

April
Twenty-fifth 1921.

Colonel W. E. Haskell,
International Paper Company,
30 Broad Street,
New York.

My dear Colonel:-

You will, I hope, forgive me for not acknowledging before this your letter of March 31st, but I had to wait a few days before the book arrived and then some further time elapsed before I was able to read the book.

Let me first thank you for thinking of me as one who would be interested in receiving such a publication, and then I want to congratulate you most warmly on its quality and upon the exceedingly interesting and instructive nature of its contents. To me it is brimful of the most enlightening information, and the veriest novice could not help but admire the cuts and prints. I have never seen anything so fine.

With all good wishes and many thanks, I am,

Ever yours faithfully,