IS WIFE JUSTIFIED IN DEVOTION TO A BRUTAL HUSBAND?

Noted Motion Picture Actress Views the Problem from Woman's Standpoint

By Madlaine Traverse
How far is a woman justified in her duty and devotion to a brutal husband is a question I have been asked—the question being prompted, apparently, by my known study of plays involving the proposition.

Several times in my career on the speaking stage and in photodrama I have played the part of a wife bound to a brutal husband either by love or by a sense of the obligation she has undertaken in marriage.

Beside giving much thought to the portrayal of the character—how various types of women would be affected emotionally in such cases and how these emotions should be shown on the stage or the screen—I also have been deeply interested in the problem of how far a woman, in order to prove true to her honor and womanliness, must consider herself bound to a husband who insults her, who acts the brute and is untrue to his marriage vows.

Of course where children are involved it is almost impossible to solve such a problem except by individual judgment for each case.

In general, however, I believe very strongly that a woman who has assumed the bonds of wifehood who has promised to love and honor, should leave no single thing undone to make the most of her married state, to help the man with whom she is united, even at the cost of great self-sacrifice and suffering.

Brutality, like ill-temper or nervousness, often may arise from some physical or nervous ailment that can be healed by proper treatment. Many times such treatment lies in right feeding, nourishment that will build up the nervous and general strength and make a normal, happy, kindly human. If the cause of brutality is drink, probably fifty per cent of such cases, in my opinion, may be cured by good food that satisfies the craving for stimulant. Frequently religion is a powerful aid—provided the man goes to it willingly.

If this treat of life—social worry, business troubles—drives a man to forget that he has been to cherish a woman, then I hold it a wife's moral obligation to do all in her power, by means that come natural to her as wife and mother, to free the man's mind from these harmful emotions that react to the detriment of their happiness. The mere atmosphere of a home well ordered, food nicely served, simple cleanliness, often will cheer the mind and lead it into right channels. Wholesome pleasure to the same, and here is what I take my stand for the beneficial effects of the motion picture. It helps people to forget. Cheerfulness, fun, merriment, a plain home party, picnics, all have a similar tendency to uplift the mind and free it from morbid habit.

There are many things to be done before a wife despairs of a brutal husband. But when a man's brutality is beyond doubt a constitutional quality, not to be rooted out, I maintain that a woman's duty ends and she must take a course that will make for her own greatest good and happiness and those of her children.

Take the case of Vera Louvain, for example. When I was recently rehearsing the part of this radiant woman, hungry for love, in the William Fox production of "When Fate Decides" I could feel the deepest sympathy for this fine woman whose sense of honor bound her to a man who had basely betrayed her love. I could understand how, even when a true lover came to Vera, she still could turn her back on happiness and say "No." Of course, my joy when, after most thrilling ordeals, fate frees Vera and love crowns her, will be understood by every woman. She had been true to her duty to the final extreme, and was rewarded.

Miss Traverse is starring as Vera Louvain in "When Fate Decides," being presented at the Star Theatre next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Long-Standing Evil

Effective Measures Taken

Since childhood Mr. A. Cail was under the shadow of a great evil, which always menaced his comfort and safety. Read what he says:
"I was troubled with my kidneys since childhood and spent a large amount of money trying to get cured. Instead of getting better, I kept getting worse until a friend of mine advised me to try Gin Pills. I did so, and after taking one box, I was able to get out of bed and walk around. Two more boxes relieved me completely, and since then I have had no return of the trouble."

Many people have kidney and bladder trouble without knowing it. They think nothing of the backache, the pains in the sides, the constant headaches, the rheumatic, sciatic and neuralgic pains, the floating specks before the eyes, the swollen joints, the highly-colored urine—all signs of trouble—all signs which should receive immediate attention and treatment with Gin Pills, which are by far the most effective of all preparations, and which may help you to avoid a fatal operation. They quickly relieve pain and heal the congested tissues, bringing the organs back to normal. At druggists and dealers, 50c a box. Money back if no relief. Send for free sample. The National Drug & Chemical Co. of Canada, Limited, Toronto, United States Address, N. Y. Tr. Co., Inc., 202 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y.

