21 WHIFF AT QUEENS

The introduction of the bantam baseball series to the city playgrounds last night more than justified the venture as crowds bordering on a thousand saw each of the games, staged at Queen's and Thames Parks.

Goodrich fought Bobby Eber here twice, winning once and holding the Canadian champion to a draw the other bout. London fans—a small number it was—little realized they were seeing the future lightweight champion of the world in Ebor had he only kept in training and taken proper care of himself. The opening ceremonies were brief at both, and the two games got off to an uproarious greeting from the fans.

Queerest of Fielding Records.

By JOHN B. FOSTER.

(Copyright, 1925.) New York, July 13 .- If enough opportunity is given to George Kelly of the Giants, he may make the most retunity is given to George Kelly of the Giants, he may make the most remarkable combination fielding record this season that baseball has heard of in many years, and the most remarkable in baseball.

Kelly hasn't been doing much outfielding this year, although he was good enough in 1924 to get into the world series as an outfielder, and also played first and second base.

Kelly is the leader of all right-hand players at first, and, for that matter, is as good as any of the left-handers. One or two of the southpaws may run along with him, but they never will outstrip him, because he has got first base down to a science, and he can beat any of them throwing the ball. He is the greatest of all relay throwers from the outfield in the game today. That means a lot to a team which can't depend upon great speed in returning the ball after long hits.

The record which Kelly has been making at second this year is so good that if there were no Frisch to take care of that base for the Giants Kelly would fill the bill well enough for a championship team. It is true the Giants haven't won the pennant yet; they are a long way from it. But if they do win it again, Kelly will have played his part in bringing it home.

they do win it again, kelly win have played his part in bringing it home.

Misunderstood.

Kelly is the player whom the superficial critics urged to McGraw to releage, until even McGraw wavered in his Judgment over the man. Pittsburg had him once, and could have retained him if Dreyfuss had not been overburdened with the value of records as against the personalities of players. If Pittsburg had Kelly this year it would almost surely win the championship of the National league, because the Giants would be weakened exactly that much and the Pirates would gain correspondingly in strength.

In the comparatively few games that Kelly has played this year at second base he has accepted eight chances in nine innings four times, nine chances five times, ten chances once and eleven chances twice. That is a better record, according to his datal of games, than some of the stars have made at second base. Hornsby can't touch it. Sometimes Hornsby has played first base, and there have been managers who have thought that Hornsby should go to first base, but that would be folly when a team has a first baseman like Bottomley.

At first base, but it again, team with average to make your strength.
