PLANTS FOR WINTER.

The Azalea a Most Satisfactory Bloomer to Raise.

Most persons who attempt to form collections of plants for winter flowering and begin late in the season buy small specimens with the expectation that these will-or at least ought-10 be large enough by winter to afford a generous crop of flowers. But the person who has had any experience along this line knows that it takes months for a plant to develop to a satisfactory flowering size and that little can be expected from small plants procured in late autumn. These may grow well, but they will surely disappoint one as to blossoms, says Eben E. Rexford.

Therefore if you want plants that will bloom well during the winter season get good sized ones. Of course you will have to pay more for them, but you will not mind that if flowers are the result of your investment.

One of the most satisfactory winter bloomers is the azalea. This plant can be procured from most dealers late in fall well set with buds. Do not attempt to repot it. The pot in which you buy it will be large enough to meet all requirements for the season, and to shift it at this period would be likely to cause it to drop its buds. A plant two or three feet across will cost as many dollars, but when it comes into bloom and is covered literally with its exquisite flowers, ranging in color from pure white to rose and carmine, you will not regret paying the price asked for it.

One of the most satisfactory winter bloomers is Primula obconica. This is a small, low growing plant, not taking up much room, therefore admirably adapted to small windows. Its flowers are produced constantly throughout the season and in wonderful profusion. They range in color from pure white to pale lilac and delicate flesh color. This plant likes a good deal of water and will fail to give satisfaction if you water it as you would a geranium.

Radical Changes In Sleeves For the

It is in the sleeves that radical changes may be expected this spring. Ever since the kimono sleeve began to ose caste the designers have attempted to introduce all sorts of new ideas into sleeves. But there is the satisfaction that it has brought into prominence sleeves of so many types that it is possible for every woman to select becom-ing ones. The low shoulder seam, so well received the earlier part of this winter, retains the popular feature of the kimono sleeve. The enlarged armhole is likewise an easy transition for the devotees of the kimono. On the Pastry Flour, Low Grade Flour, Bran and Shorts i newest gowns the armhole has shrunk

Valuable Household Hints.

Before creaming butter and sugar warm the bowl in the oven or fill it with hot water, empty and wipe dry. This expedites the process, and the heat is not so great as to melt the but-ter, the danger that is run if the butter is first warmed in the oven.

ANIMAL ETIQUETTE.

They Have a Well-Defined Code of Action All Their Own

Action All Their Own Every animal lover can tell numer-ous stories illustrating the devotion of animals to their human protectors. Anecdotes of one animal risking its life to save another are rare, but still sufficiently numerous and authentio to leave no doubt as to the occasional existence of deep love between ani-mals. But any close observer of nature will know that there exists through-out the brute creation a sort of moral system which, in the case of domestic animals, translates itself into what really amounts to a code of etiquette. The old proverb, "The dog with a bone has many friends," is nothing else than a recognition of canine eti-quette. It does not matter how small is the dog with the bone. It may be a Pomeranian surrounded by mastiffs. The mastiffs will still remain friendly. They will hover round the Pomeran-ian orcherse which a the starter how small a Pomeranian surrounded by mastiffs. The mastiffs will still remain friendly. They will hover round the Pomeran-ian, perhaps whining for a morsel (which is never offered), and eagerly picking up any splinter that may be dropped, when nothing would be eas-ier than to bowl the little dog over and seize the bone. You will notice, further, that the little dog becomes filled with new courage, presumably in the moral con-sciousness of the justice of his claim, and will growl and even snap at a dog he otherwise fears if the latter should come too close. But the moment a dog drops his bone a new rule of etiquette operates, for it becomes the property of the first dog who cares to pick it up. True, a dispute will sometimes arise as to whether the bone has actually been dropped "within the meaning of the Act." But once this is clear the law of the bone will be obgerved by all save the exceptional "hooligan" dog, met with occasionally, who outrages save the exceptional "hooligan" dog, met with occasionally, who outrages all the laws of dogdom, even to the biting of his master. Another rigid social law is that no gentleman dog must ever in any cir-cumstances, offer violence to a lady dog. It is not the slightest use to plead that "she began it." If a fe-male should so far forget herself, as not infrequently happens, the mere male has no alternative to enduring her snaps save seeking safety in her snaps save seeking safety flight. Of course, a dog, being only canine after all, will sometimes, under severe provocation, break this law. But if he is one of a pack it is ten to one that the other males will set upon him and to its normal proportions, and the novelty lies in the arrangement of the fullness of the sleeve. Fight as women may against fullness in the sleeves, fushion seems to favor it, and it is sure to come if the signs in the fashion world are read correctly. The costume pictured is a midseason affair that is most alluringly carried out in black velvet, moleskin and Persian embroideries. As may be seen, the moleskin is used in deep banded effect on the skirt, and the Persian trimming plays an important part in ornamenting the coat, do so if the other is eating or drink-ing. Dogs are by no means the only ani-mals that have a distinct sense of property. The squirrel regards his tree much as the dog regards his bone. He has a definite right to it, both as a dwelling and a means of subsistence; and on the rare occasions when an-other squirrel disputes the right or blunders accidentally on his tree, he will fight fiercely in defence of that which the law of the woods allows him to regard as his own. If he wishes to forage afield, he must choose a tree that has not been appropriated by one of his tribe.

He Got It From Pa And Ma.

He Got It From Pa And Ma. Little Jack was struggling through his home lessons, and there were many signs of woe and perplexity writ-ten on his impish young face. "Ma." he began in rather a quav-ering voice, "what does here-dity mean?" Mother wasn't quite sure herself, but she was sufficiently artful not to say so outright, so she answered vaguely: "Well, John, it's-er--it's some-thing to do with what you get from your father or me." Little Jack pondered deeply for a few moments. Suddenly a look of knowledge, the outcome of past un-happy experiences, appeared on his countenance. "Then is whipping heredity, ma?" he asked.

Keeping an Eye on the Fee.

Keeping an Eye on the Fee. The prisoner was charged with so trivial an offence that the judge told hum that if he would plead guilty be would let him off with a fine. "Before we plead guilty," replied the man's lawyer, "we'd like to know what the fine will be." "Tsn't it rather unusual to attempt to bargain with the court?" asked the judge. "Perhaps it is, your henor," replied the lawyer, "but in this case it is important. You see, the prisoner has only $12, and as my fee is $10 we ean't afford to plead guilty if you intend to fine him more than $2."
