relations between Chile and Japan would probably lapse into a very unhappy state.

5. Our side has the resolution and self-confidence necessary to win the war; we have already turned the tide of victory unchangeably our way. We hope, therefore, that Chile will do her best not to miss the present historic chance, which will determine the pattern of the nations for 100 years to come, and keep her mind on a glorious international position among the Latin-American states after the war.
