WERKLY COLONIST AND

The Agriculture of the Colony.

A mixed feeling of satisfaction and discontent seems to be felt by the inabitants of Victoria, and the neighboring settlements at the result of the Agricultural Show, Taking into consideration the depression that has existed for the last few years in all parts of the Colony, the comparative-I small amount of capital that is invested in agriculture in Vancouver Island, and the difficulty under which stock-raisers have labored in importing good stock, from which to produce a ass of animals which might compare worably with older countries; we are disposed to think that upon the whole first class. It is much to be regretted that the farmers of Vancouver Island do not show more spirit in their undertakings, they are too indifferent to the higher branches of their calling, and too readily satisfied with mediocrity, to be In any position to compete with those who have more energy, more enterprise, and a greater spirit of emula-How few of the farmers of the Island took any prominent part in setting up the exhibition, and how the trouble to avail them-ab interior article, relying upon a protective duty to keep them from the healthy competition of their neighbors on the American side. If the agricul-tural interest is to be fostered and protected, surely the public have right to expect the nearest approach to perfection that is to be had, but in effect, from the examples we have had before us. we fear that nothing but free competition will give us an energetic race of farmers. It is well known to all in this neighborhood, who have at all made the subject of agriculture their study, that wheat and other cereals can be produced in this Colony at a cost which, compared with the relative price to consumers, will give a larger profit to growers than can be had in Canada or in Oregon, and this, notwithstanding the high price of labor. It is therefore evident that there must be a radical fault in some quarter ; we are much inclined to impute this fault to the apathy which exists amongst those engaged in farming, there can be but little doubt, that the greater part of those in this Colony, who have settled down to the cultivation of the soil for Indian vote can be received. de be summeans of to diving a sire a not acreally farmers many of them are not practieal judges of stock, nor are they acquainted with more than the mere radiments of agriculture, hence their want of energy, and the same reasons mayintwe think be given for their want of emulation in stock-raising upon this subject the remarks of Chuef Justice Needham were well timed and his advice to the farmers was sound as to the necessity of improving their breed of stock ; but whils. We cannot do otherwise than express regret at the want of energy and emulation on the part of the greater por ion of the farmere, it should not be forgotten that there are some amongst us who are doing their best to keep up the character of the Colony in this respect.

and the party most to blame in the Davis was sentenced to two days' imprisonment in a dark cell, with bread and water, and the others were discharged on the understanding that their parents make .good the damages sustained by the Indians. Alto gether this was a very painful little episode, and shows the folly of respectable boys being allowed to run at large, and get into mischief by associating with those of a more evil disposition. It is to be hoped this case will be a caution to parents, and induce them to be more careful with their children in future.
