

The good can never be unfortunate.
 And be this maxim graven in thy mind;
 The height of virtue is to serve mankind.
 But when old age has silver'd o'er thy head,
 When memory fails, and all thy vigour's fled,
 Then mayst thou seek the stillness of retreat,
 Then hear aloof the human tempest beat;
 Then will I greet thee to my woodland bower,
 Alay the pangs of age, and smooth thy grave.

GRAINGER.

CONTENTS.

PART I.
PIECES IN PROSE.

CHAPTER I.

*Select Sentences and Paragraphs.*Page 17

CHAPTER II.

Narrative Pieces.

Sect.	1. No rank or possessions can make the guilty-mind happy	32
	2. Change of external condition after adverse to virtue	33
	3. Human ; or the misery of pride	34
	4. Lady Jane Grey	35
	5. Orthogril ; or the vanity of riches	35
	6. The hill of science	40
	7. The journey of a day ; a picture of human life	43

CHAPTER III.

Dialectic Pieces.

Sect.	1. The importance of a good education	48
	2. On gratitude	48
	3. On forgiveness	49
	4. Motives to the practice of gentleness	49
	5. A suspicious temper the source of misery to its possessor	50
	6. Comforts of religion	51
	7. Dilference of our abilities a mark of wisdom	52
	8. On the importance of order in the distribution of our time	53
	9. The dignity of virtue amidst corrupt examples	55
	10. The mortifications of vice greater than those of virtue	56
	11. On contentment	57
	12. Rank and riches afford no ground for envy	60
	13. Patience under provocations our interest as well as duty	61
	14. Moderation in our wishes recommended	63
	15. Omnipotence and omnipresence of the Deity, the source of consolation to good men	63

CHAPTER IV.

Argumentative Pieces.

Sect.	1. Happiness is founded in rectitude of conduct	67
	2. Virtue and piety man's highest interest	68
	3. The injustice of an uncharitable spirit	69