

of the Empire, i. 361; interviews with Favre, i. 365, 367, 373; reminiscences, i. 370; anecdote of Crown Princess, i. 376; glad he prevented going to war about Luxemburg, i. 376; story of Jew, i. 379; interview with Favre, General Beaufort d'Hautpoule, and Dürrbach, i. 381; will not answer diplomatic notes in Russian, i. 383; conscious of responsibility to God, i. 391; reviews phases of development of scheme for accession of South German States to Northern Confederation, i. 393; compares Germans and Latins, i. 395; anecdote of King of Saxony, i. 397; tells story of beer glass, i. 398; his duels as a student, i. 399; story of bet with American as to German unity, i. 400; belief in influence of moon, i. 400; ideas of eloquence, i. 402; protests against Gambetta's action, i. 404; given freedom of Leipzig and Hamburg, i. 405; visits Mont Valérien and Saint Cloud, i. 407; story of cheering himself, i. 409; anecdotes of Thiers, i. 418; interview with Thiers and Favre, i. 421; leaves Paris, i. 423; house in Berlin, No. 76 Wilhelmstrasse, i. 424; idea of Ministers' duties, i. 445; garden at back, i. 446; rooms, i. 447; Chinese Salon, i. 448; study, i. 448; opinion of Clericals, i. 461; dangers of the International, i. 464; suspicious of French, i. 469; interview with Favre at Frankfort, i. 476; recognises present government of France, i. 491; two stories of a Jew, i. 495; on French affairs, i. 500; discusses situation in Africa, ii. 3; defence of Manteuffel, ii. 6; considers Beust untrustworthy, ii. 19; warns French, ii. 24; ascribes Franco-Prussian War to Empress Eugénie, ii. 25; on the Clerical party, ii. 27; on Parliamentary situation, ii. 31; inspires article on Charles XV. of Sweden, ii. 32; interview with Queen Olga, ii. 38; conflict with Kreuzzeitung party, ii. 39; dictates article on Pope's leaving Rome, ii. 43; objects to Württemberg maintaining legations, ii. 44;

reason for keeping Alsace-Lorraine, ii. 50; on the Bohemian party of autonomy, ii. 51; on the Papal situation, ii. 62; defines duty of diplomatic agent, ii. 65; about Polish affairs, ii. 68; interview with Schuvaloff, ii. 69; on relations of Church and State, ii. 72; his revenues, ii. 77; will not read letters, ii. 77; on the right of the Emperor to exercise his influence on the election of a Pope, ii. 78; gives diplomatic dinner, ii. 82; gives up riding, ii. 84; silver wedding, ii. 84; rumours as to resigning as President of Ministry of State, ii. 87; but will remain Imperial Chancellor, ii. 87; biography, ii. 99; attempt to levy blackmail, ii. 100; difference with Arnim, ii. 114; his patience, ii. 115; intends to retire, ii. 121; crisis postponed, ii. 123; instructions to author, ii. 125; his colleagues, ii. 137; anecdotes about early life, ii. 153; at Varzin, ii. 155; attempted bribery of, ii. 157; compared to Odin, ii. 160; anecdotes by, ii. 162; his motto, ii. 165; his retreat, ii. 167; the cigar story again, ii. 169; on Danish question, ii. 171; the telegram to Ems, ii. 174; anecdote of early days, ii. 176; as landowner, ii. 178; as farmer, ii. 179; manner of life, ii. 181; Lauenburg compact, ii. 185; life at Friedrichsruh, ii. 189; as proofreader, ii. 193; criticises author's book, ii. 205; discusses free trade, ii. 208; criticises Gortchakoff, ii. 213; always desired understanding with Austria, ii. 226; discusses Chancellor crisis, ii. 238; his work in internal affairs, ii. 245; salary, ii. 251; intrigues against, ii. 254; his scheme for working-class insurance, ii. 258; opinion of Jews, ii. 260; opposition to, in Prussian Diet, ii. 264; discusses municipal self-government, ii. 271; views on Reichstag, ii. 273; nervous affection due to excitement, ii. 279; on Progressists, ii. 279; refutes Unruh's statements, ii. 298; originated idea of Zollverein Parliament, ii. 305; opinion