

atch-- qui"
Ask Your Dealer
AN y nd malts, sively for
O., Ltd.
CO
etail
WOOD
CO.
Branch Yard:
1143 Yonge.
Phone North 1122-1123
AN TREATMENT
TURKISH GARRISON
Captives After Fall of Anople Allowed to Starve.
RK, May 12.—(Can. Press).—
The Tribune from London connected with the Be-resident staff gives an ac-ture of the treatment of soners after the capture of She says the prisoners of the sick baggage atives as best they could ed the bark from trees to smoke fires, but as they were forced to make to eat the bark and
s. are all gaunt and weak, suffering from lack of food,
water, and a piece of bread, the day in the day and at night. Some hoarsely water, one or two prayed, ed or screamed in agony.
Morty lay in a dumb ment misery more touching ords or moans. Their eyes en in their heads, their in into great hollows, their cing thru their skin with d their lips and tongues acked and useless.
AY GIVEN WARNING.
May 12.—(Can. Press).—
The Nottingham Boat Club, believes, was undoubtedly fragates. Three oil can man's bonnet were found of the Midland Railway to an anonymous letter, saying that the boat club act will be attempted in a to wreck a main line of the railway authorities think perhaps is a hoax, they are cautions.
OF GALLANT OFFICER.
CG, May 12.—(Can. Press).—
The Wm. Trayner, who the King's medal on May pious bravery on Aug. 1,
in the King's medal on Aug.
Frank Jones, who are long terms in Kingston
v. In the encounter Tray-d a bullet in his body.

JOHN CATTO & SON
Campers and Cottagers
Now that the Out-of-Doors season is upon us, and we have to remind all who are in need of furnishings for Summer Homes or Camps that we are exceptionally good, position to supply these in every quality, grade and price suitable for all requirements. Special Values in Table Cloths, Napkins, Towels, Bath Towels, Sheets, Pillow Cases, Cotton Blankets, Summer Bed Spreads, Feather Pillows, Verandah Wreaths, Cushions, Lawn Curtains, Nets, Madras Muslin, etc., etc.
SPECIAL PRICES DURING MAY.
Linen Embroidery Bed Spreads
The "Twin" beds, handsomely embroidered and hemstitched on pure heavy linen in a variety of chaste patterns. Regularly $11.00, $12.00, $22.00, $25.00. SPECIAL, $15.00 PAIR.
Pillow Cases
Hemstitched and Embroidered Pure Linen Pillow Cases, 22 1/2 x 36-inch, handsome designs and very special at 75c and $2.00 pair.
Also Hemstitched Plain Linen at $1.75 per pair. Regular $2.25 value.
Lunch Cloths
54-inch Round Cloth, Lace Trimmed Lunch Cloths, beautiful designs, but slightly counterfeited.
Regularly up to $2.50 EACH.
CLEARING AT $2.00 EACH.
45-inch Lunch Cloths (one above) TO CLEAR, $6.00 EACH.
Regularly up to $12.00.
New Stocks Just In
Ladies' Summer Blouses, Ladies' Kid Gloves, Ladies' Silk Gloves, Ladies' Kid Underwear, Ladies' Hosiery.
Shedland Spencers
for hosting and evening wear.
Rugs for Motor Cars, Carriages and Steamer Use from $1.50, $2.00, $4.00, $5.00 to $15.00 each.
MAIL ORDERS CAREFULLY FILLED.
JOHN CATTO & SON
15 to 61 King St. E., Toronto ed AIM TO ENSURE
PEACE IN FUTURE
Cessation of All Work for Five Minutes Feature of Celebration.
NEW YORK, May 12.—(Can. Press).—The proclamation of peace in the future as well as the celebration of its preservation in the past is the purpose of the international committee now planning for the commemoration of the first century of peace among English-speaking nations. This central idea was announced today in a report which gives formal expression to the committee's plan for the celebration of the centenary of the signing of the Peace of Westphalia. At the time fixed for laying the cornerstones of peace monuments in the United States, Great Britain, Canada and Australia, the report recommends that all these nations should observe the day as a public assemblage are practicable the interval should be occupied by the reading of the inscription on these monuments. Appropriate addresses should be delivered in the schools and the pupils should be given a half-holiday. Other foreign governments should be asked to send representatives to attend the more important of these ceremonies.
Peace Monuments.
In addition to the monuments suggested for the boundary between the United States and Canada, the report calls attention to the desirability of erecting similar monuments in the great centres of population. No specific locations are recommended for these. It is suggested that the best of these international boundary monuments, particularly the one for a bridge over the Niagara River, be left to a committee of six, evenly representing the United States and Canada, and that the committee should be composed of architects and engineers.
Protesting against the suggestions made for the celebration of peace day in the public schools of the city on May 13, a delegation representing the United Irish-American Society and the German-American Citizens' League waited upon Mayor Gaynor today.
Behman Show.
Jack Singer's "Behman Show," at the Gayety Theatre this week, is easily the best show presented by the boulevard circuit this year. Singer seems to know what the majority of burlesque patrons want, and he gives it to them in a well balanced show, filled with good comedy, good singing, and good vaudeville. "What would become of Toronto if York street wasn't there?" is Lew Kelly's parody on the Broadway hit, the best parody ever written. Fred Wyckoff, Lon Hagan and the Casino look after the remainder of the meretricious machinery and keep everything running smoothly.

