What Bystander thinks of the West India Question.

There is a bad split in the ranks of the Bleus in the Province of Quebec. Sir Hector Langevin leads one faction and Mr. Chapleau the other. This gives matters a very squally case, it has been agreed that he shall lead the Tories after Sir John Machanald comes back from England. But there by be very little truth in this report, which comes from Toronto and is said to rest on the authority of a prominent conservative. The story is that Sir John's health is altogether gone, and that it is absolutely necessary that he should retire from public life. He is said to be physically incapable of meeting Parlia-ment again, and that it has been arranged to give him a triumphant reception when he comes back from England and that at this comes back from England and that at this he is to take a farewell of the men who have stuck to him through good and evil report, and as long as he kept before their eyes, have followed him, some feet, through mud, mire and corruption. and if it be true and Sir Hector Langevin is revolt of which Chaplean is the real, if not overt leader, is a serious piece of busines for the wily minister of public works. It is said that some of the "faithful" wanted Tupper back again, and that he went to England in Charles is altogether too sharp and of too unsavory a reputation to make his premier-ship a possibility. Our own and only knight, the most amiable Sir Leonard, has sufficient to make him a good leader. Every one will be sorry at his loss of the former; but we do not know that any one will regret that he has not enough of the latter to make a successful Tory leader. The particular stituted, is not a desirable possession. Such is the state of the political arena according to the latest reports from headquarters.

There does not seem to be much doubt that the West Indian annexation question will be discussed between the Imperial Government and Sir John Macdonald, whether that was the object of the latter's visit to England or not. The West Indian Islands seem quite British Government seems desirous that the union should be effected. It would seem to follow, as a matter of course, that if Sin John's health permits, and he seems to be none the worse for his ocean trip, the whole subject will be gone into before his

"Fill tell yon what it is, stranger, a norther puts in the quickest work you ever saw. You see that lake down there (pointing to a beautiful lake about a mile distant) last spring, in the latter part of March, I was fishing in the afternoon; the sun was shinting and it was as warm almost as the middle of summer. The fish were 'umping up all over the lake, and they were bird to ghendidly. A shade came suddenly over the lake, and they were bird be and looked toward the northwest, and I saw a small, dark cloud passing like lightning and knew I must hurry home. After looking a short time at the cloud I turned and looked at the lake, when to my astonishment, the lake was frozen over and many fish were lying no top of the ice. The fish had jumped up, and the lake had frozen over so quick they could not get back. The news comes over the sea that one day last week Mr. Gladstone, Premier of England, in addition to his recreation of felling a tree and translating several pages from the Greek, walked a few iles, made a speech, and then attended to those diplomatic duties which must, in the nature of things, be enormous. As the Liberal Party is, at the present time, going through one of its most critica campaigns, it is plain to be seen that the sibility and work put upon the "Coh, dear," sighed a farmer's wife wearily, as she dropped into a chair after a hard day's work, "I feel just as if I were going to be sick. My head throbs, and my back aches dreadfully and—
"By gosh," interrupted the farmer, starting up and seizing his hat, "that reminds me. I forgot to give the two-year-old colt his condition powders to-night, an' he's been a wheezin' all day," and he hurried to the harm. All these are among the workers of the world, and it goes to show that it is not hard work that kills. More men die from rust and dry rot than from vast effort. The power of the individual is great and is increasing. The human machine does not wear out so much as it goes to pieces from inaction. The lesson these things teach is worth the hee ling.—Albany Express.
