ATHENS AND NEIGHBORING MARCH 26, 1889

The procuring of a good ground is of paramount importance, and with so many suitable fields in the vicinity of the village, this ought not to be a difficult matter. As it is a game in which men as well as youther may profitably engage, it is sure to may profitably engage, it is sure to prove popular. It is not too early to consider ways and means, and a meeting should be called to elect officers and place the matter in the hands of a