THE WEATHER
OBSERVATORY, TORONTO, May 12.—(3 p.m.).—Pressure is lowest to north of Lake Superior and in the southwestern states, and is nowhere high. Rain has fallen today in the Lake Superior region, and locally in Manitoba and Alberta, while temperatures have fallen considerably in Manitoba and Saskatchewan.
Minimum and maximum temperatures: Vancouver, 44-54; Kamloops, 46-58; Edmonton, 22-56; Calgary, 32-54; Battleford, 34-44; Moose Jaw, 36-51; Port Arthur, 35-54; Parry Sound, 34-64; London, 31-58; Toronto, 45-60; Kingston, 32-56; Ottawa, 32-64; Montreal, 42-64; Quebec, 36-60; St. John, 38-52; Halifax, 36-56.
Lower Lakes and Georgian Bay.—Fresh west to northerly winds; showers in some localities at first, but mostly fair.
Ottawa Valley and Upper St. Lawrence.—Moderate to fresh south to west winds, with showers.
Lower St. Lawrence and Gulf.—Moderate to fresh southwest winds; showers, chiefly towards evening and at night.
Maritime.—Moderate to fresh west to south winds; fair today; local showers by Wednesday.
Superior.—Fresh northwest to north winds; fair and cool.
Manitoba and Saskatchewan.—Generally fair and cool.
Alberta.—Showers in some localities, but partly fair and cool.
THE BAROMETER.
Time. Ther. Bar. Wind.
8 a.m. 47 29.71 4 W.
Noon 57 29.65 14 S.
2 p.m. 63 29.65 14 S.
4 p.m. 63 29.47 12 W.
8 p.m. 53 29.47 12 W.
Mean of day, 56.5; difference from average, 5 below; highest, 60; lowest, 35.
STEAMSHIP ARRIVALS.
May 12. At. From.
Scandinavian. Quebec. Glasgow
Corsican. Quebec. Liverpool
Scottian. Quebec. London
Manitoba. New York. Genoa
Hamburg. New York. Genoa
Dominion. Philadelphia. Liverpool
Credit. Boston. Genoa
Athena. Glasgow. St. John
Cameroon. Glasgow. New York
Tunisian. Liverpool. Montreal
K.P. Wilhelm. Plymouth. New York
Koenig Albert. Naples. New York
STREET CAR DELAYS
Monday, May 12, 1913.
9.20 a.m.—Wagon stuck on track, King and Yonge; 3 minutes' delay to Yonge, College Avenue road and Dupont cars.
9.20 p.m.—Parade, Queen and Bay; 4 minutes' delay to westbound Queen and Parliament cars.
9.12 p.m.—Held by train, G. T. R. crossing; 4 minutes' delay to King cars.
9.44 p.m.—Held by train, Front and John; 3 minutes' delay to Bathurst cars.
BIRTHS
DONOVAN—On May 11, 1913, to Mr. and Mrs. George R. Donovan, 564 Dufferin street, a son.
STODDARD—On Saturday, May 3, 1913, to Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Stoddard, Parkdale Mansions, a son.
MARRIAGES
NOBLE-MOGRAHE—On May 7, 1913, by Rev. Byron Stauffer, Violet Lavina McGrath to John Noble, M.D., both of Toronto.
DEATHS
BROWNLEE—On Sunday, May 11, 1913, at her late residence, 107 Essex avenue, Toronto, Elizabeth Jane, beloved wife of Thomas Brownlee, aged 58 years.
Funeral from above address on Wednesday at 2 p.m. Interment at Woodlawn Cemetery.
Alliston, Ont. and Sunderland, England, papers please copy.
BROWN—On Monday, May 12, 1913, at his late residence, 49 Isabella street, Perry E. beloved husband of Rebecca Brown, in his 74th year.
Funeral service at the above address on Tuesday at 8 p.m. Interment at Port Perry, Ont., Wednesday on arrival of Port Perry papers please copy.
BROOKE—On May 12, 1913, at his late residence, Dollar, P.Q., Christopher Brooke, in his 64th year.
Funeral Wednesday, May 14, at 2 p.m. Interment at Brown's Corners Presbyterian Cemetery.
DAVIDSON—On Sunday, May 11, 1913, at Toronto General Hospital, Frederick Davidson (police constable, No. 2 Division), in his 24th year.
Funeral Wednesday, May 14, at 2.30 p.m. from B. D. Humphrey's, 1058 Yonge street, to Mount Pleasant Cemetery.
MILLER—Suddenly, on Saturday, May 10, 1913, at the home of her sister, Mrs. Cyrus McBean, Winnipeg, Man. Isabella, eldest daughter of the late James and Agnes Miller (date of The T. Eaton Co.)
Funeral from J. A. Humphrey & Son's Chapel, 463 Church street, on Thursday, the 15th inst., at 2.30 p.m. to Mount Pleasant Cemetery.
REID—On Saturday, May 10, 1913, at her residence, 55 Chestnut Park Road, Hugh Reid, in his 73rd year.
Interment in Mount Pleasant Cemetery Tuesday, 3 p.m. Funeral private.
REID—On May 12, at 57 Montrose avenue, Christopher W. Reid, beloved husband of Ellen McDonald, passed peacefully away.
Funeral Wednesday, May 14, from above address, at 2.30 p.m. to Prospect Cemetery. Friends kindly accept intimation.
ROBERTS—On Monday, May 12, 1913, at the residence, "Edith House," Deer Park, Toronto, Edith M. Skelton, beloved wife of Elias Rogers.
Funeral private.
Use Gibbons' Toothache Gum—Sold by all druggists. Price 10 Cents. 246 SUMMERSVILLE.
