EXPLOITS OF AVIATOR IN AN ARMORED CAR

Goes Out Often and Comes in Later with Prisoners.

GERMANS WANT TO GET HIM.

He Seems to Take His Car Right Into the Enemy's Lines

The armored car gives unlimited opportunities for the exercise of nerve and initiative, and no man in the war availed himself of these more fully than the famous Commander Sampson of the royal naval air service, says William J. Robinson in the Atlantic Monthly.

This officer (for whose capture, dead or alive, the Germans were reported to have offered 20,000 marks) was equally at home in an aeroplane or an armored car. I have never seen him at work as an aviator, but the town in which we had our headquarters was the starting place for his amazing trips in the car. Just where he went, and how he got there, is more or less of a mystery. All we knew was that at 4 o'clock in the morning, or thereabouts, Commander Sampson would leave Hazebrouck, and, hours later, come rolling back into the square, almost invariably with a batch of German prisoners! His arrival at headquarters was the event of the day. Every one in sight would come rushing forward to see what sort of game he had bagged. From the stories that followed these exploits, he must have taken his car right into the German lines—a feat which was as dangerous as you please, but not literally impossible.

Few people seem to realize that many of the highways leading cross-country and connecting the hostile lines had not then been destroyed. They were fearfully guarded by barbed wire barricades, and their surface was torn and pitted by shell holes; but neither side was willing to eliminate a means of communication which would be of vast value in case of an advance.

His car would come back looking as though it had been through a thousand years of war, but the occupants were generally safe and sound, and, as I say, they had things to show that they had given the Germans cause to regret receiving a visit from Commander Sampson. So far as I am aware, no one has yet come forward to claim that reward of twenty thousand marks.

These are the roads that Commander Sampson must have used on his swift trips of destruction. On the front of his car was a formidable arrangement of upright scythe-like wire cutters, strong enough to rip through the entanglements and bunt the wooden supporting posts out of the way; and with these, backed by the momentum of the ponderous car, he forced his way on steel studded tires through barbed wire and shot and shell, and accomplished the impossible—not once, but again and again.

ACCIDENT WHICH MIGHT HAVE BEEN SERIOUS

Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Tapscott Badly Burned Yesterday.

From a very innocent cause, Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Tapscott were badly burned yesterday morning about 9 o'clock at their residence, at 109 Northumberland St. Mrs. Tapscott had been cleaning some clothes with gasoline, and all of the substance was not out of them when she held them over the electric heater to dry them thoroughly. The clothes took fire, badly burning her hands, arms and also her face. The fumes of the gasoline caused an explosion which blew out a three by two leaded window.

Mr. Tapscott rushed to the scene, and as he entered the room the explosion occurred, and his left arm and hand was very badly burned, and some blazing material fell upon the top of his head, burning it and also his face. The fire reels were summoned hastily, the East end men responding, and the blaze was extinguished by chemicals. Medical aid was summoned and Mr. and Mrs. Tapscott attended to. Although the burns were painful, it is not thought that any serious consequences will follow the accident.

To the Grave

EVA KNIGHT The funeral took place on Saturday from her parents' residence, 12 Brunswick St., of Eva Knight, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Knight.

The Salvation Army band headed the procession, followed by the Life Saving Guards, to which the deceased was attached, also the Life Saving Scouts, and the soldiers and friends, to the Army Citadel, where a service was held, hence to Mount Hope cemetery. The Life Saving Guards acted as pallbearers. Adj. Osbourne officiated. Floral emblems were received from: Father and mother, wraith; Major Mrs. Ulan, Ajar; Life Saving Guards, Cross; Life Saving Scouts, wraith; Brant St. A. Corps, wraith; Packing Dept. Massey-Harris Co., wraith; Mr. E. Corrin, wraith; Mrs. Hardy, Mrs. Cocksfoot Plow Co, wraith; flowers from Violet and Willie Knight, Ella Rodwell, League of Mercy Sisters, Sergeant Major Mrs. Ulan, Salisbury Lodge, S.O.E., Mr. and Mrs. E. Wright, Mr. and Mrs. Amos, Mrs. E. and T. Weller, Daisy and Rosie Wright, Mr. and Mrs. F. Strickland, Jim and Lizzy Winegard, Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Higgins and Winnie, George Corrin, Mr. and Mrs. F. Neal and daughters, Mr. and Mrs. W. Godden, Mr. and Mrs. Cloke, Lizzy and thereabouts, Mr. and Mrs. Carey, Mr. and Mrs. Court, Mr. and Mrs. A. Noakes, Ivy and Mrs. Riches, Mr. and Mrs. H. King, Mr. and Mrs. C. King, Mr. and Mrs. Dicker, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Cooper, Wilma and Cooper, Bertie and Winnie Rowen.

MRS. HARRIET DUTTON

The funeral of the late Mrs. Harriet Dutton, beloved wife of Mr. James Dutton, Brantford, Township, took place Sunday afternoon to Greenwood cemetery, Rev. L. Brown conducting the services. The pallbearers were John Banon, R. Greenwood, J. Kerr, Wm. Bowers, G. L. Jarvis, Geo. Barnie. The floral tributes included the following: Wreaths, Paris Road Sunday school; Moyle Tranquility Women's Institute; aunt Hattie; Mable and Irene; sprays, Toby MacKay; Judge and Mrs. Hardy; Mrs. Carrie Stuart; Mr. and Mrs. T. Connor; Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Butler and family; Miss Letts; Mr. and Mrs. Armstrong; Mr. and Mrs. Gatchell; the Crawford family; Mr. and Mrs. Ryan; Albert Ryan; Mr. and Mrs. Bradford.

With the City Police

William Simpson, William Smith, Robert Hawke and Wally Ott, four gentlemen of leisure, appeared in the police court this morning, and were requested by Magistrate Livingstone to seek other vocations within a week's time. Two common drunks contributed $3 per. Oliver Franklin, an inebriated aborigine, chose one month's sojourn in prison, rather than the payment of $5 and costs. William Simpson employed a vocabulary of insulting and abusive nature, for which privilege he paid $2. Charges of selling liquor without a license, and possessing liquor while on the billed list, preferred against William Clouse, were discharged, and Roy Potter, charged with theft and with shop-breaking, was remanded until to-morrow. An assault on Mrs. Celia Saunders, committed by Joe. Hartley, placed a $5 debt on the financial assets of the latter individual.

An intoxicated man, in charge of a horse and rig Saturday night on the Market Square caused some excitement by breaking through the Salvation Army, claiming it was the only way he could get to the street. He was arrested and after paying five dollars to the police court, was set free.
