Has Acknowledged Receipt of Messages, Says Winston Churchill. With Directions As To Best Course To Take.

[Canadian Press.] London, May 10-3:55 p.m.-The First Lord of the Admiralty, Winston Spencer Churchill, stated in the House of Commons this afternoon that Capt. Turner of the Lusitania had acknowledged receipt of messages from the admiralty giving him warning and directions for the course he was to take.

Knew of Warnings. "The admiralty had general knowledge of the German warning issued in America," Mr. Churchill declared, "and from that knowledge and other information concerning submarine movements it sent warnings to the Lusitania and directions as to her course. I think, however, it is not right to go into the matter in detail, as it is going to be a subject of inquiry, and it might appear that it was endeavoring to throw blame on the captain of the Lusitania in a matter which will be a subject of fuli investigation." Continuing, Mr. Churchill said this investigation would be conducted by Lord Mersey, assisted by skilled assessors, and that it would be opened without avoidable delay.

Questions Asked. Mr. Churchill's remarks were drawn by questions from Lord Charles Beresford and others asking for details as to what speed the Lusitania was making when she was torpedoed, whether there was a patrol boat in that locality, whether all points where vessels arrive and depart are now adequately patrollled, what provisions were made in the case of the Lusitania in view of the warning issued in America, whether Mr. Churchill was aware that, previously to last Friday, German submarines had for some time been actively at work on the south coast of Ireland, whether he was aware that the admiralty had provided torpedo-boat destroyers and other raval vessels to meet on the south of Ireland steamers carrying horses from the United States on Government account to convoy them to Liverpool, and finally, what arrange ments, if any, were made to convoy and protect the Lusitania? EXPECTED ATTACK. [Special Cable to The Advertiser.] Kinsale, Ireland, May 10 .- That he had knowledge that an attempt was to be made to torpedo the Lusitania was the statement made by the commander of the ill-fated liner here today. Testifying at the inquest into the deaths of five victims of the disaster, who were brought here, the captain said that, although the voyage was without incident up to the time his ship was struck, he had received information that an attempt would be made to sink him. Few Losses.

Mr. Churchill, replying to further questions, spoke as follows: "The shocking exception of the Lusi tania should not divert the attention of the House of Commons and the country m the fact that Great Britain's entire seaport trade has been carried on without appreciative loss. The general rinciple regarding the providing of an escort is that merchant traffic must look after itself, subject to the general as rangements of the admiralty, and there s no reason to suppose that this prin ciple is not entirely successful."

Advice Adopted. Andrew Bonar Law, leader of the Opposition in the House, asked if a report ad been received from the captain of the Lusitania showing that the instructions of the admiralty had come to his hands Mr. Churchill replied that both messages had been acknowledged. The second acknowledgement came a very short time before the attack was made ord Charies Beresford then inquired 11 Premier Asquith had received his let ter of April 15, warning him of the peril that met the Lusitania and whether this warning had gone unheeded. Churchill answered that Premier Asquith had handed him Lord Beresford's letter, and that it had been carefully studied at the admiralty. So far from being unheeded, a great many of the easures recommended already had been adopted on the largest possible scale.

Information Untrue. Asked if the German submarine which eank the Lusitania was of a larger typ than anything known prior to April 14, Mr. Churchill replied: "I have no knowledge of the size or number of this sub-

Miss Jolivet, who was among the survivors taken to Queenstown said she and Mr. Frohman were standing on deck as the Lusitania heeled over. They decided not to trust themselves to lifeboats, although Mr. Frohman believed the ship was doomed. It was after reaching this decision that he declared he had no fear of death.