"That George Sheath, who died on Tuesday, May 6, came to his death by accident when driving a team of horses on the farm of Mr. A. W. Clark, of Summersville, and that no blame is attached to anyone," was the verdict of Coroner John W. Russell's jury at the inquest held yesterday afternoon.

THE TORONTO WORLD
FIRST NIGHT AT TORONTO THEATRES
CLEVER ACTING IN STRONG PLAY
"The Reckless Age" Drew Capacity Audience to the Princess.
BREATHLESS RECITAL
Interest Never Flags for a Moment Thru Entire Story.
A drama so closely knit in interest and so intense in feeling, so modern in incident, and so sympathetic in character, with a superb cast, whose combined efforts produce the effect that one usually looks for in vain except from a first-class English company, can have only one result, never looked into, and not out of. The plot turns on the willful waywardness of a young heiress, Claudia Beaufort, who thinks that freedom and happiness consist in winning and dining, and gambling and flirting, and the like. Joy-riding appeals to her, and the upshot is a scene in a road house at 2 o'clock on a Sunday morning, in which a police officer and an Irish publican and his wife appear. A man has been killed by a motorcar, and his mate is charged with murder. Except for the dramatic treatment of the conditions of the lives and the homes of the rich Maggie Upson, Ed. Thomas and Will Upson might have been left out of the staging of the story. But their presence binds the plot, and illuminates the other characters by the reactions they provoke. The second act, in consequence, becomes a breathless recital, in which the great Cry-Joy-riding appeals to her, and the upshot is a scene in a road house at 2 o'clock on a Sunday morning, in which a police officer and an Irish publican and his wife appear. A man has been killed by a motorcar, and his mate is charged with murder. Except for the dramatic treatment of the conditions of the lives and the homes of the rich Maggie Upson, Ed. Thomas and Will Upson might have been left out of the staging of the story. But their presence binds the plot, and illuminates the other characters by the reactions they provoke. The second act, in consequence, becomes a breathless recital, in which the great Cry-Joy-riding appeals to her, and the upshot is a scene in a road house at 2 o'clock on a Sunday morning, in which a police officer and an Irish publican and his wife appear. A man has been killed by a motorcar, and his mate is charged with murder. Except for the dramatic treatment of the conditions of the lives and the homes of the rich Maggie Upson, Ed. Thomas and Will Upson might have been left out of the staging of the story. But their presence binds the plot, and illuminates the other characters by the reactions they provoke. The second act, in consequence, becomes a breathless recital, in which the great Cry-Joy-riding appeals to her, and the upshot is a scene in a road house at 2 o'clock on a Sunday morning, in which a police officer and an Irish publican and his wife appear. A man has been killed by a motorcar, and his mate is charged with murder. Except for the dramatic treatment of the conditions of the lives and the homes of the rich Maggie Upson, Ed. Thomas and Will Upson might have been left out of the staging of the story. But their presence binds the plot, and illuminates the other characters by the reactions they provoke. The second act, in consequence, becomes a breathless recital, in which the great Cry-Joy-riding appeals to her, and the upshot is a scene in a road house at 2 o'clock on a Sunday morning, in which a police officer and an Irish publican and his wife appear. A man has been killed by a motorcar, and his mate is charged with murder. Except for the dramatic treatment of the conditions of the lives and the homes of the rich Maggie Upson, Ed. Thomas and Will Upson might have been left out of the staging of the story. But their presence binds the plot, and illuminates the other characters by the reactions they provoke. The second act, in consequence, becomes a breathless recital, in which the great Cry-Joy-riding appeals to her, and the upshot is a scene in a road house at 2 o'clock on a Sunday morning, in which a police officer and an Irish publican and his wife appear. A man has been killed by a motorcar, and his mate is charged with murder. Except for the dramatic treatment of the conditions of the lives and the homes of the rich Maggie Upson, Ed. Thomas and Will Upson might have been left out of the staging of the story. But their presence binds the plot, and illuminates the other characters by the reactions they provoke. The second act, in consequence, becomes a breathless recital, in which the great Cry-Joy-riding appeals to her, and the upshot is a scene in a road house at 2 o'clock on a Sunday morning, in which a police officer and an Irish publican and his wife appear. A man has been killed by a motorcar, and his mate is charged with murder. Except for the dramatic treatment of the conditions of the lives and the homes of the rich Maggie Upson, Ed. Thomas and Will Upson might have been left out of the staging of the story. But their presence binds the plot, and illuminates the other characters by the reactions they provoke. The second act, in consequence, becomes a breathless recital, in which the great Cry-Joy-riding appeals to her, and the upshot is a scene in a road house at 2 o'clock on a Sunday morning, in which a police officer and an Irish publican and his wife appear. A man has been killed by a motorcar, and his mate is charged with murder. Except for the dramatic treatment of the conditions of the lives and the homes of the rich Maggie Upson, Ed. Thomas and Will Upson might have been left out of the staging of the story. But their presence binds the plot, and illuminates the other characters by the reactions they provoke. The second act, in consequence, becomes a breathless recital, in which the great Cry-Joy-riding appeals to her, and the upshot is a scene in a road house at 2 o'clock on a Sunday morning, in which a police officer and an Irish publican and his wife appear. A man has been killed by a motorcar, and his mate is charged with murder. Except for the dramatic treatment of the conditions of the lives and the homes of the rich Maggie Upson, Ed. Thomas and Will Upson might have been left out of the staging of the story. But their presence binds the plot, and illuminates the other characters by the reactions they provoke. The second act, in consequence, becomes a breathless recital, in which the great