A LUNCHEON AT SIMPSON'S

BY KANTHINE MAYNARD

It was only by accident that I learned thru a friend that the new luncheon rooms of the Robert Simpson Coma place where one, after with shopping, may get a dainty sandwich or nabised wafer, with a cup of coffee, chocolate or cocoa, or enjoy a refreshing dish of ice-cream, while at the same time sequring a few min-

Simpson Company, are really spacious and palatial; there is the beautiful palm room; and the lunch room proper. And from my friend I learned that the mansmall luncheon parties in the pain rcom; these are served at semi-private tables. There is also a club-dining room for larger parties of either sex, which is also semi-private. Two relatives from Philadelphia had been visiting me, and with two other friends we made a party of five, and o have them as my guests at one the "small party" luncheons at Simp-

from them expressions of delight re-garding the supert appointments of the palm room, the cuisine and the service, which, they said, surpassed anything that they had experienced in Philadelphia or New York department stores, and which, in ited, was really the equal of the cuisine and service in the best hotels.

It would be useless to detail manifold 'dishes" one can have prepared to order, or even the wholesomeness and variety of the "special" luncheons on the menu card. There was everything that could tempt the appetite and tickle the palate—viands of all sorts, fish and fowl, fruits, potentes and delica-cles prepared for the table by expert chefs in what is without doubt the bes equipped and most sanitary "kitchen" on the continent. Pleasant conversation is always necessary at a hincheon party. But to our surprise we found on the menu a selected orchestra, under the dire tion of Roland Roberts, who I learned was a member of the Toronto Symphony Orchestra and the Toronto String Quartet There are eleven playfact, as being extraordinary, that there were two 'cellists and two horn players towards the palm room.

If the women of Toronto only knew how our little party enjoyed them-selves at luncheon in the palm room ping in this great Canadian departmen-tal store.

For myself I shall always make it a point to take luncheon there after shopping, the delicious food and the cheery restful music will make the day
