At the conclusion of the services the remains were removed to the pavilion, in which the final rites will be held.

The Czar's Death. LONDON, Nov. 29.—The Daily News correspondent in Odessa says: As to the report of the Czar's death nothing official is known. It is stated that the grief and excitement caused by his father's death overtaxed his wasted constitution. The city is depressed. The suspension of business for many days in connection with Alexander III's death told severely on the workmen. The city was illuminated on the 29th, the ex-Czar's birthday. Persons failing to display candles in their windows were heavily fined.

Gen. Booth and the Czar. LONDON, Nov. 29.—The following dispatch was wired to the Czar of Russia on Tuesday: "The Salvation Army throughout the world greets your Majesty, expresses its sympathy in our recent bereavement, and offers up fervent prayer that your Majesty may have a happy and holy union and a long reign of usefulness and benevolence. (Signed) WILLIAM BOOTH."

The Hovas' Reply to France. PARIS, Nov. 29.—The Malagasy Government, in its reply to the French ultimatum, agrees that the French residents in the island shall become the mediators between Madagascar and the powers, and also agrees that France shall effect such public works in the island as the Malagasy authorities shall deem necessary. The reply also proposes that the Hova-French disputes shall be tried by a mixed court, and that the boundaries of the French territory around Diego Suarez shall be definitely settled. The Government reserves to itself the right to import arms and munitions of war.

The Nihilist Leader's Opinion. LONDON, Nov. 29.—Stepniak, the Russian Nihilist leader, in an interview today in regard to the Czar's popularity, said: "Of course, the Czar knows that he is perfectly safe in going about unattended. I know that a strong feeling in favor of reconciliation prevails among the Russian revolutionists. The Czar has wonderfully good cards in his hands, and if he is not quite a fool, he can make concessions which will reconcile everybody and which will make him the most popular Czar Russia has ever known. The Czar's manifesto does not indicate whether he will follow a liberal or conservative policy. The praise bestowed upon it by the English press as being a liberal move is perfectly gratuitous. There is nothing in the manifesto, however, which can be blamed. It opens the way to both courses. Beyond this there is nothing in it. We must wait and see what he will do with political offenders. This is the chief point in my mind."

After the Capture. LONDON, Nov. 29.—The correspondent of the Central News at Tokio telegraphs as follows: Details of the fall of Port Arthur are now beginning to arrive. The number of Chinese killed in the engagement was about 2,000, most of whom were slain during the cannonade of the place on Nov. 20. The statements that there was a further slaughter of Chinese, although it would have been excusable in consequence of mutilation and torture of Japanese soldiers, are absolutely denied by the Japanese officers in command.

Another dispatch says that the Japanese army under Field Marshal Yamagata has passed through Mo Tien passes, and is believed to have taken possession of the city of Liao Chang, 50 miles from Moukden. A dispatch from Tien Tsin says that Viceroy Li Hung Chang has postponed his trip to Pao Ting Foo and has gone to Tsau to inspect the forts there. A correspondent in Tokio telegraphs that Commissioner Dietrich and his suite sailed for Tien Tsin today. The Japanese Premier, Count Ito, declined to receive Commissioner Dietrich, saying that he would only receive an envoy, who had received his appointment direct from the Government at Peking, and would hold no communication with the Viceroy's messenger. The commissioner desired to discuss with Count Ito terms for the establishment of peace between China and Japan, but owing to the stand taken by the Premier this was impossible.

During the past ten years the population of St. Thomas, according to the census figures, has decreased 248 souls. In 1884 the inhabitants numbered 10,811; now there are but 10,563. During the same period the total value of assessable property has increased $819,769.

John Zeibr, a young German who had been under treatment at St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto, got up Wednesday night in witness admitted he had given a man diamond gold sleeve links. That man was Thomas McElroy, who at one time was a depository for $700 or $800 to be paid to an alderman if the Kieley-Everett syndicate got the franchise. It was to be paid over in the form of a bet, the alderman having assured McElroy it would go through. The name of the alderman was not mentioned, but will come up this afternoon.

Court rose at 1:15 p.m. At the afternoon session Mr. F. J. Coleman was questioned further in regard to the alleged bet by which an alderman was to get $700. McElroy, who acted as depository, had told him that the money had been paid. The alderman in question was Gowalock.

CO DEFEND MAYOR FLEMING. Coleman admitted that he had bought up a judgment against the then mayor, R. J. Fleming, from the Traders' Bank. He did this because he was mad at Fleming and wanted to force him into bankruptcy, and so on of running for the majority.