Cry-Joy-riding appeals to her, and the upshot is a scene in a road house at 2 o'clock on a Sunday morning, in which a police officer and an Irish publican and his wife appear. A man has been killed by a motorcar, and his mate is charged with murder. Except for the dramatic treatment of the conditions of the lives and the homes of the rich Maggie Upson, Ed. Thomas and Will Upson might have been left out of the staging of the story. But their presence binds the plot, and illuminates the other characters by the reactions they provoke. The second act, in consequence, becomes a breathless recital, in which the great Cry-Joy-riding appeals to her, and the upshot is a scene in a road house at 2 o'clock on a Sunday morning, in which a police officer and an Irish publican and his wife appear. A man has been killed by a motorcar, and his mate is charged with murder. Except for the dramatic treatment of the conditions of the lives and the homes of the rich Maggie Upson, Ed. Thomas and Will Upson might have been left out of the staging of the story. But their presence binds the plot, and illuminates the other characters by the reactions they provoke. The second act, in consequence, becomes a breathless recital, in which the great Cry-Joy-riding appeals to her, and the upshot is a scene in a road house at 2 o'clock on a Sunday morning, in which a police officer and an Irish publican and his wife appear. A man has been killed by a motorcar, and his mate is charged with murder. Except for the dramatic treatment of the conditions of the lives and the homes of the rich Maggie Upson, Ed. Thomas and Will Upson might have been left out of the staging of the story. But their presence binds the plot, and illuminates the other characters by the reactions they provoke. The second act, in consequence, becomes a breathless recital, in which the great Cry-Joy-riding appeals to her, and the upshot is a scene in a road house at 2 o'clock on a Sunday morning, in which a police officer and an Irish publican and his wife appear. A man has been killed by a motorcar, and his mate is charged with murder. Except for the dramatic treatment of the conditions of the lives and the homes of the rich Maggie Upson, Ed. Thomas and Will Upson might have been left out of the staging of the story. But their presence binds the plot, and illuminates the other characters by the reactions they provoke. The second act, in consequence, becomes a breathless recital, in which the great Cry-Joy-riding appeals to her, and the upshot is a scene in a road house at 2 o'clock on a Sunday morning, in which a police officer and an Irish publican and his wife appear. A man has been killed by a motorcar, and his mate is charged with murder. Except for the dramatic treatment of the conditions of the lives and the homes of the rich Maggie Upson, Ed. Thomas and Will Upson might have been left out of the staging of the story. But their presence binds the plot, and illuminates the other characters by the reactions they provoke. The second act, in consequence, becomes a breathless recital, in which the great Cry-Joy-riding appeals to her, and the upshot is a scene in a road house at 2 o'clock on a Sunday morning, in which a police officer and an Irish publican and his wife appear. A man has been killed by a motorcar, and his mate is charged with murder. Except for the dramatic treatment of the conditions of the lives and the homes of the rich Maggie Upson, Ed. Thomas and Will Upson might have been left out of the staging of the story. But their presence binds the plot, and illuminates the other characters by the reactions they provoke. The second act, in consequence, becomes a breathless recital, in which the great Cry-Joy-riding appeals to her, and the upshot is a scene in a road house at 2 o'clock on a Sunday morning, in which a police officer and an Irish publican and his wife appear. A man has been killed by a motorcar, and his mate is charged with murder. Except for the dramatic treatment of the conditions of the lives and the homes of the rich Maggie Upson, Ed. Thomas and Will Upson might have been left out of the staging of the story. But their presence binds the plot, and illuminates the other characters by the reactions they provoke. The second act, in consequence, becomes a breathless recital, in which the great Cry-Joy-riding appeals to her, and the upshot is a scene in a road house at 2 o'clock on a Sunday morning, in which a police officer and an Irish publican and his wife appear. A man has been killed by a motorcar, and his mate is charged with murder. Except for the dramatic treatment of the conditions of the lives and the homes of the rich Maggie Upson, Ed. Thomas and Will Upson might have been left out of the staging of the story. But their presence binds the plot, and illuminates the other characters by the reactions they provoke. The second act, in consequence, becomes a breathless recital, in which the great Cry-Joy-riding appeals to her, and the upshot is a scene in a road house at 2 o'clock on a Sunday morning, in which a police officer and an Irish publican and his wife appear. A man has been killed by a motorcar, and his mate is charged with murder. Except for the dramatic treatment of the conditions of the lives and the homes of the rich Maggie Upson, Ed. Thomas and Will Upson might have been left out of the staging of the story. But their presence binds the plot, and illuminates the other characters by the reactions they provoke. The second act, in consequence, becomes a breathless recital, in which the great Cry-Joy-riding appeals to her, and the upshot is a scene in a road house at 2 o'clock on a Sunday morning, in which a police officer and an Irish publican and his wife appear. A man has been killed by a motorcar, and his mate is charged with murder. Except for the dramatic treatment of the conditions of the lives and the homes of the rich Maggie Upson, Ed. Thomas and Will Upson might have been left out of the staging of the story. But their presence binds the plot, and illuminates the other characters by the reactions they provoke. The second act, in consequence, becomes a breathless recital, in which the great Cry-Joy-riding appeals to her, and the upshot is a scene in a road house at 2 o'clock on a Sunday morning, in which a police officer and an Irish publican and his wife appear. A man has been killed by a motorcar, and his mate is charged with murder. Except for the dramatic treatment of the conditions of the lives and the homes of the rich Maggie Upson, Ed. Thomas and Will Upson might have been