THEDA BARA AT THE PATRICIA THEATRE
IN BIG PHOTOPLAY

Famous Actress Portrays Role of Zara the Princess.

Theda Bara is appearing in "A Woman There Was" at the Patricia on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday next. The story of the play is as follows: Zara (Theda Bara) is the Princess of Kolpee, a South Sea Island. Majah, her father, is the chief of the tribe. Puke, a pearl diver, is in love with Zara. Winthrop Stark, a New England missionary, arrives on the island. Zara falls in love with the white man. While the missionary feels the attraction of the dusky princess, he remains faithful to his fiancée back home. Puke sees Zara and Stark together and, with savage jealousy aroused, demands the life of the white man. Zara defends Stark before her father, and Majah reserves decision. Zara spurs the proffered love of the pearl diver—who then, with the high priest, enters into a plot against Zara. Zara visits Stark and confesses her great love. Puke, who has been eavesdropping, decides this is an opportune moment to take the minister's life. He poises his spear for a cast through the window. Zara discovers him and protects the minister with her own bosom. The black typhoon sweeps over the island. A religious sacrifice is necessary to appease the wrath of the gods. Stark is chosen as the one to give up his life. The high priest objects because the minister is an "unbeliever." Broken-hearted and despairing, Zara volunteers. She rushes into the raging sea. Stark sees her and effects her rescue. He carries her to the temple. Morning dawns. Zara's father is brought in dead. Natives find Stark unconscious. They declare he brought destruction upon the island. As reigning princess upon the death of her father, Zara again defends the missionary and carries him to his cabin. Puke, by order of Zara, is cast adrift in a canoe on the sea. Stark becomes delirious. Zara learns that the witch doctor alone can save him. She visits the witch doctor, who informs her that the black pearl, buried with her father—the sacred pearl of Kolpee—will save the minister. Zara determines to steal the pearl. Meanwhile, Puke has come upon a
