the critics need are rapid-fire guns. Registrar-General for Ontario, being that for the year 1904, has been published by the Deputy Registrar-General, Dr. Charles A. Hodgetts. It contains Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription,

Is not a secret or patent medicine, against which the most intelligent people are quite naturally averse because of the uncertainty as to their harmless character, but is a medicine of known compositron, a full list of all its ingredients being printed, in plain English, on every bottle wrapper. An examination of this list of ingredients will disclose the fact that it is non-alcoholic in its composition, chemically pure glycerine taking the place of the commonly used alcohol, in its makeup. The "Favorite Prescription" of Dr. Plerce is in fact the only medicine put up for the cure of woman's peculiar weaknesses and aliments, sold through druggists, that does not contain alcohol and that too in large quantities. Furthermore, it is the only medicine for woman's special diseases, the ingredients of which have the unanimous endorsement of all the leading medical writers and teachers of all the several schools of practice, and that too as remedies for the aliments for which "Favorite Prescription" is recommended.

The population of the province, as estimated by geometrical progression, is given as 2,203,968. The population in the cities has increased faster than in other parts of the province. This, the report states, is due not so much to any increase in the birth rate in the cities as to the influx of population from the rural parts. The number of births registered during the year was 50,265, which is at the rate of 28.8 per 1,000. This is an increase of 0.7 per 1,000 over the preceding year and 1.1 over the year 1902. This increase, the report says should be considered as satisfactory, because of the large number of marriageable young men who leave this province for the West. "The older couples," says the report, "those who have passed the child-bearing period of life, being left in Ontario, and considering, further, that it is not 'the fashion' of the present day to have a family of more than one or two, the returns for 1904 must be looked upon as very satisfactory, and we may feel thankful that the desire for the community, and there are those in our midst possessed with a due sense of their responsibility to the State and the benefits to be derived from a course of non-interference with the laws of nature."

Don't forget that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, for woman's weaknesses and delicate aliments, is not a patent or secret medicine, being the "Favorite Prescription" of a legularly educated and graduated physician, engaged in the practice of his chosen specialty—that of diseases of women—that its ingredients are printed in plain English on every bottle-wrapper; that it is the only medicine especially designed for the cure of woman's diseases that contains no alcohol, and the only one that has a professional endorsement worth more than all the so-called "testimonials" ever published for other medicines. Send for these endorsements as above. They are free for the asking.

Suicides and Accidents.

The report concludes with some interesting figures about the number of each whole. The birth rate in the rural parts is below the average for the province.

Twins Were Numerous.

People of a curious turn of mind will be interested in learning that there were 549 pairs of twins born in Ontario in 1904, and that in 7 cases parents found themselves the owners of triplets. Among the twins there were 550 males and 534 females Of the 21 individuals who made up the 7 sets of triplets, 10 were males and 11 were females The number of twin births was 57 greater than in 1903 and 28 more than in 1902 Taking births in general, the males are still in the lead, the proportion being as 104.5 to 100. In 1904, however, it was as 105.8 to 100, so that the males are lagging behind a triff.

During the month of November fewer births occur than in any other month, and the maximum is reached in the month of May.

Marriages Still Popular.

There export concludes with some in teresting figures about the number of the second deaths from suicide and accident.

The report concludes with some in teresting figures about the number of the second of the former there were 113; of these, 77 were males and 36 females, 40 single and 65 married; in 8 instances the social condition was not known. The youngest suicide was under 14 and the oldest was over 80. The number of accidents happening in the province shows an upward tendency, the figures showing an increase for the year of 16 of electric railway system, only 19 deaths were due to this cause. The record of 219 deaths by drowning is a strong plea for the systematic teaching of swimming to our school children, and the 186 deaths by railway accidents might be used as an argument that pedestrians and the public of this province have some claim to a right of way and a better protection should be given us at our level crossings. The value to the province of the 186 lives lost under this head in 1904 represents a sum which might have been s

There were 19,789 marriages made in Ontario in 1904, which was less by 41 than in the preceding year, and is only at the rate of 8.9 of the estimated population. This rate, however, is very close to that of 1903, and in the latter year there was a marked increase, June is still in the lead as the correct month to be married in, and May is the least popular month for nuptials.

The marriages according to religious denominations show no change in relative precedence. The order is as follows: — Methodists, — Presbyterians, Church of England and Roman Catholics.

In the matter of deaths there were 8.742 in the cities, 3,364 in towns of over 3,000 population, and 19,284 in townships. The death rate for the province was 14.1 per 1,000, or 0.7 per 1,000 more than in 1903. There were 1,646 more deaths in 1904 than in 1903. Of the increase 207 were infants under one year of age. The chief increase in deaths was in the aged people, while the children got off more easily. The chief decrease in deaths was in the class of children from 1 to 9. This is the group which is most affected by epidemic diseases. As is usually the case, the smallest number of deaths occurred in June and the greatest in March.

class of children from 1 to 9. This is the group which is most affected by epidemic diseases. As is usually the case, the smallest number of deaths occurred in June and the greatest in March.

Causes of Deaths.

"In considering the causes of deaths, "the report says, "it is found that 1,730 deaths were due to infectious or contagious diseases apart altogether from the deaths caused by tuberculosis and scrofuls, which numbered 2,877.

"The most fatal of the diseases in this group being from this alone. The next in order was typhoid fever, with 27.8 per cent, and influenza, 19.1 per cent. Consequent upon the measures taken by local health authorities to prevent the spread of scarlet fever, which in 1903 had been prevalent, and which caused 580 deaths in that year, the progress of scarlet fever was very much curtailed in 1904, and the diminished number of deaths, viz., 163, may be largely attributable to this cause.

An Example of a Judicial Mind.

At a dinner affended by a score of well known lawyers recently the phrase "judicial mind" was defined by illustration as follows: "I have searched far and wide for a satisfactory defini-tion of the inevitable query raised when judicial nominations are in sight," said one of the lawyers. "On a Mississippi river steamboat some time ago I obtained my only approximate answer.

A southern colonel who employed the phrase yielded to my request for a definition and explained that on a certain occasion a legal light of Mississippi was traveling in a river steamer when the boiler exploded. As the boat was passing the penitentiary at the time the force of the explosion depositestablishment from which he had saved so many criminals. Being uninjured, as a clever lawyer would be under the circumstances, he applied to the warden for a release. The warden listened to the circumstances as he narrated them, but declined to release him, insisting that with the coming of prisoners he had no concern, but for their departure he was responsible. He therefore compelled the lawyer to wait for a pardon from the governor. That is my notion of a judicial mind."