left out of the staging of the story. But their presence binds the plot, and illuminates the other characters by the reactions they provoke. The second act, in consequence, becomes a breathless recital, in which the great Cry-Joy-riding appeals to her, and the upshot is a scene in a road house at 2 o'clock on a Sunday morning, in which a police officer and an Irish publican and his wife appear. A man has been killed by a motorcar, and his mate is charged with murder. Except for the dramatic treatment of the conditions of the lives and the homes of the rich Maggie Upson, Ed. Thomas and Will Upson might have been left out of the staging of the story. But their presence binds the plot, and illuminates the other characters by the reactions they provoke. The second act, in consequence, becomes a breathless recital, in which the great Cry-Joy-riding appeals to her, and the upshot is a scene in a road house at 2 o'clock on a Sunday morning, in which a police officer and an Irish publican and his wife appear. A man has been killed by a motorcar, and his mate is charged with murder. Except for the dramatic treatment of the conditions of the lives and the homes of the rich Maggie Upson, Ed. Thomas and Will Upson might have been left out of the staging of the story. But their presence binds the plot, and illuminates the other characters by the reactions they provoke. The second act, in consequence, becomes a breathless recital, in which the great Cry-Joy-riding appeals to her, and the upshot is a scene in a road house at 2 o'clock on a Sunday morning, in which a police officer and an Irish publican and his wife appear. A man has been killed by a motorcar, and his mate is charged with murder. Except for the dramatic treatment of the conditions of the lives and the homes of the rich Maggie Upson, Ed. Thomas and Will Upson might have been left out of the staging of the story. But their presence binds the plot, and illuminates the other characters by the reactions they provoke. The second act, in consequence, becomes a breathless recital, in which the great Cry-Joy-riding appeals to her, and the upshot is a scene in a road house at 2 o'clock on a Sunday morning, in which a police officer and an Irish publican and his wife appear. A man has been killed by a motorcar, and his mate is charged with murder. Except for the dramatic treatment of the conditions of the lives and the homes of the rich Maggie Upson, Ed. Thomas and Will Upson might have been left out of the staging of the story. But their presence binds the plot, and illuminates the other characters by the reactions they provoke. The second act, in consequence, becomes a breathless recital, in which the great Cry-Joy-riding appeals to her, and the upshot is a scene in a road house at 2 o'clock on a Sunday morning, in which a police officer and an Irish publican and his wife appear. A man has been killed by a motorcar, and his mate is charged with murder. Except for the dramatic treatment of the conditions of the lives and the homes of the rich Maggie Upson, Ed. Thomas and Will Upson might have been left out of the staging of the story. But their presence binds the plot, and illuminates the other characters by the reactions they provoke. The second act, in consequence, becomes a breathless recital, in which the great Cry-Joy-riding appeals to her, and the upshot is a scene in a road house at 2 o'clock on a Sunday morning, in which a police officer and an Irish publican and his wife appear. A man has been killed by a motorcar, and his mate is charged with murder. Except for the dramatic treatment of the conditions of the lives and the homes of the rich Maggie Upson, Ed. Thomas and Will Upson might have been left out of the staging of the story. But their presence binds the plot, and illuminates the other characters by the reactions they provoke. The second act, in consequence, becomes a breathless recital, in which the great Cry-Joy-riding appeals to her, and the upshot is a scene in a road house at 2 o'clock on a Sunday morning, in which a police officer and an Irish publican and his wife appear. A man has been killed by a motorcar, and his mate is charged with murder. Except for the dramatic treatment of the conditions of the lives and the homes of the rich Maggie Upson, Ed. Thomas and Will Upson might have been left out of the staging of the story. But their presence binds the plot, and illuminates the other characters by the reactions they provoke. The second act, in consequence, becomes a breathless recital, in which the great Cry-Joy-riding appeals to her, and the upshot is a scene in a road house at 2 o'clock on a Sunday morning, in which a police officer and an Irish publican and his wife appear. A man has been killed by a motorcar, and his mate is charged with murder. Except for the dramatic treatment of the conditions of the lives and the homes of the rich Maggie Upson, Ed. Thomas and Will Upson might have been left out of the staging of the story. But their presence binds the plot, and illuminates the other characters by the reactions they provoke. The second act, in consequence, becomes a breathless recital, in which the great Cry-Joy-riding appeals to her, and the upshot is a scene in a road house at 2 o'clock on a Sunday morning, in which a police officer and an Irish publican and his wife appear. A man has been killed by a motorcar, and his mate is charged with murder. Except for the dramatic treatment of the conditions of the lives and the homes of the rich Maggie Upson, Ed. Thomas and Will Upson might have been left out of the staging of the story. But their presence binds the plot, and illuminates the other characters by the reactions they provoke. The second act, in consequence, becomes a breathless recital, in which the great Cry-Joy-riding appeals to her, and the upshot is a scene in a road house at 2 o'clock on a Sunday morning, in which a police officer and an Irish publican and his wife appear. A man has been killed by a motorcar, and his mate is charged with murder. Except for the dramatic treatment of the conditions of the lives and the homes of the rich Maggie Upson, Ed. Thomas and Will Upson might have been left out of the staging of the story. But their presence binds the plot, and illuminates the other characters by the reactions they provoke. The second act, in consequence, becomes a breathless recital, in which the great Cry-Joy-riding appeals to her, and the upshot is a scene in a road house at 2 o'clock on a Sunday morning, in which a police officer and an Irish publican and his wife appear. A