

lusion. All differentiation in the phenomenal universe is due to belief that mind does not cognize ideas regarding problems. If mind realized the whole truth about each problem, realized that each symbol indicates all, there would be only one symbol and the evolution in mind would be complete. The eternal uplift of mind is to see each one as all.

SOLUTION OF THE PHENOMENAL UNIVERSE

The above explanation will help elucidate the writer's solution of "the 14 points in the 'Dream Problem.'"

1. Who is it that sleeps, who is it that dreams, and who is it that wakes up?

Nothing sleeps, nothing dreams, nothing awakes. Sleeping, dreaming and awakening are nouns, names, indicating ideas in mind. To ask who is it that sleeps is equivalent to asking a mathematician, when one sees the figure "2" who is it that "twos." Mind creates the figure "2" to indicate the idea "two"; and mind creates the symbol "sleep" to indicate the idea "rest." The illusion that a "man is sleeping" is a "snake in the rope." The "sleeping
