SUNDAY SCHOOL COLUMN.

The feature of the week in Sunday school circles in our city was, I pre-sume, the annual meeting of the city association. It was business from start to finish. The reports were in every case read by the chairman of committee reporting, showing that the committees are alive and active, and looking after the work. The reng, indicating distinct advancement along all lines

New Brunswick organization is atconsiderable success. Frequent letters of enquiry as to our me are received, especially as to our home class and normal work.

From present appearances, norm work will make great gains this year, we hear of classes being formed in all directions, but we would remind the classes that the normal superintendent, E. R. Maichum, St. John, N. B., can only enter them on the records when a full report, giving the names of the leader and pupils, is sent him. He requests that all classes be re-ported as soon as organized.

THE AXE STILL WORKING.

(Moncton Times.) It is understood that Mr. Wells, post master at Bay Verte, is to be dismissed, and Albert Copp appointed to the office November 1st. It will be remembered that charges of political partizanship were preferred against Postmaster Wells and investigated by issioner McAlpine some months ago. It is not known what report Mr. McAlpine made to the department, but it is known that there was evidence of partizanship sufficient justify dismissal, and it is said that Mr. McAlpine privately admitted much. But experience shows that evi-dence does not count for much in the star chamber courts established by the grit government for the trial of charges of alleged political partizanp. The office was wanted for some ral partizan and it must be had by book or by crook.

TIMELY ADVICE

Given by Alex. McDonald, Known as the King of the Klondyke.

Only Young, Strong, Healthy Men Should Go There.

After saying to a Vancouver World reporter that he would like as little said about himself as possible, Alex. McDonald, the Klondyke millionaire, went on as follows: "I am not making this request be-sause I consider myself too good to be interviewed, but honestly because there is nothing to say that has not been talked about, and a great deal more besides. Now the is one thing you can say for me that may have weight in keeping many men out of that country who have no bustness in there, and that is to advise only young men to go in there who are strong, healthy, full of determination to endure hardships and overcome obstacles and willing to bury selves in there for several years. orh men are sure to succeed in time.

arriel men, especially those with milies, should keep out of there, me experience of thousands upon thousands of such men luring the last year have shown the folly of men going to that country without the slight-st qualifications for such a rough life and unprepared to meet the cli-matic conditions of that country. Too many men went in there last spring expected to come out again in the fall with a fortune, and because they failed they are inclined to see everything in that country through badly smoked glasses. That country is all right," continued Mr. McDonald, warming up to his subject. "At least I am satisfied with it. I went in determined not to come out without money enough to secure for myself and my parents a good home, and I guess I have succeeded. I have been in there now three winters and four summers and I know what it means to pack heavy loads on my back from creek to creek in all kinds of weather. Of course I am strong, and nature en-dowed me with a large frame, and a sound constitution which I have besides well cared for by an abstemious

ONCE A POOR MAN. 'No, sir, I was not rich when I went into that country. In fact, I was about as poor as I could possibly be. I went through Seattle in the fall of 1894 with just money enough to pay my fare to Juneau and no farther. At Juneau I worked and nade another stake, which carried me to Dyea, here I went over the pass in the early part of 1895, and in April of that year I built my boat at Bennett and stanted down the river, going to Forty-Mile or Fort Cudahy. I remained in that neighborhood about a year and a half. I had always had in mind going up the Indian river, and if I had anybody to join me I would have gone there. As it was, when the Klondyke ent broke out I went to Dawwas too late to get in on the stampede of the Bonanza and Eldorado, but with the little money I had made on the Forty-Mile I bought in on a claim on Eldorado creek, and, finding it rich and sizing up the situation of the creek correctly, I increased my holdings on every possible opportu-nity. Of course I worked my claims myself, paying for new claims with the pannings from my dumps. I gradually increased my operations, taking up every creek where I found satisfactory evidence of gold in paying quantity. Yes, I have sold a few claims, but, I told you before, I don't like to go into my personal business affairs. Do you see that store across the way? Well, suppose I was to go over there and say to the man: How much business have you done in the last year, how much are you doing and how much money have you got? don't you suppose he would first ask me back if I had any money to buy in order to back my questions? Now, that's about my position. My affairs are in good shape; I have done well and expect to do better, and more than that, I don't care to say.

INTERESTED IN SEVENTY-FIVE MINES.

"No, I don't mind telling you that I am interested in about seventy-five mines, perhaps more, consisting of 10 on Eldorado, five on Bonanza, 25 on Dominion, 20 on Sulphur, 10 on Hunker, three on Bear, four on Gold Bottom, four on All Gold, two on Too Much Gold, five on Henderson, one on Moose Hide. You understand, I don't mean to say that I own these outright, for I only own all the way from one-half to two-thirds in each, so, you see, I have quite an extensive list of partners. I know it is generally ru-mored that I am about making a deal with some English syndicate by which I will unload all my holdings. Well, I can't answer you that question. I'll admit that I am going to Europe for both pleasure and business, but whether I sell or not I don't know or don't care. I have a good thing, and I know it. so I don't worry about selling, for what I possess will keep."

