Rambler Won First

The first game in the series to decide the City League championship was played last night on Black's alleys and the Ramblers defeated the Sweeps by 49 pins. With the exception of one string the game was close and ended 1886 to 1887. The high man was Beattie of the winners, with 100 2-3, closely followed by Foshay, of the Sweeps, with 99 1-3. Seven strings went over the hundred mark.

Champion Bulldog Dies

New York, April 23.—Daniel P. Ritchey received a wireless message from Mauritania informing him of the death of the famous English bulldog champion White Marquis, which he recently purchased in England. Mr. Ritchey bought the dog from Sam Crabtree of Manchester, England, for $1,800. It was being brought here for the big bench shows, and it was expected that the Manchester crack would be as big a sensation here as he had been on the other side.

White Marquis won five championships in England, and Mr. Ritchey first tried to buy the champion last November, when he paid $250 to Frank Walker, Crabtree's agent, for an option on the dog. Some time after Crabtree changed his mind and refused to ship the dog here, after Mr. Ritchey had forwarded the purchase price of $1,800. In the end Crabtree had to carry out his part of the bargain, so the dog was shipped on the Mauretania in charge of Walker. The dog was insured for $800. The case of the bulldog's death is not known, but some time ago it was badly scalded by boiling water, and it is thought it never recovered from the burns.

He has also figured prominently in athletics and won a silver cup for second place in the potato race at the regimental sports in Boston last week. It took five heats to decide the race.

FARM LIFE FOR WOMEN

Interesting Experiment Now Being Tried in Surrey, Eng.

An interesting experiment, an Overseas London School for Women, is being started by Rupert and Lady Gwendolen Guinness at a farm near Woking. It is designed for women of the educated classes who intend to emigrate, and whose brothers and friends, young public school men, have been started so successfully in colonial life from Mr. Guinness's training farm for men, established near Woking three years ago.

"Our object is not to train women to run a farm themselves," said Mr. Guinness, "but to train them in the work which is exclusively women's work in the Canadian household, whether a farm or not. Women who think they would like to emigrate are generally more ignorant of the work they will have to perform than are the men of horses, cattle, and farming. We have secured as superintendent of our training farm Miss Goldie, who is a Canadian, and who has never been in England before. She has taken the home-makers' course at the Women's College of Guelph, Ont. She will teach cooking, bread-making, washing, house-cleaning, poultry-keeping, butter-making, and so on. Women will be taught to do everything themselves, and to do it as much as possible under Canadian conditions. But the loneliness of the homesteads is one thing we cannot teach. I have ordered a Canadian stove, in which they will probably burn wood, and on which they will have to do their cooking, washing, and baking. Instead of on the big kitchen range with boiler and all conveniences, on which these things are generally taught in English schools, Miss Goldie will make a feature of many small things which people do not think of until they find themselves in want of them, but unable to get them. For instance, she has recipes for home-made metal polishes, and then, if the metal does not shine, they will have to try again. Similarly they will have to wash their own clothes, and if they come out badly they will have to wait until they are fit to be washed and timed. This is a feature of the course which will be six guineas. As the new farm, which is simply an old building with a garden, is near the men's farm, opportunities of learning about horses and cattle may be had.

A certain lady in Paris gives periodical dinners, at which assemble most of the best known wits and literati of the day. The rule of the mansion is that while one person discourses no interruption whatever may be permitted. It is said that M. Renan once attended one of these dinners, and, being in excellent vein, talked without a break during the whole repast. Toward the end of the dinner a guest was heard to begin a sentence, but he was instantly silenced by the hostess. After they had left the table, however, she at once informed the distinguished individual that, as M. Renan had now finished his conversation, she would gladly hear what he had to say. The guest modestly declined. The hostess insisted.

"I am certain it was something of consequence," she said.
"Alas, madam," he answered, "it was, indeed; but now it is too late, should have liked a little more of that feed pudding."

Three members of the Wors family of St. Louis were recently married in a triple wedding held in the office of a justice of the peace. The six principals stood in a line and answered the questions in unison.

What May Happen If Mexico and U.S. Fight It Out
This two reel production is not only interesting but pretentious. The plot develops the works of the secret service in Mexico in connection with the trouble United States is now having with that rebellious country. It illustrates in a most exciting manner extremes to which nations will resort and risks they will run to carry out their schemes. For those who like the dash and daring of warfare this Lubin reel drama will have particular appeal. It is a wholesale, gripping, photo-narrative of daring deeds with all the life of an actual series of events. As a Saturday attraction it is just the thing for the children who like good adventures.
