ENTHUSIASTIC RECEPTION

Tendered the Minister of Works by Niagara District Liberals.

Welland, March 4.-The Liberals of Niagara district united here today to give Hon. J. Israel Tarte one of the most enthusiastic receptions that he has ever received in Ontario, and in return the minister of public works delivered an address which delighted all of those who were fortunate enough to secure admission to the building in which he spoke. Hon. Mr. Tarte's words made a distinctly favorable impression upon the gathering, which filled the opera house, and upon the conclusion of his speech he was cheered repeatedly.

The occasion was the convention of the Liberal organizations of Welland county, and Mr. Tarte was the guest

The opera house, where the public meeting took place was filled shortly after noon, a large number of ladies, as well as representatives from all parts of the peninsula, being present. Hon. Mr. Tarte, upon being introduced, was received with great cheering. He began by congratulating the Liberals upon their splendid work in the last election. He liked to meet people who fought to win, he said, and he wished there were more people in Ontario like the Liberals of Welland. The Liberals were in power at Ottawa, and from a party point of view he perhaps had no right to complain. Speaking, however, from a broader standpoint, as a Canadian, he regretted to see Ontario on the one side and fact, especially as a French-Canadian. In Quebec, they did not feel that they had committed any crime or even mistake which justified the people of Ontario in deciding not to vote for Laurier. It had been said that he (the speaker) in former days had been a Conservative. He had been a Conservative for twenty years, but he had (Cheers.) improved his ways. French-Canadians had simply done what he had done-improved their ways. They had decided to change their political allegiance for the good of the country.

Continuing, Mr. Tarte said: We are loyal in Quebec. We have more interest to remain under the British flag than you have. We are in the min-ority, but we enjoy the same privileges that you enjoy. If we joined with the United States all of these privileges, all of our freedom, would disappear. Then why should we not be strongly and earnestly loyal to the British crown? Kindly grant us some intelligence and knowledge of the history of the world. I have just spent five months in France. You know I sold England to France. (Laughter.) There were 42 nations represented at the Paris Exposition, and I can say with pride that I came back to Canada with a more profound love for this country than I ever had before. A great deal has been said of my Paris trip. It appears that I made too many speeches. In my humble opinion I did not make enough. I endeavored to advertise this country to the best of my ability. I told them of our institutions, and you would be surprised to know the number of French statesmen who are now studying English institutions with a view to making changes in their own.

The speaker said that the Niagara peninsula had been nobly represented Quebec on the other. He lamented that by its fruit at the exposition, and as a result of this there was an immense and magnificent market which could be opened in France. Within a month a line of steamers had been started between Montreal and a French port, and they could soon send their apples and peaches directly to France. He supposed they would have no objection to taking French money. He was glad to hear the new Conservative leader repudiate the scandalous utter ances which had been made against the French-Canadians by members of that party. The French-Canadians constituted two millions of people, who had no desire to go from the country, and they would not be made go. The two nationalities were bound to live here, and the best thing was to live friendly. They worshipped in different altars, but nothing was more sure than that the same God watched over them, and that there was a common heaven for them all. They had been reminded of the fifteen English-speaking members from Quebec, and it was only recently that Mr. Mackay was created a senator, although he lived in electoral division which was 90 per cent French. He might have pre-vented that, for was he not master of the administration, and did he not hold such men as Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Sir Richard Cartwright in the hollow of his hand? (Laughter.) French-Canadians, said the speaker, could never thank their English breth-ren enough for the honor which they had conferred on Sir Wilfrid Laurier, for it showed that with the Liberal party there was no racial feeling. In Quebec they did not divide on the lines of French and English, and the success of the Liberals in Quebec was due simply to hard work on the part of English and French alike.

