

Business of the House

Shipping Act, which has already been dealt with by the other place, and has also been dealt with by a committee of this house. The other one is item 76, house again in committee of the whole on Bill No. C-123, an act to amend certain acts administered in the department of insurance. I wanted to mention those three items in case there is an open period in the day when we might want to call them on relatively short notice.

Mr. Knowles: Mr. Speaker, it is understood, is it not, that the calling of these items will not interrupt our proceeding with Bill No. C-136?

Mr. McIlraith: Oh, quite. I was just indicating these three items, in case I am asked to call them some time when we have a few minutes free. I would not want to be accused of not having given notice.

Mr. Knowles: This is in case we finish with the Canada pension plan on Monday?

Mr. McIlraith: That is right, or maybe when the house is in very good humour, perhaps at six o'clock or ten o'clock.

Mr. Knowles: We are in good humour right now.

Mr. McIlraith: Is the hon. member serious about that? If so, I would call item No. 76 on the order paper.

Mr. Knowles: I would be in good humour about that one but I am afraid one of my colleagues might not be.

Mr. Churchill: Try item No. 51.

Mr. Knowles: We would agree to No. 51, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. McIlraith: I am afraid the Cr ditiste group have indicated their desire to debate that bill and I would not like to take advantage of unanimous consent to put it through in their absence.

It being four minutes after six o'clock the house adjourned, without question put, pursuant to standing order.