man has been killed by a motorcar, and his mate is charged with murder. Except for the dramatic treatment of the conditions of the lives and the homes of the rich Maggie Upson, Ed. Thomas and Will Upson might have been left out of the staging of the story. But their presence binds the plot, and illuminates the other characters by the reactions they provoke. The second act, in consequence, becomes a breathless recital, in which the great Cry-Joy-riding appeals to her, and the upshot is a scene in a road house at 2 o'clock on a Sunday morning, in which a police officer and an Irish publican and his wife appear. A man has been killed by a motorcar, and his mate is charged with murder. Except for the dramatic treatment of the conditions of the lives and the homes of the rich Maggie Upson, Ed. Thomas and Will Upson might have been left out of the staging of the story. But their presence binds the plot, and illuminates the other characters by the reactions they provoke. The second act, in consequence, becomes a breathless recital, in which the great Cry-Joy-riding appeals to her, and the upshot is a scene in a road house at 2 o'clock on a Sunday morning, in which a police officer and an Irish publican and his wife appear. A man has been killed by a motorcar, and his mate is charged with murder. Except for the dramatic treatment of the conditions of the lives and the homes of the rich Maggie Upson, Ed. Thomas and Will Upson might have been left out of the staging of the story. But their presence binds the plot, and illuminates the other characters by the reactions they provoke. The second act, in consequence, becomes a breathless recital, in which the great Cry-Joy-riding appeals to her, and the upshot is a scene in a road house at 2 o'clock on a Sunday morning, in which a police officer and an Irish publican and his wife appear. A man has been killed by a motorcar, and his mate is charged with murder. Except for the dramatic treatment of the conditions of the lives and the homes of the rich Maggie Upson, Ed. Thomas and Will Upson might have been left out of the staging of the story. But their presence binds the plot, and illuminates the other characters by the reactions they provoke. The second act, in consequence, becomes a breathless recital, in which the great Cry-Joy-riding appeals to her, and the upshot is a scene in a road house at 2 o'clock on a Sunday morning, in which a police officer and an Irish publican and his wife appear. A man has been killed by a motorcar, and his mate is charged with murder. Except for the dramatic treatment of the conditions of the lives and the homes of the rich Maggie Upson, Ed. Thomas and Will Upson might have been left out of the staging of the story. But their presence binds the plot, and illuminates the other characters by the reactions they provoke. The second act, in consequence, becomes a breathless recital, in which the great Cry-Joy-riding appeals to her, and the upshot is a scene in a road house at 2 o'clock on a Sunday morning, in which a police officer and an Irish publican and his wife appear. A man has been killed by a motorcar, and his mate is charged with murder. Except for the dramatic treatment of the conditions of the lives and the homes of the rich Maggie Upson, Ed. Thomas and Will Upson might have been left out of the staging of the story. But their presence binds the plot, and illuminates the other characters by the reactions they provoke. The second act, in consequence, becomes a breathless recital, in which the great Cry-Joy-riding appeals to her, and the upshot is a scene in a road house at 2 o'clock on a Sunday morning, in which a police officer and an Irish publican and his wife appear. A man has been killed by a motorcar, and his mate is charged with murder. Except for the dramatic treatment of the conditions of the lives and the homes of the rich Maggie Upson, Ed. Thomas and Will Upson might have been left out of the staging of the story. But their presence binds the plot, and illuminates the other characters by the reactions they provoke. The second act, in consequence, becomes a breathless recital, in which the great Cry-Joy-riding appeals to her, and the upshot is a scene in a road house at 2 o'clock on a Sunday morning, in which a police officer and an Irish publican and his wife appear. A man has been killed by a motorcar, and his mate is charged with murder. Except for the dramatic treatment of the conditions of the lives and the homes of the rich Maggie Upson, Ed. Thomas and Will Upson might have been left out of the staging of the story. But their presence binds the plot, and illuminates the other characters by the reactions they provoke. The second act, in consequence, becomes a breathless recital, in which the great Cry-Joy-riding appeals to her, and the upshot is a scene in a road house at 2 o'clock on a Sunday morning, in which a police officer and an Irish publican and his wife appear. A man has been killed by a motorcar, and his mate is charged with murder. Except for the dramatic treatment of the conditions of the lives and the homes of the rich Maggie Upson, Ed. Thomas and Will Upson might have been left out of the staging of the story. But their presence binds the plot, and illuminates the other characters by the reactions they provoke. The second act, in consequence, becomes a breathless recital, in which the great Cry-Joy-riding appeals to her, and the upshot is a scene in a road house at 2 o'clock on a Sunday morning, in which a police officer and an Irish publican and his wife appear. A man has been killed by a motorcar, and his mate is charged with murder. Except for the dramatic treatment of the conditions of the lives and the homes of the rich Maggie Upson, Ed. Thomas and Will Upson might have been left out of the staging of the story. But their presence binds the plot, and illuminates the other characters by the reactions they provoke. The second act, in consequence, becomes a breathless recital, in which the great Cry-Joy-riding appeals to her, and the upshot is a scene in a road house at 2 o'clock on a Sunday morning, in which a police officer and an Irish publican and his wife appear. A man has been killed by a motorcar, and his mate is charged with murder. Except for the dramatic treatment of the conditions of the lives and the homes of the rich Maggie Upson, Ed. Thomas and Will Upson might have been left out of the staging of the story. But their presence binds the plot, and illuminates the other characters by the reactions they provoke. The second act, in