S. H. James was not the only one of the tenders for the street railway franchise in 1891. He had been told by Coleman that the company in which he was interested could get the contract if he put up $40,000 to corrupt the aldermen. Coleman told him the other company had put up $50,000. Mr. James said he had never made an offer to an alderman for the purchase of his vote.

He got an impression from Wm. Hall, an ex-alderman and lawyer, that he came to him one day to see what his company was prepared to do, but he didn't want to do Mr. Hall any injustice.

Coleman took the stand again and swore in the most emphatic manner that the previous witness, Mr. Joyce, had perjured himself in the evidence just given and that it was pure fiction.

Being asked about the $5,000 paid to John Leys, Coleman admitted it had been paid him because of his supposed influence with aldermen.

Ex-Ald. Hall, who was in the council in 1891, denied any knowledge of corrupt acts, and also that he had any business dealings with Ald. Hewitt.

Counsel Nesbitt then showed witness a letter signed by Hall and Hewitt, in which they agreed for $4,000 to secure the contracts for electrical apparatus for the Edison Company and to set for Mr. Barr, of the Edison Company, the figures of rival tenders after the tenders were opened and before they were awarded, the money to be returned if the Edison Company did not get the contract.

Hall admitted this was his signature, but explained that he was not in the council at that time. He was to get $1,800 or $2,000 of the sum named for securing the information. He had no understanding with the street railway company and could not see that there was anything wrong in the agreement in question.

Ald. Gowalock swore emphatically that he had got no money at all out of the alleged bet. He denied having made any money through any deals for his influence as an alderman.

The court at this point adjourned until tomorrow.

THE BOODLE INQUIRY.

Some Peculiar Financial Transactions Ventilated.

J. F. Coleman's Interesting Statements—"Loans" and "Drafts" Disposed of Without Acknowledgment or Security—Diamond and Gold Sleeve-Links Figure in the Case.

TORONTO, Nov. 29.—At the municipal contract inquiry this morning B. Webster, the Cleveland man, who acted for the Kieley-Everett syndicate at the time of the street railway award, and who became known as the "diamond sinner," swore positively that during all his transactions in Toronto he never directly or indirectly made any corrupt offer to any alderman on behalf of the syndicate named.

J. J. Franklin, superintendent of the old street railway, swore he met the late Geo. Kieley at the time of the street railway award, and that he had no knowledge of any corrupt promise or offer to any alderman, but that Kieley had said to him something about some deals with aldermen. He spoke especially of a real estate deal with Ald. P. P. Mr. Franklin was not on very good terms with Kieley at the time and did not pay any attention to it.

J. F. Coleman, secretary of the Trinidad Asphalt Company, stated that at the time the permanent paving question was up in July, 1893, while he had no business dealings with H. A. Everett, of the Street Railway Company (which it will be remembered tried to form a paving syndicate), he (Coleman) made a deal with Everett through the Traders' Bank for $7,000. He did not say what he wanted it for. He got the money in cash and at the time gave no acknowledgment for it, nor was it asked. He subsequently accounted to Mr. Everett for the money. He admitted that his business relations with Mr. Everett were not such as would have warranted his making such a draft. After he had got the cash he paid over $5,000 of it to John Leys, ex-M.P.P. (Mr. Nesbitt, counsel for the corporation, promised to pursue this branch of the inquiry later.) Leys gave him no acknowledgment at the time, but subsequently he got a note from him. At that time also Coleman saw Ald. Bailey and loaned him $200. He got no acknowledgment. Bailey did not promise to pay it back, although he (Coleman) understood he might get it back in sand, in which Bailey deals. Coleman admitted he had paid this money, but could not say that Bailey's vote in the paving contract was bought as the return for it. It was true, though, that it was at the time doubtful how Bailey was going to vote on the Guelch contract, which Coleman was opposing. It was, in fact, said Coleman, difficult to say what might have been his motive in advancing the money. Again, he advanced $800 to Ald. Bailey to take up a note. He got no acknowledgment that money, and there was no entry in a bank book or elsewhere to trace the money. He had kept no books regarding his dealings with aldermen. This was at the time the permanent pavement question was up.

Mr. Nesbitt here asked witness if he had ever given a man gold sleeve links.

Witness admitted he had given a man diamond gold sleeve links. That man was Thomas McElroy, who at one time was a depository for $700 or $800 to be paid to an alderman if the Kieley-Everett syndicate got the franchise. It was to be paid over in the form of a bet, the alderman having assured McElroy it would go through. The name of the alderman was not mentioned, but will come up this afternoon.

Being asked about the $5,000 paid to John Leys, Coleman admitted it had been paid him because of his supposed influence with aldermen.