Questioned relative to the coming winter's work on his various holdings, Mr. McDonald said: 'I have left every claim in good hands during my absence. I believe in paying good wages, and such claims the ground of which is known to be very rich are being worked with hired help. These men I have ar-ranged to pay all the way from 80 cents to $1.50 an hour, according to the worth of the man. In fact, I have some men whom I pay more than $1.50 an hour, because I feel they are worth it. Our other claims will all be worked on lays, which have always proven satisfactory in the past,' A MODEST MAN.

It would be difficult to find a more plain, unassuming, matter-of-fact man than Mr. McDonald, as he appea eatly dressed in black, talking of milions with more indifference than the average mortal would talk of hundreds, and with a modesty of manner that plainly showed that as yet he had not allowed success to turn his head. Mr. McDonaid is a marvel of simplicity, and his honesty has never en questioned. He has secured the onfidence of the entire Yukon com unity by his policy of "square" deal ings, and his marvellous success, which many have been pleased to at-tribute to "blind luck," is really and in fact the exercise of his shi hard-headed, good horse sense. While he positively refused to enter into details touching the aggregate of his wealth and a few of his large transactions, yet it is pretty well known that his wealth can be safely estimat ed at not less than $2,000,000. Las spring he made a sale to an English syndicate of a small part of his Bon-anza and Eldorado holdings, for which he got $1,500,000, of which in the stock of the company. All of last summer a mining expert, sent over from England, was kept busy examining and making tests of all the claims in which Mr. McDonald has an interest. This expert returned to England about two months ago and made his report, which is known to have been so favorable that the parties have invited Mr. McDonald to go over to England and close the deal, the price, it is said, having been fixed at $2,000, 000. Mr. McDonald is noted for his steady habits. He is a devout Cathelic and would never allow any work on Sunday whenever he could avoid it. He is liberal with his money, e pecially for charitable purposes. He gave $50,000 for the hospital at Dawson and contributed $40,000 toward the rebuilding of the Catholic church when it was destroyed by fire last suring.

Annual Meeting of the Queens and Sunbury Teachers' Institute,

The sixth session of the Queens and Sinbury Co. Teachers Institute in the Grammar school building, Gagetown, at 2 p. m., Oct. 27. The meeting was called to order by Inspector Bridges, in the absence of the of the institute. Owing to a sever storm, which made the country roads almost impasssable, the attendance was not so large as usual,

The election of officers resulted : Inspector Bridges, Alva White, vice." sident; Miss Annie L. Briggs, retary treas; D. L. Mitchell, B. Miss Sadie Thompson, B. A., additionall members of the executive. The address of the retiring presi dent, Mr. Veasey, was read by Inspector Bridges. This address was follow ed by a practical paper on "Making Understood," by Ernes Straight. He warned teachers presupposing a knowledge of even simple facts on the part of pupils. The teacher-must put himself in the place of the pupil and satisfy the der of the enquiring mind. An animated dicussion followed, in which the inspector, Messrs. Parlee, White, Dingee, Mitchell, Mis Simpson and mpson took part. At the second session, Miss Sadie Thompson, B. A., read a practical paper on "Teaching First Steps in Geometry," in which she outlined her method of presenting the subject. The next paper, "English, in B.A., principal of the Grammar school, criticized the careless primary teachers, as shown by the way pupils expressed themselves when entering the Grammar school. and urged teachers to endeavor to awaken in the pupils a taste for good literature. This paper called a most vigorous discussion, as it laid the responsibility for carelessness and lack of the power of expression largely with the primary teacher. At the third session, C. E. Gaunce read a paper on "The Child: Its Moral Training." The discussion on this paper took the form of moral suasion ersus corporal punishment. After ecess, G. Foster Thorne followed with a strong paper on, 'The Importance of Teaching Current Events.",

On motion of D. L. Mitchell, the insti tute unanimously voted to meet next on a date to be decided by the joint executive committees.

"When Major Marchand's retirement is fully accomplished, negotiations, based on proposals submitted by Baron DeCourcel to Great Britain, will be opened. France is disposed to recognize frankly that the re-conquest of Omdurman completely changes the situation as it existed when Major Marchand was instructed to proceed to the Nile. Referring to the increasing cordial ity between the United States and Great Britain, Mr. Bryce said: When last in the United States I was struck with the change in public sentiment The spontaneous outburst of feeling in Great Britain when the European powers wished to intervene against the United States during the recent war with Spain made the Americans understand how close we felt the tie between them and ourselves.
