

OPPOSITION TO TARIFF MEASURE

Vigorous Protests in U. S.
Senate Against Retaliatory Provisions Which Affect Canada.

Washington, June 26.—(By Canadian Press).—Opponents of the tariff bill which is now before the Senate are becoming more and more vigorous in their protests against the retaliatory provisions in the bill which are of a retaliatory nature. Each provision is in large part directed against Canada. An instance of this nature is the amendment reported by the finance committee to the bill on logs of fir, spruce, cedar or western hemlock. The duty is fixed by the committee amendment at one dollar per thousand feet-board measure and there is added a provision that such logs shall be duty free if the country from which they come imposes no restriction or charges on their exportation. In the course of the debate Senator Smith pointed out that if Canada takes off her duty these items will automatically go on the free list.

of something which is done by some other nation. As he said, the people of the United States want low-priced lumber for their homes and their buildings, and what they are concerned about is what they want and not what Canada may do as to her tariffs or restrictions. In other words, as Senator Underwood and other opponents of the bill maintain, the tariff rates ought to be treated from the standpoint of the economic welfare of the United States public and not used for retaliation or for any other purpose than the best interests of the great body of the United States public.

The feeling here, it may be added, is that the finance committee has given little thought to the welfare of the great consuming public of the United States and that the new bill when it becomes law is likely much to enhance prices of everyday articles to the consumer. That this will mean serious political results to the party in power is hardly open to argument.

Referring to the provision as to logs, which the Senate adopted, Senator Underwood said:—
"We discussed the question of these provisions against Canada some time ago. I shall not take the time of the Senate to argue that question, because Canada has clearly indicated her desire for a reciprocal tariff arrangement, which has been denied by our government at the present time. Of course, putting in the provision with reference to logs without going into a general or reciprocal arrangement means nothing. It means that the tax will continue on logs probably during the life of the tariff law."

"We have talked a great deal during the discussion of the bill about a compensatory duty, about necessity, for instance, of taxing ferromanganese because we tax manganese ore. There may be some reason in the proposition, but here we find the committee putting timber, hewn, sided, or squared, on the free list, to which I do not object, and at the same time taxing $1 per thousand feet logs out of which hewn or sided timber is made."

"Under the existing law logs of this kind are on the free list. Even under the act of 1909, known as the Payne-Aldrich bill, logs were on the free list. The production of logs of this class in the United States has been very great. The importation has been very small. In addition, there has been some exporting of logs of this kind to foreign countries. So there is really no danger of injuring the logging business in this country by allowing logs to come in free. It is only a question of profit or holding down excessive profit in some neighborhoods."

"If the committee thinks it perfectly safe and wise to put hewn, sided, or squared timber on the free list and to put a tax of $1 a thousand feet on logs, of course, it is for the Senate to determine. As I said in the beginning, we cannot make a motion to put this item on the free list until after the committee amendments are disposed of. I merely want to make this statement in passing to show that the matter has not been overlooked."

"All I wish to say is that if Canada is to come into the United States, all she has to do is to allow the same articles to go free into Canada, and then they will come in free," said Senator Underwood. "Of course, we discussed that proposition the other day," said Senator Underwood, "I realize that if Canada wants her logs to come in here free she can put logs of ours on the free list. I am not concerned and I do not think that the Senate is concerned about what Canada wants. What the American people want is cheaper material out of which to build their homes. The people who want lumber, the people who live in the great States along the northern border, such as Minnesota and Iowa and the Dakotas who have not much lumber of their own and who are desirous of having reasonably priced lumber for building their homes, are not concerned with what Canada wants. They are concerned with what they themselves want. If the committee thinks that it is all right to put squared timber made out of logs on the free list, I cannot see any reason whatever why they should tax the shipment of logs into the United States. I do not think, so far as the American people are concerned, that the attitude of Canada in the matter concerns them at all."

Canadian Tariff.
New York, June 26.—(By Canadian Press).—Leopold Graham, New York correspondent of "The Financial Review," has called his paper an estimate of the possible effect of the proposed Canadian tariff changes. Dealing with the reduction of the British preference and the maintenance of the present Canadian tariff rates on goods from the United States, as announced by the finance minister, Mr. Graham says:—
"This very straightforward and by no means unfriendly declaration of policy may succeed in securing a reduction of prevailing proposed Canadian tariffs in her application to Canada; but in view of the fact that the United States has already lost twice as much trade with Canada as Canada has lost with the United States since the coming into force of the Emergency law, the results of the pending legislation if it should be passed into law, will doubtless bring home to the American people a realization of the effects of their ultra-protective policy. Mr. Fielding's vigorous yet moderate condemnation of Canada's tariff spirit which has made Canada what it is and is making it greater every day. It is sincerely to be hoped that some of our British statesmen do not emulate Mr. Fielding's example and let American understand that no single country woe is over yet in resource, can establish a monopoly of world trade."

