its own producers necessarily obstructs their sales in foreign markets and prevents free access to the products of the world; the desire to retain trade in time-worn ruts, regardless of the inexorable laws of new needs and changed conditions of demand and supply; and our own hankering to protect our own markets by tariff walls, all these are typical of a condition of things elsewhere found in countries whose productions and trade are similar to our own. The close rivalries of competing industries; the influence of the delusive doctrine that the internal development of a nation is promoted and its wealth increased by a policy which in undertaking to reserve its home markets for the exclusive use of its own producers necessarily obstructs their sales in foreign markets and prevents free access to the products of the world; the desire to retain trade in time-worn ruts, regardless of the inexorable laws of new needs and changed conditions of demand and supply; and our own hankering to protect our own markets by tariff walls, all these are typical of a condition of things elsewhere found in countries whose productions and trade are similar to our own. The close rivalries of competing industries; the influence of the delusive doctrine that the internal development of a nation is promoted and its wealth increased by a policy which in undertaking to reserve its home markets for the exclusive use of its own producers necessarily obstructs their sales in foreign markets and prevents free access to the products of the world; the desire to retain trade in time-worn ruts, regardless of the inexorable laws of new needs and changed conditions of demand and supply; and our own hankering to protect our own markets by tariff walls, all these are typical of a condition of things elsewhere found in countries whose productions and trade are similar to our own. The close rivalries of competing industries; the influence of the delusive doctrine that the internal development of a nation is promoted and its wealth increased by a policy which in undertaking to reserve its home markets for the exclusive use of its own producers necessarily obstructs their sales in foreign markets and prevents free access to the products of the world; the desire to retain trade in time-worn ruts, regardless of the inexorable laws of new needs and changed conditions of demand and supply; and our own hankering to protect our own markets by tariff walls, all these are typical of a condition of things elsewhere found in countries whose productions and trade are similar to our own. The close rivalries of competing industries; the influence of the delusive doctrine that the internal development of a nation is promoted and its wealth increased by a policy which in undertaking to reserve its home markets for the exclusive use of its own producers necessarily obstructs their sales in foreign markets and prevents free access to the products of the world; the desire to retain trade in time-worn ruts, regardless of the inexorable laws of new needs and changed conditions of demand and supply; and our own hankering to protect our own markets by tariff walls, all these are typical of a condition of things elsewhere found in countries whose productions and trade are similar to our own. The close rivalries of competing industries; the influence of the delusive doctrine that the internal development of a nation is promoted and its wealth increased by a policy which in undertaking to reserve its home markets for the exclusive use of its own producers necessarily obstructs their sales in foreign markets and prevents free access to the products of the world; the desire to retain trade in time-worn ruts, regardless of the inexorable laws of new needs and changed conditions of demand and supply; and our own hankering to protect our own markets by tariff walls, all these are typical of a condition of things elsewhere found in countries whose productions and trade are similar to our own. The close rivalries of competing industries; the influence of the delusive doctrine that the internal development of a nation is promoted and its wealth increased by a policy which in undertaking to reserve its home markets for the exclusive use of its own producers necessarily obstructs their sales in foreign markets and prevents free access to the products of the world; the desire to retain trade in time-worn ruts, regardless of the inexorable laws of new needs and changed conditions of demand and supply; and our own hankering to protect our own markets by tariff walls, all these are typical of a condition of things elsewhere found in countries whose productions and trade are similar to our own. The close rivalries of competing industries; the influence of the delusive doctrine that the internal development of a nation is promoted and its wealth increased by a policy which in undertaking to reserve its home markets for the exclusive use of its own producers necessarily obstructs their sales in foreign markets and prevents free access to the products of the world; the desire to retain trade in time-worn ruts, regardless of the inexorable laws of new needs and changed conditions of demand and supply; and our own hankering to protect our own markets by tariff walls, all these are typical of a condition of things elsewhere found in countries whose productions and trade are similar to our own. The close rivalries of competing industries; the influence of the delusive doctrine that the internal development of a nation is promoted and its wealth increased by a policy which in undertaking to reserve its home markets for the exclusive use of its own producers necessarily obstructs their sales in foreign markets and prevents free access to the products of the world; the desire to retain trade in time-worn ruts, regardless of the inexorable laws of new needs and changed conditions of demand and supply; and our own hankering to protect our own markets by tariff walls, all these are typical of a condition of things elsewhere found in countries whose productions and trade are similar to our own. The close rivalries of competing industries; the influence of the delusive doctrine that the internal development of a nation is promoted and its wealth increased by a policy which in undertaking to reserve its home markets for the exclusive use of its own producers necessarily obstructs their sales in foreign markets and prevents free access to the products of the world; the desire to retain trade in time-worn ruts, regardless of the inexorable laws of