It is a play of acute interest to every woman.

NORMA IS A PRINCESS AND A SHERIFF NOW
During the past couple of months Norma Talmadge, the distinguished select star, has had two honorary titles conferred upon her. No longer is Norma plain Miss Talmadge; she may now be called Deputy Sheriff Talmadge, or the latest—Princess Norma.

She acquired the latter title on an Indian reservation, called Idylwild, in California, where her latest Select Picture, "The Heart of Vetona," was being filmed, in which she is presented by Joseph M. Schenck at the Allen theatre on Monday and Tuesday. The India natives of Idylwild were so fond of Norma that before she left the reservation they held a large celebration in her honor and made her princess of the tribe.

Only recently Sheriff Mitchell, of Queens County made Miss Talmadge a deputy sheriff. So with the titles of sheriff and princess Miss Talmadge singly goes on her own sweet way of being a popular moving picture star.

"NOBODY HOME," SAYS DOROTHY GISH TO A GREEN STAGE HAND.
Poplar Star Victim of Queer Accident While Filming New Comedy.

Dorothy Gish, the vivacious little moving picture star, is nursing a large bump on the topmost portion of her cranium. She did not fall downstairs, nor has she been learning to roller skate. The cause lies in the over enthusiasm of an actor in her latest Paramount picture, "Nobody Home," which is coming to the Allen theatre on Tuesday and Wednesday, accompanied by a green property man's conception of a "movie" blackjack. To expose a secret of photoplay production the bottles, crockery and blackjacks with which one actor strikes another are usually made of some substance less dangerous than it appears. Thus the burglar's "blin" in Miss Gish's picture was stuffed with cotton, and a lousy blow could be delivered with no serious results.

But when the new property man got slightly rattled, and brought the wrong one on the "set" and the "heavy" hit Miss Gish on the head with it—it was that something was wrong. Luckily the results were not fatal, but after a rather heated interview with Miss Dorothy, the property man has decided to be more careful in the future.

The story of "Nobody Home" centers around a girl whose chin, falling in superstition. Because Venus is in the ascendant, she advises a girl friend to elope with the man of her choice. The superstitious girl falls in love with the best man at the wedding and is separated from him by a villainous fortune-hunter who has designs on her. But they are reunited in a most novel way. George Fawcett, Ralph Graves, and Vivian Montrose are included in the strong cast.

"ART IS ART" SINGS LOUISE FAZENDA.

Not as "Vamp" Star of "Treating 'em Rough" In the new Paramount-Sennett comedy, "Treating 'em Rough," which will be on view at the Allen theatre next week, Louise Fazenda, the funniest woman on the screen, is cast in a screaming role where she is the daughter of the village store-keeper.

"Sometime in my life," says Louise "I am going to make a picture in which there are about fifty men all making love to me at once. As it is, I am always the love-sick maiden who becomes hilarious with joy every time a man grins at me, and has always to be scheming to induce screen comedians to put the ring on my finger. Of course, I'm really not that sort of girl, you know, and I guess I'll have to keep on making my sacrifice."

Jack Akroyd, Pat Kelly, Baldy Belmont, Ed. Kennedy and Teddy, the educated dog, help Miss Fazenda to forget her troubles in "Treating 'em Rough," which is said to be a gale of laughter.

BE PRETTY! TURN GRAY HAIR DARK

Try Grandmother's Old Favorite Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Weyth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, at a small cost. Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy and attractive.

The Young Man's Best Recommendation

A Savings Account is more than a start towards financial independence—it is a mark of character. One of the strongest recommendations in the world of business is that a young man can present, in a Merchant's Bank Pass-Book, showing a record of consistent savings. A Savings Account may be opened with $1.00, which shows how highly we regard the accounts of those who desire to save.
