A very sudden death occurred at Lower Cape, Albert, on Tuesday morning. Miss Margaret Simpson, daughter of the late Dr. James L. Simpson, who practised at Fredericton some years since, while teaching her school at Lower Cape yesterday morning up to eleven o'clock as usual, suddenly became violently ill and died shortly after. She was 27 years of age, and formerly taught school in this city. Her mother, Mrs. Maggie Simpson, is a teacher in the Aberdeen school here, but is at present on a leave of absence, being indisposed. The remains were brought to Moncton for interment.

WHAT BOSTON GIRL WANTED.

ST. JOHN STAR.

ST. JOHN, N. B., DECEMBER 4, 1902.

THE CANADIAN DELEGATES.

The following despatch from Montreal will be read with a particular degree of interest by the members of the newly organized St. John branch of the Navy League:

Principal Peterson, of McGill University, who returned on Saturday from England, said that there is much disappointment in Great Britain over the stand taken by the Canadian delegates on the question of defence. He said that Canada was the only colony that really declined to have anything to do with the subject. The other colonies had expressed a willingness to share in some scheme for the general defence of the Empire, but the Canadian delegates would not agree to any proposition. He added that the attitude of the Canadians at the conference was supposed in England to reflect Canadian sentiment, inasmuch as the delegates had been enthusiastically received on their return. The general impression in England is that the Canadian delegates went to the conference to put a drag on it, and that they succeeded in doing so.

The Star observed some time ago that so far as the record of their achievements went the Canadian delegates to the Imperial conference might as well have been portraits on the walls of the National Gallery. The statement appears to have been ill-advised. The delegates do seem to have achieved something. They created an unfavorable impression of Canada, which the portraits of such gay gallants would never do. Their portraits should have been sent, and they should have remained at home. The country still awaits the "important announcement" which Sir Wilfrid was to make on his return from England.

FOR LUMBERMEN.

That the intellectual welfare of the men in Ontario lumber camps is looked after appears in the following paragraph from the Mail and Empire:

Mrs. A. Fitzpatrick, of Nain Centre, Algoma, secretary of the Canadian Reading Camp Association, is desirous of securing teachers and college men who are desirous of working in the woods to carry on teaching in the camps in the evenings and on Sundays and rainy days. In addition to the axman's wage of $25 or $30 per month and board the association allows $10 to $20 per month additional. Five young men are already at work, and there are openings for several more. The religious denomination of the applicant is not considered.

This marks a long step from the old-time lumber camp. In recent years great improvements have been made in the manner of housing and assuring the comfort of men in the camps, not only in Ontario but in New Brunswick.

THE REFERENDUM.

In view of today's vote in Ontario on the referendum touching the liquor traffic the following facts set forth in the Mail and Empire are of general interest:

The minimum vote necessary to carry the measure is 212,723. Besides this a majority of the votes cast on Thursday is required.

All may vote who are on the lists for the last provincial election provided they have remained domiciled in the province. Any who have moved to another part of Ontario may vote in the place for which they were entered on the lists.

The law, if carried, will come into effect on May 1st, 1904.

It prohibits the retail sale of liquor as a beverage, but permits importations and licenses the drug store to sell for medicinal, mechanical and sacramental purposes.

The former votes on prohibition in Ontario were as follows:—In 1894, for prohibition, 192,489; against prohibition, 110,720, majority for, 81,769; in 1898, for prohibition, 154,489; against prohibition, 115,284, majority for, 39,214.

The total receipts from the liquor traffic in Ontario by the license commissioners were $629,238. Of these $304,676 was paid to the province, $250,482 to the municipalities, and $74,079 was the cost of administration.

By the Royal Commission it was reported that the average annual expenditure in Canada for liquors, not including native wines and cider, for the five years preceding 1893 was $30,879,854.

The Canada Temperance Act is at present in force in 27 different places. It has been defeated in 55 different places.

The Duncan Act was introduced by Christopher Duncan, Conservative, in the old parliament of Canada in 1864 during the (Sandfield) Macdonald-Si-cotte administration.

The Scott Act was introduced by Hon. R. W. Scott, Liberal, now secretary of state, in 1878, during the Mackenzie administration.

THE UNFAIR TELEGRAPH.

The value, but obtuse and somewhat unfair Telegraph this morning again goes far out of the straight and narrow way to seek grounds for an attack upon the mayor. Speaking of his failure to interfere between the I. C. R. and C. P. R. regarding the transfer of cattle freights from one to the other, it says:

"The mayor and the board of trade were quick to act when it was thought something could be done toward securing recognition for the C. P. R. to bond cattle through Maine. How does it stand at this time for the mayor and the board of trade? They have not taken steps to impress upon that railway its duty to St. John under prevailing conditions."