Dealing with transportation affairs, the speaker referred to the cost of the Welland Canal and its utility. The distance between Buffalo and New York was 500 miles and between Port Colborne and Montreal was 375 miles, he said, still Buffalo controlled all the grain trade. The Canadian route was not equipped with harbors, and this was the condition of affairs when the government took office. The work of deepening the canals had been pushed pleted there would be a decent harbor at Port Colborne. The St. Lawrence between Quebec and Montreal was being deepened, and when all this was completed if they had no trade they would be very much surprised. It was charged that they were spending too much money, but they were aggressive because they had unbounded confidence in the future. From the Yukon down to Cape Breton they had resources of all kinds in mines, lakes and forests, and most of all, in a hearty, healthy population. These should inspire confidence in those who had charge of public affairs. To be progressive they had to be aggressive, for if they allow-ed all the trade to be diverted to American channels they would never get it back. They had been getting only a small portion of the trade, because they were not equipped. The country was short in population, although in Quebec they were doing very well. The government, however, considered the money spent in bettering the transportation facilities well invested. In closing Mr. Tarte asked his audience to accept from their brethren in Quebec the message of friendship and amity which he had brought. French-

Canadians loved their friends in On-tario and would like to be better known by them. Hon. Mr. Tarte was cheered again and again, and was several times forced to bow his recognition of the applause when he concluded his speech.

LORD WOLSELEY'S ATTACK. London, March 4 .- In the House of Lords today Lord Wolseley, the former commander-in-chief of the forces, for two or three hours attacked the military system of Great Britain in a carefully written speech, which it is understood he had long meditated and had phrased in consultation with his friends. "My arguments," he said, "are not directed against individuals, but against the military system, which I have honestly tried for five years, and have found wanting, and which entails many great dangers not realized by the people of the realm."

THE PLAGUE SPREADING.

Cape Town, March 4.-Twelve fresh cases of the plague were reported here yesterday and today, including two Europeans. In addition to the above five colored people died at their resi-dences in various parts of the town. The government has ordered that the Masonic Hotel, which faces the parade ground on the leading thoroughfare of the city, be closed, on the ground that it is in an unsanitary condition.

ANARCHIST KILLS HIMSELF. London, March 4.—An Anarchist named Peroni committed suicide in Rome last week after making some astonishing revelations. Among other things he said that he had been selected by lot at Marseilles to kill King Victor Emforward, and in a year or two manuel. On arriving in Rome his nerve when the contracts were com- failed him and he killed himself by opening his veins. The police have now discovered some confirmation of his story. They searched Peroni's lodgings and found letters from Bresel and other desperadoes, portraits of the king and Anarchist mar tyrs, including Bresci and Ravachol. Two letters bore a New York postmark. The police say Peroni was once arrested in Paterson, N. J., on suspicion of being concerned in a local murder.

Queenstown, March 4 .- The Elder-Dempster & Co.'s Beaver Line steamer Wassau, in command of Captain Symons, which touched at this port on Feb. 27 for passengers and mails, on her way to Halifax, N. S., and St. John, N. B., from Liverpool, whence she sailed the previous day, returned to this port yesterday in a much disabled condition. The steamer reached a point 300 miles west of Fastnet, where, on Thursday night, a terrific gale, with high seas, was encountered. During the night the vessel suffered badly from the storm, having her steering gear disabled and much damage done about her decks. Several members of the vessel's crew were injured. The Wassau will return to Liverpool, where she will transfer her passengers and mails to the steamer Lake Champlain, which leaves on Tuesday, March 5, for Halifax and St.

BLOCKED THE BILL. London, March 4 .- Colonial Secretary Chamberlain is angry with Premier Salisbury's son, Lord Hugh Cecil, a member of the House of Commons, who blocked a bill which had been warmly approved by Mr. Chamberlain, and which proposed to legalize in England marriages with deceased wives' sisters, which had been contracted in the colonies, where such unions are legal. Lord Hugh Cecil is the parliamentary champion of the extreme High Church party, which has always fiercely opposed attempts to make such marriages legal. Mr. Chamberlain's irritation is keen, because he has been advised that the new Australian Commonwealth will insist upon the stigma on colonial marriages of this kind being removed; and knowing this, the premier's son persisted in blocking the proposed legislation, which kills hope of passing or discussing the bill at the present session. There is said to be a considerable majority in favor of the bill in the House of Commons, and the statesmen of the Australian Commonwealth looked to Prime Minister Salisbury to secure a majority in the House of Lords.