consequence, becomes a breathless recital, in which the great Cry-Joy-riding appeals to her, and the upshot is a scene in a road house at 2 o'clock on a Sunday morning, in which a police officer and an Irish publican and his wife appear. A man has been killed by a motorcar, and his mate is charged with murder. Except for the dramatic treatment of the conditions of the lives and the homes of the rich Maggie Upson, Ed. Thomas and Will Upson might have been left out of the staging of the story. But their presence binds the plot, and illuminates the other characters by the reactions they provoke. The second act, in consequence, becomes a breathless recital, in which the great Cry-Joy-riding appeals to her, and the upshot is a scene in a road house at 2 o'clock on a Sunday morning, in which a police officer and an Irish publican and his wife appear. A man has been killed by a motorcar, and his mate is charged with murder. Except for the dramatic treatment of the conditions of the lives and the homes of the rich Maggie Upson, Ed. Thomas and Will Upson might have been left out of the staging of the story. But their presence binds the plot, and illuminates the other characters by the reactions they provoke. The second act, in consequence, becomes a breathless recital, in which the great Cry-Joy-riding appeals to her, and the upshot is a scene in a road house at 2 o'clock on a Sunday morning, in which a police officer and an Irish publican and his wife appear. A man has been killed by a motorcar, and his mate is charged with murder. Except for the dramatic treatment of the conditions of the lives and the homes of the rich Maggie Upson, Ed. Thomas and Will Upson might have been left out of the staging of the story. But their presence binds the plot, and illuminates the other characters by the reactions they provoke. The second act, in consequence, becomes a breathless recital, in which the great Cry-Joy-riding appeals to her, and the upshot is a scene in a road house at 2 o'clock on a Sunday morning, in which a police officer and an Irish publican and his wife appear. A man has been killed by a motorcar, and his mate is charged with murder. Except for the dramatic treatment of the conditions of the lives and the homes of the rich Maggie Upson, Ed. Thomas and Will Upson might have been left out of the staging of the story. But their presence binds the plot, and illuminates the other characters by the reactions they provoke. The second act, in consequence, becomes a breathless recital, in which the great Cry-Joy-riding appeals to her, and the upshot is a scene in a road house at 2 o'clock on a Sunday morning, in which a police officer and an Irish publican and his wife appear. A man has been killed by a motorcar, and his mate is charged with murder. Except for the dramatic treatment of the conditions of the lives and the homes of the rich Maggie Upson, Ed. Thomas and Will Upson might have been left out of the staging of the story. But their presence binds the plot, and illuminates the other characters by the reactions they provoke. The second act, in consequence, becomes a breathless recital, in which the great Cry-Joy-riding appeals to her, and the upshot is a scene in a road house at 2 o'clock on a Sunday morning, in which a police officer and an Irish publican and his wife appear. A man has been killed by a motorcar, and his mate is charged with murder. Except for the dramatic treatment of the conditions of the lives and the homes of the rich Maggie Upson, Ed. Thomas and Will Upson might have been left out of the staging of the story. But their presence binds the plot, and illuminates the other characters by the reactions they provoke. The second act, in consequence, becomes a breathless recital, in which the great Cry-Joy-riding appeals to her, and the upshot is a scene in a road house at 2 o'clock on a Sunday morning, in which a police officer and an Irish publican and his wife appear. A man has been killed by a motorcar, and his mate is charged with murder. Except for the dramatic treatment of the conditions of the lives and the homes of the rich Maggie Upson, Ed. Thomas and Will Upson might have been left out of the staging of the story. But their presence binds the plot, and illuminates the other characters by the reactions they provoke. The second act, in consequence, becomes a breathless recital, in which the great Cry-Joy-riding appeals to her, and the upshot is a scene in a road house at 2 o'clock on a Sunday morning, in which a police officer and an Irish publican and his wife appear. A man has been killed by a motorcar, and his mate is charged with murder. Except for the dramatic treatment of the conditions of the lives and the homes of the rich Maggie Upson, Ed. Thomas and Will Upson might have been left out of the staging of the story. But their presence binds the plot, and illuminates the other characters by the reactions they provoke. The second act, in consequence, becomes a breathless recital, in which the great Cry-Joy-riding appeals to her, and the upshot is a scene in a road house at 2 o'clock on a Sunday morning, in which a police officer and an Irish publican and his wife appear. A man has been killed by a motorcar, and his mate is charged with murder. Except for the dramatic treatment of the conditions of the lives and the homes of the rich Maggie Upson, Ed. Thomas and Will Upson might have been left out of the staging of the story. But their presence binds the plot, and illuminates the other characters by the reactions they provoke. The second act, in consequence, becomes a breathless recital, in which the great Cry-Joy-riding appeals to her, and the upshot is a scene in a road house at 2 o'clock on a Sunday morning, in which a police officer and an Irish publican and his wife appear. A man has been killed by a motorcar, and his mate is charged with murder. Except for the dramatic treatment of the conditions of the lives and the homes of the rich Maggie Upson, Ed. Thomas and Will Upson might have been left out of the staging of the story. But their presence binds the plot, and illuminates the other characters by the reactions they provoke. The second act, in consequence, becomes a breathless recital, in which the great Cry-Joy-riding appeals to her, and the upshot is a scene in a road house at 2 o'clock on a Sunday morning, in which a police officer and an Irish publican and his wife appear. A man has been killed by a motorcar, and his mate is charged with murder. Except for the dramatic treatment of the conditions of the lives and the homes of the rich