LUMBER SEASON IN B.C.

Speaking of the season of 1909, lumbermen in British Columbia tell the Monetary Times that business was fairly good. The demand from the western provinces was excellent, being particularly noticeable by the mills in the interior of the Province. On the Coast the local trade was exceptionally brisk. Prices were not as high as might have been wished. The shingle manufacturers state that the season was a satisfactory one, especially when compared with 1908. Prices now are about the lowest on record. This is the dull time of year, but the prospects are bright, consequent on the good crops on the prairies. Although a surplus of logs on
