The preceding Grammar, owing to the uncommon precision and brevity of the Definitions, Rules, and Notes, is not only better adapted to the capacity of children than the generality of those styled Introductory Grammars, but it is so extensively provided with exercises of every sort, that it will entirely supersede the use of Mr. Murray's Larger Grammar and Exercises; for it is a mere outline, like his Abridgement, which contains only about seven pages of exercises on bad Grammar. This contains more than sixty. This contains a convolete course of Grammar, and supersedes the use of any other book of the kind.

In short, by abridging every subject of minor importance; by omitting liscussion on the numberless points about which grammarians differ, by rendering the rules and definitions more perspicuous, and at the mane time abridging them more than one-half; by selecting short sentences on bad grammar; by leaving few broken lines, and printing them close together—as many exercises under each rule of syntax ere compressed into this epitome as there are in Mr. Murray's volume of Exercises; so that the use of his Abridgement, his larger Grammar, and that of his Exercises, are completely superseded by this little volume at 1s. 6d.; while at the same time, the learner will acquire as much knowledge of grammar with this in six months, as with all those volumes in twelve.

The truth of this, as well as the unspeakable advantage of having the Grammar and Exercises in one volume, teachers will perceive at a glance: but as parents may not so quickly perceive the superior brevity and accuracy of the rules, it may not be improper to assist them a little, by comparing a few of the rules in this with those of Mr. Murray's: thus,

Rule II.—Two or more nouns, &c., in the singular number, joined together by a* copulative conjunction expressed or understood, must have verbs, nouns, and pronouns agreeing with them in the plural number; as, "Socrates and Plato were wise; they were the most eminent philosophers of Greece." "The sun that rolls ever our heads, the food that we receive, the rest that we enjoy, daily admonish us of a superior and superintending power."—p. 143.

Correspondent Rules in this.

Rule IV.—Two or more singular nouns, coupled with and, require a verb and pronoun in the plural number; as, James and John are good boys, for they are busy.—p. 83.

This rule is not only vague, but incorrect; for a means any one; now any copulative conjunction will not combine the agency of two or more into one; none but and will do that.—Mr. M.'s third rule is equally vague.
