Disastrous Fire.

THREE CHILDREN BURNED TO DEATH.

At three o'clock yesterday afternoon, Deputy Minister of Justice Hutchings, had a message to the effect that the house of Frank Jones, of Grey River, in the District of Burgess and LaPelle, was destroyed by fire on Sunday night last, and that three children were burned to death. It is supposed that the school teacher of the settlement, who boarded in the house, made her escape. A message similar to the above was received by the Customs Dept.

Laid to Rest.

The funeral of the late Mr. Frederick Burnham, took place yesterday afternoon from his late residence, Military Road, and was largely attended. Amongst the mourners were most of our prominent merchants, members of the Legislative Council and members of the House of Assembly, employees of Hon. George Knowling, besides many friends and relatives of the deceased. At the Cathedral Rev. Dr. Greene recited the prayers for the dead. Interment was in the family plot in Belvidere Cemetery.

Rough Prisoner.

Last night, Constables Crocker and Saunders were called to New Gower Street where an inebriate was making a row in another man's house. The officers attempted to eject the disturber, but the latter remonstrated and struck one of the peacekeepers. A fierce struggle ensued and after a while the prisoner was handcuffed and driven to the police station. He will explain his conduct to the magistrate to-day.

The vation Lass.

The Christmas season of joy and good cheer
Makes all of us happy to know it is here.
When spite is forgotten, and envy is dead
And pleasure and kindness we nurture instead.
So while we remain so, each creed and each class
I beg, don't forget the poor Salvation lass.

She stands at the corner, by night and by day
So do not forget her when passing her way.
Her actions are noble, she makes an appeal
In behalf of the grieving their sorrows to heal.
"Keep the pot boiling", she'll cry as you pass
Oh, turn not away from the Salvation lass.

Don't question her right for espousing her cause
Now, if it doesn't suit you I'll ask you to pause;
Reflex upon HIM who on Calvary bled,
Who pardoned the thief, and with sinners broke bread.
Then you'll know, though you worship at Meeting or Mass
That HE blesses the work of the Salvation lass.

'Tis not in grand singing, or the organ's loud peal
That Heaven gives ear to the joy that we feel;
'Tis not in the giving of gifts more for show,
'Tis for deeds that are humble He loves below;
By such you'll gain glory more lasting than brass,
So give what you can to the Salvation lass.

Turn not away from her cry for your aid,
Despise not the dress nor the words of this maid,
There's a God who is watching your actions and deeds
And to Him all alike are both classes and creeds;
So while you feel happy, if her way you pass,
Just give what you can to the Salvation lass.

Lords of Misrule.

In mediaeval times there was a master of Christmas revels, who was known as the Lord of Misrule. This merry person was, for the time being, "monarch of all he surveyed," and everyone was forced to do his bidding. Stowe tells us that, "In the feast of Christmas there was in the King's House, wheresoever he lodged, a Lord of Misrule, or master of merry sports, and the like had ye in the house of every nobleman of honour and good worship were he spiritual or temporal."

The Lord Mayor and Sheriffs of London had also their Lords of Misrule, and even in the homes of the more humble folk someone was usually appointed to play the part of King during Christmas.

These mock-monarchs began their sovereignty on All Hallow's Eve, and ruled—or, if you prefer it, misruled—till Christmas. In Scotland they were known as Abbots of Unreason, but were suppressed by a special Act in 1555.

In Tudor times their reign was marked by much costly display, so much so that in the Christmas of 1561, a Lord of Misrule rode through London followed by one hundred gentlemen on horseback hung with gold chains.