Maggie Upson, Ed. Thomas and Will Upson might have been left out of the staging of the story. But their presence binds the plot, and illuminates the other characters by the reactions they provoke. The second act, in consequence, becomes a breathless recital, in which the great Cry-Joy-riding appeals to her, and the upshot is a scene in a road house at 2 o'clock on a Sunday morning, in which a police officer and an Irish publican and his wife appear. A man has been killed by a motorcar, and his mate is charged with murder. Except for the dramatic treatment of the conditions of the lives and the homes of the rich Maggie Upson, Ed. Thomas and Will Upson might have been left out of the staging of the story. But their presence binds the plot, and illuminates the other characters by the reactions they provoke. The second act, in consequence, becomes a breathless recital, in which the great Cry-Joy-riding appeals to her, and the upshot is a scene in a road house at 2 o'clock on a Sunday morning, in which a police officer and an Irish publican and his wife appear. A man has been killed by a motorcar, and his mate is charged with murder. Except for the dramatic treatment of the conditions of the lives and the homes of the rich Maggie Upson, Ed. Thomas and Will Upson might have been left out of the staging of the story. But their presence binds the plot, and illuminates the other characters by the reactions they provoke. The second act, in consequence, becomes a breathless recital, in which the great Cry-Joy-riding appeals to her, and the upshot is a scene in a road house at 2 o'clock on a Sunday morning, in which a police officer and an Irish publican and his wife appear. A man has been killed by a motorcar, and his mate is charged with murder. Except for the dramatic treatment of the conditions of the lives and the homes of the rich Maggie Upson, Ed. Thomas and Will Upson might have been left out of the staging of the story. But their presence binds the plot, and illuminates the other characters by the reactions they provoke. The second act, in consequence, becomes a breathless recital, in which the great Cry-Joy-riding appeals to her, and the upshot is a scene in a road house at 2 o'clock on a Sunday morning, in which a police officer and an Irish publican and his wife appear. A man has been killed by a motorcar, and his mate is charged with murder. Except for the dramatic treatment of the conditions of the lives and the homes of the rich Maggie Upson, Ed. Thomas and Will Upson might have been left out of the staging of the story. But their presence binds the plot, and illuminates the other characters by the reactions they provoke. The second act, in consequence, becomes a breathless recital, in which the great Cry-Joy-riding appeals to her, and the upshot is a scene in a road house at 2 o'clock on a Sunday morning, in which a police officer and an Irish publican and his wife appear. A man has been killed by a motorcar, and his mate is charged with murder. Except for the dramatic treatment of the conditions of the lives and the homes of the rich Maggie Upson, Ed. Thomas and Will Upson might have been left out of the staging of the story. But their presence binds the plot, and illuminates the other characters by the reactions they provoke. The second act, in consequence, becomes a breathless recital, in which the great Cry-Joy-riding appeals to her, and the upshot is a scene in a road house at 2 o'clock on a Sunday morning, in which a police officer and an Irish publican and his wife appear. A man has been killed by a motorcar, and his mate is charged with murder. Except for the dramatic treatment of the conditions of the lives and the homes of the rich Maggie Upson, Ed. Thomas and Will Upson might have been left out of the staging of the story. But their presence binds the plot, and illuminates the other characters by the reactions they provoke. The second act, in consequence, becomes a breathless recital, in which the great Cry-Joy-riding appeals to her, and the upshot is a scene in a road house at 2 o'clock on a Sunday morning, in which a police officer and an Irish publican and his wife appear. A man has been killed by a motorcar, and his mate is charged with murder. Except for the dramatic treatment of the conditions of the lives and the homes of the rich Maggie Upson, Ed. Thomas and Will Upson might have been left out of the staging of the story. But their presence binds the plot, and illuminates the other characters by the reactions they provoke. The second act, in consequence, becomes a breathless recital, in which the great Cry-Joy-riding appeals to her, and the upshot is a scene in a road house at 2 o'clock on a Sunday morning, in which a police officer and an Irish publican and his wife appear. A man has been killed by a motorcar, and his mate is charged with murder. Except for the dramatic treatment of the conditions of the lives and the homes of the rich Maggie Upson, Ed. Thomas and Will Upson might have been left out of the staging of the story. But their presence binds the plot, and illuminates the other characters by the reactions they provoke. The second act, in consequence, becomes a breathless recital, in which the great Cry-Joy-riding appeals to her, and the upshot is a scene in a road house at 2 o'clock on a Sunday morning, in which a police officer and an Irish publican and his wife appear. A man has been killed by a motorcar, and his mate is charged with murder. Except for the dramatic treatment of the conditions of the lives and the homes of the rich Maggie Upson, Ed. Thomas and Will Upson might have been left out of the staging of the story. But their presence binds the plot, and illuminates the other characters by the reactions they provoke. The second act, in consequence, becomes a breathless recital, in which the great Cry-Joy-riding appeals to her, and the upshot is a scene in a road house at 2 o'clock on a Sunday morning, in which a police officer and an Irish publican and his wife appear. A man has been killed by a motorcar, and his mate is charged with murder. Except for the dramatic treatment of the conditions of the lives and the homes of the rich Maggie Upson, Ed. Thomas and Will Upson might have been left out of the staging of the story. But their presence binds the plot, and illuminates the other characters by the reactions they provoke. The second act, in consequence, becomes a breathless recital, in which the great Cry-Joy-riding appeals to her, and the upshot is a scene in a road house at 2 o'clock on a Sunday morning, in which a