of Mess Funds.

Kingston, May 21.—It has now become public that a man named Jeffrys, who was caterer of the officers' mess at the barracks, left for parts unknown the other day with, it is said, $400 of the mess funds. His previous conduct was invariably good.

The explanation of his escapade, as learned yesterday afternoon, is as follows:

On the day of the theft Jeffreys went On the day of the theft Jeffreys went to his home earlier than expected by his wife and there found an officer in her company. Jeffreys took in the situation and reasoned with himself that there was nothing to be gained by protesting, and that he would probably lose his position. He then packed up his belongings, went over to the mess room, found $400 of the mess funds, put it in his pocket and left, feeling assured that he was immune from arrest and punishment.

PEARLS OF THOUGHT.

Gems Culled From the Spiritual Journal of Carmen Sylva.

Carmen Sylva, the poet Queen of Roumania, is deeply interested in the blind, and for the benefit of those unfortunate people has just sent to Paris for sale a hundred photographs of herself, autographed, and bearing each an aphorism culled from her private spiritual journal. The pearls of thought here given are from that collection:—

"This life is but an image of the true life, a reflection of what the soul

"This life is but an image of the true life, a reflection of what the soul attains to in the Beyond, of what only the death of the body shall reveal."

"It is so good to be beautiful, and so beautiful to be good, that it is a sad mistake not to be the one by sheer force of being the other."

"One word has before now traversed the centuries and stirred hearts anew in every successive generation; why be content to chatter like the poplar to the passing wind, instead of sowing atroad words that will endure."

Old Timer and Lord Dufferin.

Old Timer and Lord Dufferin.

"Yes, I met Lord Dufferin several times in Toronto when he was Governor-General, away back in the seventies," says "Old-Timer," in The Vancouver Province, carefully refilling his pipe. "There was a man for you—the best Governor-General Canada ever had, by a long chalk. I was what you may call officially introduced to him, and he asked me a powerful lot of questions. I tell you, that man learnt Canada. He was always enquiring and learning. Why, I found him once in a farmers' hotel down on Front Street east, on market day, sitting down drinking his whisky and water in the smokeroom. Little they guessed it was the Governor-General, and to look at him you wouldn't have thought so yourself. Rough shooting jacket, worn trousers—baggy at the knees—and a shabby hat he wore. There he was talking to them in his plain straightforward way and getting information first hand. They thought he was some prospecting farmer. He stayed at the Queen's Hotel, but there, everybody kept missing him; he would get away by himself and fall into conversation with anybody who could tell him anything about Canada."

"He wasn't after any graft then?"

"Graft? Graft be jiggered. I wish some of these M.P.'s and Senators and Cabinet Ministers could get some notion of what he was, into their scheming heads. Tell you what, it's a pity he can't take a hand in this Imperial Council, he could tell 'em a thing or two. There was a man that knew things. If ever we want to put up any statues in Vancouver let us honor ourselves by having a monument to Lord Dufferin. Why, to think of that man takes the nasty taste of these small-fry politicians out of your mouth."

His father was killed by the bite of a snake.

Richards has a habit of carrying at least one snake with him, and sometimes he has as many as nine in his pockets. His method of capturing snakes is interesting. He takes a white handkerchief, to which the attention of the reptile is attracted. Then he grasps its tail and places it across his arm, when it is said to become quite still under the man's influence.

Richards he will be the bit of the still under the man's influence.

Richards declares that he had been for three years in quest of the reptile which bit him.

Hon. J. Bryce.

"There is no reason why all the questions of controversy that have arisen between the United States and Canada within the past twenty years should not be settled amicably, with a reasonable spirit of give and take," said Hon. James Bryce, British Ambassador, at a banquet of the Canadian Society at Philadelphia the other day. "There are many Canadians in this country, and not a few citizens of the United States live in Canada. It is a good thing for each country that this is so."

Some of the subjects that might well be settled speedily to the benefit of both countries, Mr. Bryce mentioned the fresh water fisheries rights and the right of use of the inland waterways.

Several Passengers Badly Bruised By Crash.

Crash,

Rochester, N. Y., May 21.—Westbound passenger train No. 385 on the Falls branch of the New York Central Railroad, due at Lockport at 6.50 o'clock, with a train of four coaches, crashed into the rear of a freight train east of Vine street crossing at Lockport, telescoping the caboose and piling freight cars in pyramid shape on the tracks and blocking traffic.