Now the mayor has done absolutely nothing toward helping the C. P. R. to bond cattle through Maine. His only communication to the government regarding the cattle restriction was that sent to Mr. Blair asking that he use his influence to avert from St. John any bad effect of the cattle embargo. The language of that famous telegram was simple enough for a wayfaring man, though a fool, to understand what was meant. That is, for just an ordinary fool.

The C. P. R. land sales for November, 1902, were 146,687.33 acres for $588,787.99; for November, of 1901, 151,922.89 acres, for $512,862.94. Although the acreage sold was less than for the corresponding month in 1901 by 5,235.06 the amount obtained was $85,925.05 more, owing to the increased value of the land.

CATTLE EMBARGO.

SHAUGHNESSY'S PLAIN WORDS.
TORONTO, Dec. 3.—"A stupid, inexplicable blunder," said President Shaughnessy of the C. P. R., in an interview here today regarding that part of the C. P. R. shipping cattle to St. John via the Short Line through Maine. The order was evidently made hastily and before its bearing or probable effect on the Canadian cattle trade had been considered, "possibly through ignorance of the geographical situation or the country or lack of acquaintance with Canadian routes to the seaboard." "We have simply stopped taking cattle shipments," said Sir Thomas, "because we now have no route to St. John or Halifax, thanks to the stupidity of the government authorities."

Discussing the situation today D. McNicoll, second V. P. and general manager, said: "It is difficult to understand the regulations issued from Ottawa. The United States have quarantined and prohibited the transit of cattle, sheep and swine out of and through the states of Connecticut, Rhode Island, Massachusetts and Vermont. They have not quarantined the state of Maine or New Hampshire. The Canadian government, however, say that we must not run cattle through the northern woods of Maine, where there are practically no cattle, and where trains are run through under customs seal, cattle not being unloaded while in the state. They do, however, permit cattle to run through the state of New York, which touches the quarantined states of Connecticut, Massachusetts and Vermont. Maine does not touch any of the quarantined states. We can, therefore, today send cattle from here to New York, but not by our route to St. John."

"Sending cattle by the Canadian government railway 270 miles longer means much more motive power and so much more rolling stock required, but possibly the additional price that cattle exporters will be able to obtain on account of the quarantine will enable them to pay a higher rate to the Canadian government railway while en route is being quarantined. I consider the restrictions through Maine at the present time unnecessary, and would, in my opinion, be more in order to prohibit exportation through the state of New York, where the road runs so close to the infected districts through a country where cattle are raised in large numbers."

OTTAWA, Dec. 3.—Hon. Mr. Fisher received a cable message today from Lord Strathcona, high commissioner, in which he emphasized his previous statement that the home government would not allow cattle to be carried across Maine, nor vessels from New England ports to call at Canadian ports for cattle.

The commissioner of customs telegraphed collectors at all frontier points on the east today to refuse entry to horns, hides and hoofs from the New England states.

MONTREAL, Dec. 3.—A strong sense of disappointment and some amount of resentment is felt by railway men and cattle exporters at the way Canada is being treated in the matter of the order prohibiting the import of cattle into the United Kingdom. It is asserted that the situation so far has been a complete paralysis, the cattle export trade.

LATH MAKING IN SUNBURY.

A large number of laths are turned out every day, for which there is a good demand at high prices at present.—Gleaner.

ST. DAVID'S.

Last night after the weekly prayer meeting the session clerk, Peter Chisholm, requested the congregation to remain seated and the minister of the church to retain his chair. The clerk then requested John Willet, K. C., clerk of the circuit court, to read an address, the night being the 3rd anniversary of the induction of the minister, Rev. Dr. Morison.

The address was engrossed on parchment by David Willet, beautifully illuminated, and was under the corporate seal of the church. It was signed by all the officials of the church. Mr. Chisholm then presented Dr. Morison with the sixty volumes of the World's Classic Edition de luxe. A valuable olive colored seal skin purse, filled with gold, was presented to Mrs. Morison by James Seaton, chairman of trustees of St. David's church.

Jas. Shaw, the oldest adherent and member of the congregation, in very happy and suitable remarks presented Mrs. Morison, for little Josephine Morrison, with four hand painted works in art, the gift of a prominent citizen not in any way connected with the church. The pastor in a few well chosen words expressed the united appreciation of himself and family.

Rev. Dr. Fraser of St. Stephen's church was invited to the platform and in fitting words referred to his long acquaintance with the pastor of St. David's, and heartily expressed his appreciation of the phenomenal work his old college friend and co-presbyter had been enabled to do with the co-operation of his congregation.

The large lecture room was well filled with the congregation, and great enthusiasm and good fellowship was manifested.

Dr. Morison is at present moderator of St. John presbytery and a member of the assembly's augmentation committee.

With this right secured the company expects to invest about two million dollars more in the erecting of paper mills. They state that they have already invested about a million.
