TURNED HEAVYGood Outlook for Fall Plowing
Weakens Wheat—
Corn Irregular.

CHICAGO, Sept. 9.—Improved prospects for fall plowing had a weakening effect on wheat. The government report turned out even more bearish than expected regarding wheat, with the crop just as good as looked for, and about as predicted. Net changes in the market were: Wheat 1-4c to 7-8c; corn 1-2c to 1-4c to 1-4c; oats 1-4c to 1-4c; clover less expensive by a shade to 1-4c.

Wheat speculators took notice of the fact in the winter crop region, a change from the recent conditions of the market had made plowing out to be impossible and had seriously threatened to diminish the acreage for next year. Another element against wheat was the general opinion that the Washington estimate due at the close would prove much larger than the total figured out a month ago.

It developed that some direct export business in wheat had been done from Chicago. There was an offset, too, to the resumption of the threatening North-West. As a consequence the market was held but little power to rally and the closing at the close was easy.

September Corn Lower.
Some of the leaders in corn declared an important liquidation in September. The market was in a way being bolstered to prevent any sharp drop. There was no doubt that September gave evidence of greater weakness than other months when in the past part of the season the market was depressed by the breaking of the drought southwest. Promise of enlarged receipts here counted also against the bulls. Covering by shorts was late in the day, to be prepared for the government report. Price changes were narrow though.

Anticipation of holders to realize profits was wiped out an early advance. The strength at the outburst resulted from an advance in the Chicago market.