The wreck, it is said, was caused by members of the freight crew not flawing the passenger train. The train was running 40 miles an hour.

Several residents of Lockport, who were on the passenger train, were badly bruised by being tossed from their seats when the crash came.

Shoulder Admits Guilt.
Toronto, May 21.—George McGrath and Michael Burns were convicted in the general sessions yesterday on a charge of robbing J. Oxborough, alias Charles Shoulder, of Massilon, Ohio, of $235 on April 20.

Shoulder, it is alleged, came to Toronto with $300, which he had stolen from his employer in Massilon. With the prisoners he went out to see the town and when in a lonely spot they jumped on him and took his money. When Shoulder complained to the police, they took him in on a charge of stealing the self-same day in Ohio. At court yesterday Oxborough admitted his guilt. He will go back to Chip to stand trial. Caustic Judge Hawkins.

Caustic Judge Hawkins.

Judge Hawkins once had to sentence an old swindler and gave him seven years. The man in the dock squirmed and whined, "Oh, my Lord, I'll never live half the time!" Hawkins took another look at him and answered, "I don't think it is at all desirable that you should."

The formality of asking a newly convicted prisoner if he had anything to say why sentence should not be passed upon him brought another characteristic retort from the judge. A prisoner in these circumstances usually either says nothing or curses at large in his rage, but one of them struck a theatrical posture and with his right hand in the air shouted: "May the Almighty strike me dead if I don't speak the truth! I am innocent of this crime!" Judge Hawkins said nothing for about a minute, when, after glancing at the clock, he fulminated in his most impressive tones, "Since the Almighty has not thought fit to intervene, I will now proceed to pass sentence."—Westmin ster Gazette. Doctor Arrested On Serious Charge With Wife As Accessory.
Raleigh, N. O., May 21.—Dr. D. S. Rowland, a prominent physician here, was arrested yesterday on a warrant from Henderson, Vance County, charging him with the murder of his II-year-old son near Kittrell, in Vance County, to obtain $900 insurance money and property left to the boy. The boy died two weeks ago after taking a walk in the woods with his father, and it is alleged that the lad said his father had given him an orange which tasted bitter. The warrant charged murder by poison.

Rowland's wife, to whom he was married last week, was arrested as an accessory.

waterways.

J. A. Macdonald, editor of The To ronto Globe, in responding to a toast on Canada, said that Sir Wilfrid Lauronto Globe, in responding to a toast on Canada, said that Sir Wilfrid Laurier represented the best sentiment and most deliberate judgment of the Canadian people when at the Colonial Conference the other day he stood frankly, immovably for two things—British connection and Canadian self-government. The characteristic mood of the typical Canadian to-day, continued Mr. Macdonald, is his desire that his country be left free to work out its own destiny unharassed and unhampered by any artificial schemes or arbitrary theories of what its national future should be.

"Our national rivalries," said Mr. Macdonald, "must be, not in great warships and forts and standing armies, but in those humaner enterprises which strive to secure for all our people of every class a fair chance and a square deal, and to redeem life both for ourselves and for the world from the ignorance and cruelty and thate which still hang like a pall along the horizon line."

What Women Want In Men.

It is so recently that women have been allowed to think, or expected to think, that it is not strange that they have not expressed themselves upon the question of what they want in men. They have been brought up on the philosophy. "Be good and you'll be married," and it has not been a question of what they like in men, but what men like in them that counted or was important.

There are many women, otherwise fairly sensible, who openly say they could not love a man who did not rule them. To say that every man, by virtue of his sex, is meant to be the master of some woman is utter folly. The need for a master is not a question of sex, but a question of the lack of moral or mental stamina in the individual.

What do women want in men? There are women who prefer a man with the ability to earn a fortune rather than one who has inherited it. Being a good provider will some times cover a multitude of petty faults in the eyes of women obliged to account for every penny spent. Nor is generosity with money the only generosity. Women want from men what every normal human being craves—commendation and approval.

Woman, normal and healthy, does not want or need a master. Outside of truthfulness, honor, and courage in him, what she prizes above all things from him are kindness, generosity, and sympathy—Belle Squire in the May Delineator.
