Grandmother.
 (A Western College Professor has decided that grandmothers must not be allowed to care for children, because they are out of date and unscientific in their methods.)
 Our female relatives recall That in our early teaching season We used to wake up nights and bawl Without the least excuse or reason, All that the family could do To shut us up proved unavailing, Till grandma, with a word or two Crooned in our ears, would stop our wailing.
 And clearly we recall ourselves How certain jelly tarts were hidden On nicely papered pantry shelves To which we sternly were forbidden And how we hung about the door And, faint with hunger, watched and waited Till Grandma passed us three or four, And we departed, satiated.
 And now, when toys aren't put away, Or certain boys begin to worry Because their caps have gone astray When they are in an awful hurry, Somebody picks up all the toys And hushes up the "Where in thunder?" And finds the caps, and two small boys Are sure that Grandma is a wonder, To ease the load that others bear, To find a balm for others' sorrow, To help us all forget dull care And hope for happier things to-morrow, Is Grandma's work, which seems to us Both beautiful and beatific, Too bad professors make a fuss Because she isn't scientific.

Terks Mutiny After Quarrel With Germans.
 Forty-Five Ringleaders Sent to Constantinople in Chains.

Athens, Aug. 17.—(Despatch to the London Chronicle)—The strained and increasingly bad relations between German and Turkish army officers has led to a serious crisis. I have it on quite indisputable authority that a few days ago a quarrel among the staff officers at the front on Gallipoli Peninsula led to a mutiny of formidable dimensions against the Germans. The latter were forced to take the strongest measures to quell the insurrection, and with considerable difficulty arrested the ringleaders and some other officers involved.
 These, numbering forty-five, were sent to Constantinople in chains, where they would have been shot, but the German commander did not feel himself in a strong enough position to do so immediately. The arrests caused a great sensation throughout the ranks of the army and increased the very considerable indignation against the Germans, who now have few real friends, even among the most prominent Young Turks.
 I have spoken to-day with four people who have just arrived here from the Turkish capital. All agree in representing the situation that it is very perilous. One of them was told by the Sultan's physician that His Majesty was very ill and quite incapable of attending to State affairs, and is said to be in a serious state of nervous prostration. Audiences are denied even to the most prominent Germans.
 One of the four gentlemen is a Greek of my acquaintance, who has resided for forty years in Constantinople and whose statements can be regarded as absolutely reliable.
 He tells me the greatest indignation was aroused in all circles in the Capital by the proposal of Prince Hohenzollern-Langenberg to put Germans into the administrative posts in the Capital and throughout the country. The mannerless and overbearing attitude of the Germans, meanwhile, greatly aggravates the people, and has called forth on several occasions lately vigorous protests from several of the Young Turk leaders.
 As for the populace generally, my friend says, they are absolutely confused by the rosy communique which are plastered thick on every wall in Stamboul. They can hardly reconcile the glowing accounts of victories with the torrent of Turkish wounded pouring into Constantinople.
 "There cannot be the slightest doubt," my informant added, "that the people are against the continuation of the war, if, indeed, they ever were in favor of it. My conviction is that a revolution is coming and that it will hasten the triumph of the Allies."
 From another equally reliable informant I learn that the number of wounded in the Capital has reached the astounding figure of 125,000, while many thousands are at Maldoos or the town of Gallipoli.

REQUEST THAT CANADIANS BE FORWARDED TO FRONT.
 London, Ont., August 19th.—Lieut-Colonel Alexander Wilson, commanding officer of the Thirty-third Overseas Battalion, to-day wired the military authorities at Ottawa, in behalf of himself and fellow officers and men, asking that the 33rd be sent to the front at once to replace the loss of the 1,000 British troops that were lost when the Royal Edward was torpedoed in the Aegean Sea on Saturday morning last.