HIDES INJURIES
FROM MOTHER;
YOUNG LAD DIES
Hurt at Ball Game and Again at Beach, Afraid the News
Would Worry Parents.

Robert J. Alexander, Jr., a student at Manual Training High School, Brooklyn, died late Saturday afternoon at the Peck Memorial Hospital from injuries he received first while playing ball on Memorial Day and again on Friday, June 2, from diving in a swimming pool at Coney Island. From the time he received both injuries until he died he kept secret what had happened to him for fears that the news would worry his parents and cause a severe shock especially to his mother to whom he was devoted.

He was struck on the left jaw by a pitched ball and was forced to quit the game. In his dive Coney Island he struck bottom on his head and left shoulder, which aggravated his previous injury.

It was not until last Monday his father noticed that the boy's face was swollen and his eyes inflamed. Dr. Dunham C. Jones, of 219 Avenue U, the family physician was called in and prescribed. The boy became delirious Wednesday and the following day Dr. Jones called in a specialist. An X-ray was taken and it was discovered that abscesses had formed at the base of the brain under the jaw.

The boy was removed to the hospital Friday and an operation was performed, but he died the following day. Alexander's silence cost him his life, as the doctors believe they could have saved him if he had received medical treatment in time.

It was not until Friday, after the boy was taken to the hospital, that the father learned from his son's companions how he received his injuries.

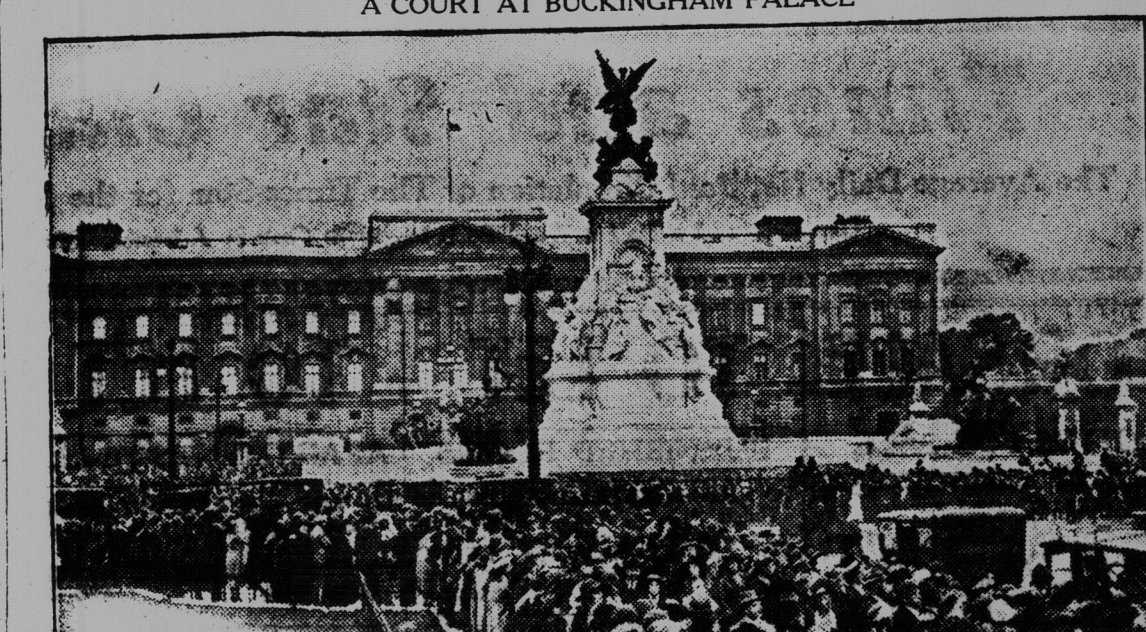

CAT BITES POLICEMAN

Patrolman Kills Animal Which Attacks Him Before Crowd.

New York, June 26.—Patrolman Henry Beckmann of the West 100th street station, had his attention attracted to the antics of a cat which attracted a crowd in front of a butcher shop at 369 Columbus avenue.

The policeman for a time amused the crowd by his efforts to catch the cat, until the animal leaped at him. The policeman started off, but not until it had bitten the middle finger of his right hand. Beckmann finally killed the cat with his revolver.

The policeman had to go to the Re-construction Hospital, where his finger was treated by Dr. Kirschman, after which he reported "sick" to the station and went home.

The photo shows part of the huge crowd that gathered outside the Palace court watching the debutantes arrival at a court.

YOUNG WOMAN TAKES DRUG IN NEW YORK PARK

New York, June 26.—Taking care to conceal her identity a well-dressed young woman tried to end her life by taking poison near the Central Drive, Central Park, opposite Sixty-third street. Policeman Herman Grossberger of the Arsenal station found the young woman unconscious on the grass. With an empty bottle labeled veronal, nearby. Her green velvet handbag contained only seventy-seven cents and gave no clue to her identity. Grossberger called an ambulance from Roosevelt Hospital, and Dr. Knapp said she was suffering from an overdose of the drug and was in a serious condition.
